NRA OFFICIALS FILL THE SCENE AT WASHINGTON

Traditions Upset All Over Nation.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 16.—[Special]—To the American returning to his country, as I have, after more than three months' absence, Washington presents a strange and bewildering scene.

Gone are many of the old familiar governmental and political landmarks. In their places rise new fangled institutions created by the Seventy-third congress in its first 100 days of life to establish a new economic order for the United States.

Cabinet Glory Wanes.

The President's cabinet, one gathers, is still in existence, but that is about all. It used to be said that a cabinet member was only a glorified chief clerk. He is still a chief clerk, but hardly glorified any longer. Nobody pays any attention to a mere cabinet member under the new deal, unless he happens, like Secretary of the Interior Ickes, to be also a recovery administrator, or, like Postmaster General Farley, to be the dispenser of the vast volume of patronage which the recovery program has placed at the disposal of the Democratic administration.

The limelight in which the cabinet once was wont to bask now beats upon the recovery council comprising the dictators of industry, of farming, of railroad transportation, of banking, of public works construction and of multitudinous activities of the citizen which are now being regulated from Washington. Instead of the cabinet it is now the recovery council meeting with the President that is directing destinies of the nation.

Surprise for Founding Fathers.

When I sailed for the world economic conference on May 31 America was still the land of that "rugged individualism" supposed to be unassailably bulwarked by our constitution. I return to find our much vaunted individualism replaced by a form of collectivism long advocated by the radical elements of our citizenship and now established with the blessings of big business and organized labor—a form of collectivism never envisaged by the founding fathers and the harmony of which, with their immortal document, is yet to be determined by the Supreme court.

The NRA, the AAA, the CCC, the RFC, the farm credit administration, the Tennessee valley authority, the three billion three hundred million dollar public works easy money fund and the five hundred million dollar federal dole are the visible embodiment of Mr. Roosevelt's noble experiment to dissipate the depression and establish a planned economy under government supervision.

People Behind President.

His countrymen, overwhelmingly, have swung behind the President in this heroic effort by novel devices to stay the remorseless grinding of hitherto inexorable economic forces that were taking the American people to a cleaning for their sins, economic and political. There are those who enthusiastically hail the government regimentation of industry, agriculture, transportation, and finance as the dawn of a new era of freedom and justice for the common man.

There are those who doubt that the economic laws governing the deflation of the inflation since 1917 can be repealed by artificial manipulations of prices, production, money, and credit, but are willing to try any experiment, panacea or charm in the hope of finding relief from our misery.

Europe's Eyes on U. S.

The American experiment is being closely watched by all Europe—by Germany, Russia, and Italy because they are also experimenting with various forms of regimentation of human activities, and by Great Britain and France because, if our experiment succeeds, they also will be impelled to follow our example. When I left England, a fortnight ago, the Socialist press was lauding the Roosevelt program to the skies and berating the MacDonald ministry for failure to adopt similar policies, while even the staid old conservative London Times was suggesting that the government might very well undertake some such reorganization of empire industry as is represented by our NRA.

At the moment there are rumblings of disappointment with the results of the artificial manipulators of produc-

500,000 ENTER REVISED SCHOOL SYSTEM TODAY

Little Confusion Is Seen by Board.

SCHOOL MAP.
A map showing all high school districts to which pupils will be assigned is published on the back page.

A half million boys and girls will return to school in Chicago today. They will enter a public school system fitted into the pattern of the board of education's economy program, which was adopted to halt rising costs, restore credit and resume pay days for teachers.

The school board, headed by President James B. McCahey, has asserted, in the face of an organized opposition since the program was first announced on July 12, that the economy plan was inaugurated in the interests of the taxpayer and the school children of Chicago. The retrenchments will save the taxpayers $2,600,000 for the three and a half months left of this year and more than $7,000,000 in the 1934 school budget.

The school children are benefited by the better housing made possible under the board's program. Abolition of the costly junior high school system of instruction and conversion of these buildings into senior high schools will provide comfortable quarters for thousands of children who previously have been quartered in portable buildings.

No Unusual Confusion.

Supt. William J. Bogan has held extended conferences with assistants and principals to perfect plans for the transfer of 50,000 pupils, made necessary under the better housing program.

"There is always confusion on the first day of school," explained Mr. McCahey, "but officials in the educational department have assured me that there should be no more this year than usual."

In a formal statement regarding arrangements for the enrollment of pupils the superintendent suggested that parents of school children study the instructions contained in the statement and also the map in today's TRIBUNE and thus make the school opening orderly. High school students may learn from the maps the school districts in which they reside.

"If high school boundaries have been changed pupils should report on Monday to the new school," said Mr. Bogan. "This direction applies not only to pupils who have been attending high school but also to pupils from junior high or elementary schools now enrolling in high school for the first time."

Supt. Bogan said that it would not be necessary for the pupils to call at their former schools for credentials, as the principals will make all necessary arrangements for the prompt transfer of records and books.

Different Plan in Grades.

"In the elementary schools a different plan will be followed," said Mr. Bogan. "All pupils in the eighth grade and below, whether from elementary or junior high schools, should report on Monday morning to the schools which they attended in June, where they will either be enrolled or directed to another school."

None of the kindergartens has been closed, but attendance has been limited to children who have reached the age of five years. In the case of children entering the school system for the first time Mr. Bogan announced that school clerks would comply with the recommendations submitted by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, commissioner of health. The clerks are authorized to take applications for birth certificates.

The applications will be sent to the health department and within a few days the certificates will be prepared and mailed direct to the schools. Only the parents of children whose births are not registered will be required to go to the city hall.

Order Safety Precautions.

Every precaution will be taken to prevent accidents to children. Street crossings near schoolhouses will be patrolled in the morning, during the noon hour, and in the afternoon by 841 special traffic patrolmen, assigned from the relief rolls of the county bureau of public welfare.

During the last week there have been reports that some teachers and pupils, opposed to the economy program, were planning to make trouble today. Leaders of teacher organizations have denied the reports. Police reserves have been ordered on special duty.

Mr. Bogan said he was relying on the "good sense of parents, pupils, and teachers" to prevent trouble.

Monkey Grins at Pursuers from Sky Ride

Capuchin, a happy-go-lucky black spider monkey with a gray sailor beard, played hookey from the monkey school on the island in the Baby Ruth pool at A Century of Progress Exposition yesterday to become the greatest single attraction of the day at the Fair. Up to a late hour last night the wily simian was still a truant, clinging at a dizzy height to the east tower of the Sky Ride and grimacing derisively at the throngs below.

The curly tailed will o' the wisp escaped from the island in the pool by paddling to its edge and clambering over the concrete ledge. Attendants tried to head him off, but he reversed the field by executing a single wing back play and bounced gayly along in complete freedom.

Leaves Pursuers Panting.

A chase through exhibits and concessions followed. Fair policemen and employes, joined by visitors, lumbered after the elusive Capuchin. Several times he appeared to be near capture, but each time eluded eager hands by astounding gyrations. Pursuers were left panting.

At length Capuchin found himself surrounded at the east tower of the Sky Ride. He crouched against one of the steel supports as the circle about him narrowed. When a policeman was only a step away the monkey nimbly ascended the support and paused above the heads of the posse and grinned mockingly.

Members of the posse held a council. They agreed that as they had been outwitted and outwinded in direct chase, they should resort to guile. Several bananas were proffered as bait to Capuchin. The monkey at first hesitated in suspicion.

Tosses Banana Skin at Besiegers.

Then he descended and seized the fruit with such quickness that he was back on his perch before he could be captured. Capuchin calmly ate the banana and tossed the skin contemptuously at his besiegers. Several times this performance was repeated. Hundreds of visitors gathered at the base of the tower to taunt his pursuers with facetious suggestions.

Meanwhile, Capuchin amused himself by climbing to a height of about 200 feet to watch the cars of the ride pass over his head. Now and then he returned to chatter gibes at the watchers below. At length the management of the concession sent four structural steel workers to catch the monkey.

Capuchin entered into the spirit of the chase. In a series of nimble maneuvers he kept himself out of reach. The workers, perspiring and disgusted, returned to the ground. The management announced that no further effort would be made to dislodge the fugitive. Officials of the pool said they would allow Capuchin to return when he became so inclined.

SALLY RAND AND CLUB HEAD FIGHT TEETH AND FIST

Sally Rand, fan dancer, and Sam Balkin, manager of the Paramount club, 16 East Huron street, where she has been performing, signed disorderly conduct complaints against each other at the Chicago avenue station this morning following what they said was a fight between them. Miss Rand displayed a bruise under her eye and Balkin showed teeth marks on an arm as scars of their battle.

The dancer told Sergt. Nels Kahler that she and Balkin had quarreled over salary and that he had hit her. Balkin asserted she bit him and that he then struck at her in self-defense. Miss Rand gave her age as "over 21." Balkin said he is 44. They will be arraigned in Women's court today.

Girl, 20, Shot at Party; Hunt Union Official

Miss Helen Boatman, 20 years old, lay in John B. Murphy hospital yesterday with a bullet wound near her heart and stubbornly insisted in a formal dying statement that she had fired the shot herself. Police, however, ordered a search for Edward Islander, 35 years old, business agent of local 342 of the Brewery Driver Helpers' union, who she admitted was with her at the time of the shooting.

Miss Boatman was shot shortly after 3 a. m. yesterday in her room in the Melrose Arms hotel, 1636 Melrose street. She staggered down two flights of stairs to the room of Paul Marshall, manager of the hotel, and asked him to call a physician. She rebuffed attempts of Marshall's wife to question her about the shooting.

Talks to Detective.

When Detective Thomas Garrity of the North Damen avenue police reached her side she gasped to him, "Eddie shot me."

"What were you quarreling over?" asked Garrity.

"Nothing," replied the girl. "He didn't shoot me. I did it myself."

Her clothing was torn, and there were powder burns on her body, but none on the clothing, police found, indicating that the shot had been fired at close range. Her room was disarranged, as if by a struggle, and police found a bottle, which had contained liquor, and some glasses. The gun was missing.

Detective Garrity learned from friends of Miss Boatman that she had told them that Islander fired a shot at her a week ago in a fit of jealousy. She had known him since May, she told police. Friends said that she became engaged recently to an employe at Rive view amusement park, where she had worked as a soda dispenser until a few days ago, and attributed Islander's jealousy to this.

Drinking at Café.

Miss Boatman made no mention of this, however, in her formal statement to Lieut. Thomas Keenan of the Damen avenue station. Lieut. Keenan found that she and Islander had been drinking with another couple Saturday evening in a café, but had left at 1:30 o'clock yesterday, going to her room.

Miss Bernice Bates, who lives in the same hotel, and a man whom she could identify only as "Joe," were the other couple. They had several rounds of drinks in Miss Boatsman's apartment and then went to a beer tavern at 2824 North Western avenue, she told police.

"At the tavern," she said, "Helen and Islander began to quarrel over nothing, so Joe and I left."

G.O.P. Federal Official Defies the President

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has asked and been refused the resignation of William E. Humphrey, Republican member of the federal trade commission. The President's request, directed to Humphrey early in the summer, was for a resignation effective Aug. 15. Up to this date the chief executive has not received the resignation, nor has he taken any steps to remove the commissioner.

Would Select Another Republican.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his request to Humphrey, took the position that while another Republican would have to be appointed to fill the place, his administration policies with respect to the federal trade commission could be achieved better through one of his own appointees.

There were reports here, though not confirmed, that the President planned to put Philip La Follette, Progressive Republican and Wisconsin's former governor, in Humphrey's seat.

Instead of resigning, Humphrey wrote to the President that the trade commission was a continuing and independent body, not under presidential control. He further said that the organic law creating the commission permitted removal of a commissioner only for wrongdoing or inefficiency.

Questions President's Power.

In contending that President Roosevelt has no authority to remove him Humphrey raised the important question of the presidential power to remove at will members of federal independent commissions who are confirmed by the senate.

Humphrey served in the house for 14 years as a representative from Washington. President Coolidge appointed him to the commission in 1925 and he was reappointed by President Hoover in 1931.

The commission has five members, not more than three of whom may belong to one political party. The present commission has two Republicans — Humphrey and Charles H. March of Minnesota. The commission elects its own chairman each year and has followed the system of rotating that post among its members. At present March, though a Republican, is serving as chairman.

GIRL SAXOPHONE PLAYER VICTIM OF BRUTAL SLUGGER

Miss Bernice Daigle, 25 years old, 10752 Langley avenue, a member of a saxophonist sextette, was possibly fatally injured early today when she was brutally slugged by an unidentified assailant as she neared her home. She was found unconscious with her skull fractured and a deep gash in her head in the rear yard of 10768 Langley avenue by firemen of Engine Company 80, whose firehouse is nearby.

The girl's father, Joseph Daigle, a member of the fire company, was on duty and identified her. The firemen had been attracted by her moans. No motive for the attack is known, but police were of the belief she was the victim of a rapist who became frightened and fled when she screamed, without accomplishing his purpose.

The sextette of which Miss Daigle was a member, played at a theater in Hammond yesterday. She was returning to her home and alighted from a street car at 108th street and Cottage Grove avenue. George Hrikovski, who lives at the 10768 address, said he was awakened by a commotion in the yard and, looking out, saw a man fleeing.

Dr. A. L. Karabin, 11851 Michigan avenue, was called to attend the girl. He hurried her to St. Francis hospital, Blue Island, where he said she had a 50-50 chance to recover.

CALLS ON LINES TO ACT AT ONCE, HELP RECOVERY

City Officials Assail Three Year Delay.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Chairman James B. Bowler of the city council committee on local transportation joined last night in a statement announcing the opening of a determined effort to bring the street car and elevated lines of the city to time.

They demanded immediate action to deliver to the city the benefits promised by the transit settlement ordinance of 1930 which was adopted by a vote of the people, but which has never been accepted by the companies. As a start they insisted that no further time be lost in establishing the exchange of transfers between the surface and elevated lines. Toward this goal, they said, the city would press with all the force at its command, following up with action for the extension of lines and other improvements.

A Fight to the Finish.

"We will continue this fight," read the declaration, "until it is won and the people get what they voted for."

The statement spoke of the "disgust and disappointment" of Chicago over the long delay of the companies in acting upon the new franchise they assisted in working out.

It said a series of conferences had led to a decision to tell the companies that "the time for stalling has passed."

And that step was taken by means of letters notifying the heads of the three large corporations concerned to appear before the local transportation committee at a meeting on Sept. 27 prepared to talk business.

Three Companies Involved.

The corporations are the Chicago Railways company [north and west side surface lines], the Chicago City Railway company [south side lines], and the Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated].

The decision to announce the program last night was believed partly due to the fact that a showdown in the financial affairs of all the companies may be forced before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson this morning. A committee representing the security holders' committees of all the companies is scheduled to report to the court, which has control of the affairs of the corporations through receiverships.

The committee consists of Melvin A. Traylor, A. W. Harris and D. F. Kelly. The report in La Salle street is that they have failed to reach an agreement and Mayor Kelly does not intend to let the matter rest there.

Reorganization at a Halt.

Shortly after the public approval of the transit ordinance on referendum three years ago, Halsey, Stuart & Co. announced a plan for reorganization of the three companies on a merger basis. About two years ago the same house announced that the plan had been accepted by enough security holders to put it into effect. Since then, however, there have been no public developments except those revealed through the proceedings before Judge Wilkerson.

With gloom surrounding the reports of the situation in that court, the city hall conferees came to the conclusion that the time to strike and strike hard had come.

The Kelly-Bowler statement analyzed the benefits they intend to battle for, emphasizing the money and time saving to many thousands through the interchange of transfers, but stressing also the great relief for unemployment, the advance toward recovery that would come from the actual initiation of the big program.

What Ordinance Provides.

The 1930 ordinance provides for an indeterminate franchise to a new company representing a consolidation of the present companies, the new company pledging itself to spend $65,000,000 on improvements and extensions in the first three years and an additional $135,000,000 in the succeeding seven years. The city would spend upward of $100,000,000 on subways.

The most recent extension of time for acceptance of the ordinance by the companies expires at the end of this year. If that point were reached with no final action taken, Chicago would be just where it was when the settlement negotiations were begun years ago.

The Kelly-Bowler statement avowed a determination to avoid such a collapse. If the companies will not go ahead under the ordinance, the statement said in effect, the city hall leaders will use other means to compel the universal transfer system, the making of extensions, and other improvements provided for under the ordinance. They are confident they can gain these ends even without the ordinance.

Text of the Statement.

The statement issued by the city hall conferees last night follows:

"At a conference today [Sunday] climaxing a series of conferences held during the last ten days between Mayor Kelly, Ald. James B. Bowler, chairman of the committee on local transportation, members of the committee and other city executives, it was decided to notify the traction interests that the time for stalling has passed and that there is no good reason at this time why action should not be taken with reference to the local transportation ordinance.

"This was approved three years ago and the companies have not accepted it, much to the disgust and disappointment of the citizens of Chicago.

"It is evident that the companies have been marking time, due to the fact that they have not made one step which would tend to indicate that they were in earnest with references to the acceptance of this ordinance.

A Saving to the Public.

"Universal transfers could be now in use, which would tend to increase the companies' traffic and would convenience and accommodate the public and would also result in a great saving to Chicago people in the elimination of double fares.

"It was agreed by the conferees that every arm of the city government would be used to force the companies to do something to show a sincere interest in the ordinance and some regard for the car riders.

"Both Mayor Kelly and Ald. Bowler expressed a keen desire that Federal Judge Wilkerson should compel the financial committees of the transit companies, now in receivership in his court, to produce results.

"Chairman Bowler stated that the acceptance of the ordinance would produce more work for the unemployed than any other construction work yet mentioned, as it would employ thousands of men. It would also improve the value of real estate and initiate home building, if the extensions as promised were built.

Demands Universal Transfers.

"He was very emphatic in saying that there is no reason whatsoever at this time why there should not be a universal transfer system between the surface and elevated lines, as the companies have made the physical arrangements for such transfers and it would probably increase the number of riders on both systems.

"The people want these improvements. They wanted them when they voted 5¾ to 1 for the ordinance three years ago last July.

"It is reasonable to assume that the companies can obtain the needed millions to make these improvements. The Reconstruction Finance corporation has indicated in the past that it is anxious to find useful projects upon which to loan money. Officials of the corporation desire construction on which 10,000 men can be employed at once, as would be possible and practicable under this ordinance. They earnestly desire income producing improvements where the security is as ample as with the traction companies.

14 4Millions for Labor.

"It has been estimated that 72 per cent or more of the cost of these improvements will be spent for labor directly or indirectly. When the ordinance was passed, the companies promised 200 million dollars for extensions, betterments and improvements. Seventy-two per cent of this would give labor $144,000,000. At an average of $5 per day that would employ 10,000 men for eleven and a half years.

"The expenditure of $144,000,000 on wages would pay 10,000 workers from $280,000 to $400,000 a week, and keep them employed for more than seven years.

"One thing is sure, the companies could tomorrow or next day inaugurate an interexchange of transfers between the surface and elevated lines. There are no physical, financial, legal or other reasonable obstacles to the issuance and acceptance of transfers and this should be begun immediately.

"To initiate the action agreed upon at the city hall conference, the following letter, signed by Ald. Bowler, has been sent to Guy A. Richardson, president of the Chicago Railways company; Harvey B. Fleming, president of the Chicago City Railway company, and B. I. Budd, president of the Chicago Rapid Transit company:

"'You are requested to be present at a meeting of the committee on local transportation to be held in the committee rooms, city hall, Sept. 27, 1933, at 2 p. m. The committee desires to know from you personally:

"'1. The status of the plans you have undoubtedly made to interchange transfers between the surface lines and the elevated roads.

"'2. The minimum number of days you require to put that plan in actual operation.

"'3. Whether you need authority, because of the receiverships, to make that plan effective; and if you require more authorization, the nature of it.

Call for Transfer Plans.

"'It would also be informative to the committee members to see the form of the transfer you have devised, a list of the transfer points at which transfers will be issued and received, and the rules you will promulgate regarding the use of these transfers.

"'May I add that any operating or engineering assistants you may desire at the meeting will be welcome, because the purpose of the meeting is to obtain definite and progressive action on the subject outlined above.'

"This starts a campaign to obtain for the people of Chicago the benefits they should have had three years ago from the traction ordinance, and we will continue this fight until it is won and the people get what they voted for."

NEW YORK ADVISED TO CUT $35,000,000 FROM CITY BUDGET

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Grimm committee on city economies recommends administrative savings of at least $25,225,063, in its report made public today.

Lacking complete access to the files of the city departments, the committee said its eighty-page report only could point the way to savings in the cost of government. Should city officials follow the principles laid down in the report, which dealt with tax levy funds only, the committee which takes its name from its chairman, Peter Grimm, said materially greater economies could be made.

Setting $35,000,000 as the saving that would result from application of its principles, the committee said that figure might be largely increased by other decreases impossible to estimate at this time.

Contrary to the recommendations of Samuel Untermyer for general salary reductions in the higher brackets, the committee said no general salary reductions were included in the report. Mr. Untermyer, financial advisor to the city, anticipated part of the report when he recommended last Friday that the salaries of aldermen be cut from $5,000 to $2,000 and that board of estimate salaries be reduced to the 1929 level. He advocated these steps preliminary to general salary reductions for the higher city officials.

In a letter to Mr. Untermyer, chairman Grimm and other members of the committee said:

"The committee finds that no jobs in the city government were cut out as long as there was someone there to hold them. Jobs were cut out only if the holders died, retired or resigned. No one evidently ever was discharged for failure to do the work or for inefficiency. No private corporation could have gone through the hard times of the last four years under such a policy.

"Adoption of all the recommendations of the committee will not balance the budget. If the administration, however, applies the principles of these recommendations, the total savings would probably reach $35,000,000. The citizens of New York would less resent new taxes, if they saw such an economical policy followed."

U. S. ENVOY SEES HEAD OF CUBA; UNREST GROWS

Business Leaders Join Ouster Move.

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 17.—Whether Cuba will have a new government—the fourth since President Gerardo Machado fled on Aug. 12—through a bloodless revolution was the subject of a series of conferences today between all revolutionary groups and President Ramon Grau San Martin.

The approach of a crisis was seen in holding of a conference this afternoon between Grau San Martin and United States Ambassador Sumner Welles at the former's home. It was Mr. Welles' first conversation with the head of the week old revolutionary government. Neither divulged what was said.

Meanwhile, the administration was harassed by political troubles and labor disorders. Commercial forces of Havana, represented by 37 business organizations, joined the five powerful political groups which are demanding Grau San Martin's resignation.

Politics a Crazy Quilt.

Politics here, in fact, is a crazy quilt of sugar, tariff, American loans, and the ability of Cuba to stabilize a government whose checks will not bounce back from the banks. Recognition by the United States is a predominant question.

The immediate resignation of Grau San Martin was demanded by old school politicans and opposition revolutionary groups at a general conference of all factions at the home of Mrs. Amalia Machin Hupmann, a leader in the Women's Revolutionary Association of Cuba. Against this Grau San Martin proposed that he retain the presidency and that changes be made in the cabinet so as to give recognition to all groups.

Some groups favor the reinstatement of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, who was ousted as president by the army revolt two weeks ago, with a cabinet chosen with the unanimous support of those engaged in the "peace parley." Another proposal was for De Cespedes to be restored long enough for him to appoint a secretary of state acceptable to all factions. It was suggested that De Cespedes then resign.

New Rule Looms.

This would make the secretary of state successor to the presidency. This plan has been advanced by factions opposing the Grau San Martin régime for several days. The old De Cespedes government was recognized by the United States.

The conference adjourned at 9 o'clock tonight until tomorrow morning, all participants said the situation may be solved within 24 hours. Reports from the inner circle are that the leading proposal now under consideration is the organization of a coalition government.

Business men today were actively urging the stabilization of the government. The revolution is not revolving, but the Rotary club has started to rotate. It seems to have been one of the chief persuasive agencies in getting all the revolutionary political groups together for today's conference.

Demand President's Resignation.

Before the parley started many group meetings were held. Former President Mario G. Menocal, Col. Carlos Mendieta, Miguel Mariano Gomez, former mayor of Havana, and Martinez Saenz, secretary of the treasury under De Cespedes and a member of the ABC, secret revolutionary society, adhered to their proposal of last week that the Grau San Martin government must quit as a preliminary step toward forming a government that would coalesce all the revolutionary factions and restore business confidence.

Grau San Martin first met with representatives of the student directorate and other revolutionary factions opposed to him.

While the political negotiations were going on, the usual Sunday demonstration against American intervention was held in the park near the capitol. Today the anti-American meeting was held under the auspices of the Women's Anti-Imperialist League of Cuba in Fraternity square in protest against the so-called "blockade" of the island republic by some 30 American warships.

Five hundred women marched from the square to the palace. They carried banners reading "Down with the Platt Amendment," "Down with the American Sailors," and "Down with Yanqui [Yankee] Imperialism." Grau San Martin was not at the palace but sent his regrets that he was not present to receive the marchers.

Protest Against Demonstration.

Business leaders are discouraging such demonstrations. This morning Grau San Martin received members of the National Economic corporation who protested.

As affairs stood when the conferences ended tonight, the division of revolutionary forces appeared as follows:

Backing Grau San Martin are—2,500 student directorate radicals, most of the 15,000 members of the O. C. R. R., radical secret revolutionary society, 500 ultra radicals who split from the A B C organization, 12,000 members of the army and navy without the regular officers, and about 2,000 policemen.

Demanding that the Grau San Martin government resign are about 25,000 members of the ABC, about 300 of the less radical members of the O. C. R. R., the 450 deposed army and navy officers bottled up in the National hotel; Menocal, head of the Menocalistas; Mendita, head of the Nationalist union; Gomez, with a party of his own; the Mariánistas, and apparently most of the island's business men.

Seige at Hotel Continues.

The siege of the National hotel continues. Today soldiers stopped boulevard traffic and detoured it around Tarpeian rock, on which the officers are besieged. Water mains were reported shut off, but the officers got word out that they have enough water to last a week in bathtubs and the swimming pool. They added there is sufficient food in the hotel's refrigerators to last fourteen days.

Industrially and commercially the island seems to have gone nearly crazy. Business houses report no business since the short lived junta took office two weeks ago. The slump is attributed to political and economic uncertainty. Strikes are popping on and off and on again and the island is running wild with syndicalism. The idea seems to be that if wages are doubled prosperity will come jumping. Many workers now have received higher wage rates but have no work.

For instance, the cleaners doubled the price of cleaning linen suits from 50 cents to $1. Consequently Havana citizens are wearing soiled linens longer. Some are going coatless.

General Strike Threatened.

Taxicab rates after the revolution jumped from 10 cents to 20 cents in the downtown district and still are climbing. As a result more people are walking. The pressure of higher wages and no business has led to intimations that another general strike may be called unless the government is stabilized. Many shops are being closed.

Meanwhile, sporadic revolts continued in the island with the recent top sergeant, Col. Fulgencio Batista, new mulatto Napoleon of Cuba, putting them down with machine guns.

A revolt against Grau San Martin was reported to have been started by Col. Erasmo Delgado and his brother, Maj. Jose R. Delgado, and 30 others near Managua, 16 miles from Havana. The alleged conspirators were reported captured by soldiers and police from Havana this afternoon.

Authorities said that the rebels resisted until their ammunition was exhausted. The clash lasted three hours with Delgado and his men entrenched in farm buildings. Alejandro Vergara, a lawyer and member of the student directorate, was wounded. The prisoners were taken to Havana tonight.

The government tonight also reported that Col. Rosendo Collazo was arrested this afternoon at Moron, Camaguey province. He is charged with plotting a military rebellion. Fifty-five others also are said to have been arrested.

President Demands Order.

HAVANA, Sept. 17.—(AP)—With unrest growing in the interior of Cuba, President Grau San Martin today issued a statement demanding that order be restored. In the face of this order, the situation in Oriente province became increasingly critical.

At Manzanillo a general strike was declared, effective at 6 a. m. tomorrow. American companies were being boycotted and communists took part in a demonstration last night supporting strikes at two large sugar mills. One of these was the Baguanos mill, where the manager and other officials were held prisoners, supposedly until they agree to demands of workers. The other was the Mabuy mill. Manzanillo's mayor, Ricardo Munin, was forced to resign, soldiers taking over the municipal government.

Authoritative reports reaching the capital today outlined the general situation at other points as follows:

Santiago—Woolworth's five and ten cent stores were closed as a result of strikes; communists were threatening to appropriate American mills and banks; all American women were concentrated at Rente, a small town across the bay; a mob of striking domestic servants attempted to visit the exclusive Vista Alegre section to get cooperation of servants there, but were turned back by police and soldiers.

Cienfuegos—More than 700 strikers led by radical agitators besieged the nearby Soledad sugar mill, threatening to cut off power, water and communications.

Matanzas—Increasing unrest: soldiers installed ten machine guns around their barracks and distributed 50 rifles to high school students ranging in age from 10 to 18 years.

BOLIVIAN SOLDIERS GET LOST IN JUNGLE; MANY DIE OF THIRST

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Several detachments of Bolivian troops taking part in an important maneuver in the Fort Arce section of the Gran Chaco were lost in the jungle and cut off by the enemy with heavy casualties, it was revealed today in a general staff communique.

Many perished from thirst in the intense heat. They were surrounded by Paraguayan forces and isolated from their base of supplies in the war over border territory. Reinforcements were unable to come to their assistance, the communique explained, being occupied in battle on other sectors. After three days, the general staff said, the enemy strength collapsed and the Bolivians took many prisoners.

The communique added: "In the Nanawa, Gondra, Rioscallardo, and Fernandez sectors we repelled new enemy attacks. Other sections were tranquil."

MEXICO FINDS STORM DEATHS ARE BELOW 100

Gale on New England Coast Causes Worry.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Incomplete war department reports from the storm-battered area of coastal and central Mexico tonight accounted for 39 dead and 136 injured in the wake of the hurricane which struck Tampico Friday.

While previous reports had said more than 100 were killed, official figures accounted for 31 persons drowned and 100 injured by the collapse of a dam at San Luis Potosi and 8 killed and 36 injured at Tampico.

The war department said between 2,500 and 3,000 were homeless at Tampico and extensive damage was done along the entire coast. Troops were caring for injured both at Tampico and San Luis Potosi, where several hundred were without shelter.

Twenty-eight passengers and members of the crew of the vessel El Golfo, a mail steamer en route to Tuxpan from Tampico, were reported rescued as the vessel sank.

At San Luis Potosi the water poured into a low section of the city, trapping men, women and children in their homes. Others fled to higher ground.

The banana crop at Tuxpan, south of Tampico, was reported destroyed at a loss of $2,000,000.

Typhoon Hits Luzon.

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 18.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Reports from northern Luzon said today two were killed there and heavy damage resulted from a typhoon. Rivers were at flood stage and three towns in the province of Bataan, Luzon, were inundated.

Storm Heads for Maine.

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The three day old Atlantic gale was moving down east to Maine late tonight with death and damage in its path from the Carolinas to Nantucket.

The official forecast at 9 p. m., E. S. T., said the storm was about 75 miles east of Nantucket and moving northeastward, still attended by a gale over a considerable area and by winds of hurricane force over a small area.

Storm warnings had been lowered along most of the seaboard, but still flew north of Portland, Me., to Eastport, Me.

The gale, which struck the South Atlantic coast Friday, did its greatest damage in North Carolina where at least 10 persons were killed in the sound country. Five persons were reported missing at Atlantic, N. C., and about $2,000,000 damage was done in the cape country of the Carolinas and Virginia. New Jersey suffered min r damage and Massachusetts was buffeted.

The Jacksonville bound Clyde-Mallory liner Henry R. Mallory and the Ward liner Morro Castle, both delayed many hours, reported they were safe off Scotland lightship on the New Jersey coast. The latter was bound for New York from Havana.

Warnings flew from the Maine coast to Jersey, and shipping was cautioned as far south as Atlantic City.

Oil Ship in Distress.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The coast guard cutter Modoc, out from Wilmington, N. C., was speeding late today to assist the tank ship Fuel Oil, reported crippled about 70 miles northeast of Frying Pan shoals lightship. The rudder of the Fuel Oil was damaged, it was reported.

Another job for coast guard craft following the storm was being performed in Hampton Roads by the Mascoutin. The Albert S. Fall, a schooner, was aground off Sewall's Point, southeast of Channel buoy No. 3. The Mascoutin went to its assistance.

5 KILLED IN IOWA AUTO COLLISION; SIX ARE INJURED

One Dead and 6 Hurt Near Peoria.

Waverly, Ia., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Five persons were killed and six were injured today in an automobile crash at a highway intersection seven miles east of Waverly. The dead:

HOWARD HARRINGTON, 60, Waterloo.
HARRY KIESTER, 60, Waterloo.
VERN KING, 40, Waterloo.
THE REV. JOSEPH KACERA, Cedar Rapids.
FRANK KACERA, 10, son of the Rev. Mr. Kacera.

The injured:

Michael Kacera, 12, son of the Rev. Mr. Kacera, internal injuries; Charles A. Kacera, Cedar Rapids, brother of the Rev. Mr. Kacera, shock and cuts; Mrs. Anna Kacera, Cedar Rapids, mother of the Rev. and Charles Kacera, cuts and possible internal injuries; Mrs. Joseph Kacera, Cedar Rapidsids, wife of the Rev. Mr. Kacera, broken arm, cuts, and possible internal injuries; John Kacera, 15, son of Charles A. Kacera, shock and cuts.

Mrs. Charles A. Kacera, Cedar Rapids, suffered from shock.

Witnesses said the crash occurred while both cars were traveling at a high rate of speed.

One Killed, Six Hurt at Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—One man was killed and six other persons were injured tonight in an automobile collision on Galena road five miles north of Peoria.

Ray Helfter, 22 years old, East Peoria, driver of one of the cars, was killed. Miss Mary Mullins, 28, suffered a fractured skull and is in a critical condition.

The others injured are Benjamin Hammer, 28; Edward Wys, 21, both of Peoria; Bruce Lyman, 25; Lester Melvin, 25, both of East Peoria, and Fred Vanz, 21, Washington, Ill.

ARTIST KILLED BY AUTO.

E. J. Krasa, 40 years old, a commercial artist living at St. Procopius' college at Lisle, Ill., was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile in Chicago road, two miles east of Naperville, in Du Page county. The car was overturned in the effort of its driver, Walter Staats, 4629 Main street, Downers Grove, to avoid hitting Krasa. Staats, who is editor of the Downers Grove Reporter, his wife, Elizabeth, and their child, June, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Younts, passengers, were slightly hurt. Staats told police the Karsa was walking in the direction of traffic and that the accident was unavoidable.

One automobile fatality in Chicago increased the Cook county toll since Jan. 1 to 733 last night. The victim:

A man believed to be Ferdinand Salek, 50 years old. Killed at 26th and Rockwell streets by a car driven by Thomas E. Holihan, 1124 South Scoville avenue, Oak Park, a mail carrier.

Charles Strand, 45 years old, 8229 South Ashland avenue, was taken to the South Town hospital yesterday suffering from a skull fracture. He was struck by a hit and run car in front of 5607 South Ashland avenue.

CANAL VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

The body of a man taken from the drainage canal at Lockport on Saturday was identified yesterday as that of John A. Anderson, 130 West 112th street, 50 years old, a builder, by his brother, Carl, with whom he lived.

25 PLANES JOIN HUNT FOR MISSING PILOT; FATE STILL MYSTERY

At nightfall no clew had been received as to the fate or whereabouts of the 25 year old flyer.

The air searchers—25 army, private, and airline planes—were augmented today by scores of men and boys on the ground and in boats.

SCORE RESCUED WHEN STIFF WIND DISABLES BOATS

A west wind which reached near gale velocity at times swept Chicago and the suburban area yesterday afternoon, making itself particularly felt on Lake Michigan, where it disabled several small sail and motor craft. Airplane travel was hampered except on the mail and regular passenger lines. No unusual property damage was reported.

More than twenty persons were rescued in lake mishaps by coast guard crews. Two men and a woman were saved by the South Chicago coast guards after their outboard motor boat, the Shad, had sunk on striking a swell near the South Chicago harbor. The three, Henry Deissman, 7724 Phillips avenue; Miss Jeanne Kohn, 1646 74th street, and her brother, Stanley Kohn of Joliet, swam to a breakwater, where they were picked up by guards.

Boats along the north shore were hard hit, giving the Wilmette coast guards a busy afternoon. Occupants of six disabled craft were saved, some just in time.

The sloop Sepia, carrying five guests and the owner, Walter J. Lawton, 3136 Sheridan road, Winnetka, was caught in a squall five miles off shore and developed several leaks. It flew distress signals, attracting aid shortly afterward.

A few minutes later the Lone Wolf, a cabin cruiser carrying James Fay of Wilmette and a 12 year old boy, piled up on the Glencoe shoals, half a mile off shore. It was pulled off to deep water. W. J. Peacock, 128 6th street, Wilmette, owns the boat. Earlier coast guards towed in the Mary Jeanne, a launch; the auxiliary yawls the Ledoc and the Shalimar, and a small outboard motor boat. Harry Nicholas of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club and a guest were rescued from the outboard boat.

END MILK STRIKE; BADGER FARMERS FIGHT PRICE PACT

Plan to Reduce Wisconsin Purchases Opposed.

The milk strike of insurgent dairymen in McHenry and Kane counties, which had virtually broken down Saturday after a week's picketing and some violence, was ended officially by its leaders early yesterday.

Meanwhile, the large dairy companies and the Pure Milk association, representing the 17,000 dairymen in the Chicago area who supply them with milk, were seeking approval in Washington of a new agreement which will boost the retail price of milk a cent a quart, to 11 cents, and pass on the increased revenue to the farmers.

Opposition has already developed to the proposal, not on the part of consumers, but from Wisconsin dairymen who under the plan will lose a Chicago market for about 500,000 pounds of milk a day. They have retained Attorney Herman N. Salen of Waukesha to appear at Washington in opposition to the proposal to buy the added half million pounds a day from Illinois members of the Pure Milk association.

Drivers Ask Share of Increase.

Members of the milk wagon drivers union also object to the companies passing the full cent on to the farmers, asserting that the driver should get part of it, it was disclosed last evening by Robert Fitchie, president of the union. The union has been carrying on negotiations with the companies for renewal of its wage agreement, which lapsed on May 1, for some time.

"When the milk price was reduced from 11 to 9 cents," said Mr. Fitchie, "the drivers took a 21 per cent cut. Their pay was cut from $50 to $40 a week, on the average, and there were some reductions in commissions. Now the companies have gone ahead with a proposal to the farmers to raise prices to the consumer and prices paid the farmers, without consulting the union."

Mr. Fitchie went to Washington last week, he said, to discuss the situation with officials of the agricultural administration act, which has jurisdiction over milk trade agreements. They advised him, he said, to take the matter of wages up with NRA officials.

New Factor in Price Scheme.

The Wisconsin milk is used to furnish cream for Chicago. Transfer of the market to Illinois farmers will introduce a new factor into the base surplus plan under which they have been paid for their milk in the past. Under the base-surplus plan the dairy companies buy from each member of the association a quantity of milk equal to his average production during three months five years ago, at a price fixed for fluid milk. This price at present is $1.75 a hundred pounds.

This quota is the farmer's base. What milk he produces over his base is the surplus, for which he is paid at the price which the milk will yield when made into butter, currently about 77 cents.

Under the new plan with the 1 cent a quart increase in the retail price, the dairy companies will increase their base purchases by about 35 per cent, involving the purchase of an added 500,000 pounds daily. They will pay $2.10 a hundred pounds instead of the present $1.75 for milk sold in the fluid state, and in addition for each 100 pound quota of such milk they will buy for $1.45 a hundred 35 pounds of milk to be converted into cream.

The combination of these two prices will give members of the Pure Milk association a so-called blended price of about $1.95 a hundred pounds in place of the former base price of $1.75 a hundred.

Likely to Expel Insurgents.

The association directors will meet within a few days to consider the cases of those milk strikers who were members of the association. The insurgents will not be taken back into the organization, it was indicated.

In announcing the end of the strike E. L. Bost, strike leader, also announced that the strikers had entered a contract to furnish milk to the Edgewater Dairy company and other independents who do not deal with the Pure Milk association.

The strikers demanded a flat price of $2.50 a hundred pounds for their milk, with abolishment of the base and surplus system. Bost asserted that the contract with the independent dairy companies is on the basis which the strikers demanded, but admitted that the farmers will get only $1.50 a hundred. The additional $1 a hundred pounds is to be paid into a "strike fund," he said.

POLICE LIEUTENANT SHOT AND SUSPENDED; WOMAN IS SOUGHT

Lieut. Paul Maggio of Melrose Park was under suspension yesterday as the result of a pistol wound in his shoulder said to have been incurred during a quarrel with an unidentified young woman in a tavern at 3119 Lake street, Melrose Park. The woman is being sought.

Anton Joncha, chairman of the Melrose Park police board, who, with Police Chief Arthur Leeseberg, is investigating the case, said that the shooting occurred about 2:30 a. m. Friday. Lieut. Maggio and the woman appeared at the tavern and had several drinks, he said. Then a quarrel started. Mrs. Julia Brazanskas, owner of the tavern, told Chairman Joncha that she heard the woman exclaim: "I'll kill anybody I see!" Then the woman began firing, Mrs. Brazanskas said.

Anton Tarutis, 1402 North 31st avenue, Melrose Park, the bartender, also said the woman began firing. Patrons and employés ran out of the place, one of them putting out the lights. Ten bullet holes were found later in the walls of the saloon. Policemen W. E. May and Emil Ristau arrived. One of them took Maggio to the Westlake hospital, and the other, on Maggio's orders, released the woman without getting her name. Maggio refused to give her name, saying: "I'll handle this matter myself." As a result Chief Leeseburg suspended him. He will go to trial before the police board within ten days.

RIOTING, ORATORY REVEAL SPLIT IN AUSTRIAN REGIME

Vice Chancellor Attacks Fascist Heimwehr.

VIENNA, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Vice Chancellor Franz Winkler turned his oratorical fire today on the Austrian Nazis and on the Fascist Heimwehr wing of the Dollfuss government, and the resulting outburst of rioting and speechmaking echoed over Austria.

"We are not going to fight the Nazis merely to help Austro-Fascism into the saddle," he declared at the massmeeting in Graz which signified the opening of his "national corporative front" movement.

Nazis "Bomb" Meeting.

The Nazis themselves noisily cleared up the question of whether the Winkler faction was likely to absorb "orphaned" followers of the outlawed Hitler movement. They turned the Winkler massmeeting into a riot of smoke bombs and singing of "Deutschland Ueber Alles"—imperial Germany's national anthem—and caused an uproar in the city with a series of fire alarms and unexplained mobilization of all postoffice trucks in front of the police station. Twenty persons were injured before mounted men restored order.

Today's explosive outbursts of rioting and oratory did something toward dissipating the fog which has been hanging over the tangled politics of this troubled republic, but revealed even more sharply the bitterness of internal strife in the Dollfuss government.

Austrian Battle Lines.

Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss is fighting on two fronts—against Hitlerism and against Marxism.

Winkler is fighting on three fronts—against the Heimwehr [home guard] inside the government, against the Socialists outside the government, and against the outlawed Nazis.

The Heimwehr is also fighting on three fronts—against Winkler, against the Socialists and against the Nazis.

Chancellor Dollfuss has not yet indicated clearly whether he will turn toward the Heimwehr or toward the Winkler faction. After today's meeting at Graz Winkler told the press that the time had come when Chancellor Dollfuss simply must make up his mind.

Attacks Heimwehr.

Winkler flatly accused Starhemberg's Heimwehr of demanding a monopoly of state and state power "for themselves."

"The political offensives of the Heimwehr lately have taken such a form that further coöperation with them appears to me to be most difficult," he said.

From across the country at Kufstein, on the Austro-German border, the Heimwehr leaders, Richard Steidle and Prince Starhemberg, sharply returned Winkler's fire. Steidle, asserting the Heimwehr was not merely playing soldier but was "in bloody earnest," warned Dollfuss that liberalism, Marxism, and corruption must not be allowed to enter the back door under the banners of Winkler's movement.

Prince Starhemberg praised Dollfuss for proclaiming the day of liberalism and materialism over, but said:

"It is not sufficient to declare this. It is necessary to clean house in the government. We must oust those who will not coöperate sincerely. The Heimwehr demands once and for all a housecleaning."

Chinese Residents Hail Jap Move to Annex Their City

SHANHAIKWAN, China, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A delegation sent to petition Gov. Henry Pu-Yi of Manchukuo for incorporation of Shanhaikwan into that state returned today to find the population celebrating the move under the direction of Japanese.

Japanese airplanes were flying over the city and surrounding area, dropping propaganda material which urged that the entire region also be taken into Manchukuo.

The city has been more or less Japanese domination ever since it was occupied as a strategic move in the occupation of the province of Jehol last winter, and the postoffice is isolated from the Chinese service. It is on the Peiping-Mukden railroad where the Great Wall of China comes down to the sea.

Charges Japan Uses Pressure.

TIENTSIN, China, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Gov. Yu Hsueh-chung of Hopei province charged today that Japanese military forces in Manchuria are putting pressure on the Chinese population of Shanhaikwan and the surrounding area to ask its annexation of Manchuria.

Gov. Yu said that the Japanese control of the city enables them "to force celebrations which have been going on there in the last two days with the object of presenting the appearance that the Chinese desire annexation."

The Japanese information bureau here stated that a large area around Shanhaikwan to the south of the Great Wall petitioned to Henry Pu-Yi, governor of the state of Manchukuo, asking for incorporation.

China to Continue Resistance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 18 [Monday].—The Chinese government, taking advantage of the second anniversary of the Japanese occupation of Manchuria, today reaffirmed its settled policy of "long sustained resistance against Japan, refusal to recognize Manchukuo, and continuance of efforts to recover control of the four northeastern provinces."

However, there was an indication of a slight modification of Chinese policy toward Japan as a result of the decision to send the Chinese minister, Chiang Tso-ping, back to his post at Tokio. He vacated the post during the Sino-Japanese hostilities in north China last spring.

Pleads for Unity.

Wang Ching-wei, president of the executive yuan and foreign minister, declared that "China is in a precarious position, menaced on all sides by foreign aggression, but there is no use getting excited or angered. Referring to the loss of Manchuria, he urged China to "work unceasingly for rehabilitation, which necessitates the coördination and harmonization of foreign and domestic policies."

Nanking has decided not to heed the Japanese threat to bomb Kalgan from airplanes in order to maintain control of Kuyuan, in Chahar provice, which was occupied last week by the forces of Gen. Sung Chieh-yuan. The occupation, the Japanese allege, was in violation of the Tangku truce.

Advertising Men Meet in World Congress at Rome

ROME, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The international advertising congress was inaugurated today at the Capitol building by Bruno Biagi, undersecretary of corporations, in the presence of numerous officials and delegates from 12 nations. Gilbert T. Hodges, president of the American Advertising association, spoke, calling attention to President Roosevelt's recovery program.

GERMAN RABBI ASKS POLISH JEWS TO END BOYCOTT

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, Sept. 17.—A sensation has been caused here, especially among Polish Jews, by the unexpected arrival of Dr. Hildesheimer, chief rabbi of Berlin, who attempted to dissuade the Polish Jews from continuing their boycott on German goods. He is believed to be acting as a deputy of the German government and industrialists.

The rabbi, who has conferred behind closed doors with the president of the Warsaw Jewish community and other prominent Jews, is seeking particularly to keep the Polish rabbis from a decision to proclaim the excommunication of Jews buying German wares. The Polish Jews replied that they would continue the boycott until Chancellor Hitler ceased to persecute the Jews.

BALANCE BUDGET OR LEAVE GOLD, FRANCE WARNED

Deficit of $350,000,000 Is Predicted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—A warning that France cannot stay on the gold standard unless its budget is balanced was sounded by Frederic Jenny, leading French financial authority, in a discussion of France's monetary position in the semi-official Temps today.

Next year's budget deficit is calculated at 6 billion francs—roughly $350,000,000 at current exchange—and there is no indication that the mood of parliament has changed from last year, when the cabinet was forced to forget about the major part of the deficit in order to keep from being overthrown.

While pointing out that France's gold position is at present stronger than ever and that even devaluation of the American dollar does not, as President Roosevelt believes, mean that France must abandon gold, Jenny admits the soundness of the Roosevelt declaration in one respect, that an unbalanced budget would drive France off.

French Investors Nervous.

This is true for France, says Jenny, even though the United States was not forced off gold when the budget went unbalanced in recent years. He warns the government that the crux of the situation lies in the state of mind of the French investor, who is admittedly getting more and more nervous.

"An unbalanced budget will directly affect the currency only on the day when the treasury, obliged to cover a deficit, can no longer borrow in the normal way and asks for advances from the bank of issue or itself issues paper money," Jenny said.

Inflation Great Risk.

"If in France the budgetary deficit is proportionately smaller than that of America the risks of bringing monetary inflation is greater because the investors are more fearful and more distrustful and because public credit is as a result more sensitive. The reason for this extreme sensitivity lies chiefly in the still recent devaluation of the franc [1926].

"The French public has not forgotten the bitter monetary experiences it underwent several years ago. It knows inflation and where it leads. And if it fears a budgetary deficit, it is because it is not ignorant of the fact that when a deficit becomes chronic it provokes inflation sooner or later."

Furthermore Jenny pointed out that the conversion loan a year ago added to the nervousness of French investors and makes more dangerous than ever any signs of weakness in government finances.

Germany Must Have Arms or Quit Parley, Frick Claims

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RUDOLSTADT, Germany, Sept. 7.—Germany's attitude on the disarmament question was more clearly foreshadowed here today by Home Minister Wilhelm Frick when he proclaimed: "The German people will not allow themselves to be further treated as the whipping boy of the whole world.

"If it is further attempted to force us into this rôle and to refuse us equality, then noby can prevent Germany from refusing to participate any longer in this play and withdrawing from the halls of international conferences."

Frick was addressing 80,000 Hitler youths and girls whom he told "the reich of Adolf Hitler is the reich of youth. The first task is to obtain for Germany the position to which her glorious past and achievements entitle her."

Davis Meets MacDonald.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Disarmament talks, having experienced a dull season in London, are moving to Paris tomorrow.

Capt. R. Anthony Eden, under secretary of foreign affairs, left today for appointments with Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour of France. He will be followed tomorrow by Norman H. Davis. The American ambassador at large is breakfasting with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in Downing street in the morning.

Davis' appointment with MacDonald was arranged chiefly so he could deliver President Roosevelt's personal message on disarmament. He is carrying a number of these addressed to heads of European governments from his head, but how many will be delivered still is uncertain. He will try to reach both Rome and Berlin on the tour before the conference bureau (steering committee) meets in Geneva Oct. 9.

In the Paris talks the three governments hope to reconcile the viewpoints on arms supervision which all will accept in principle and decide if possible whether and how much the French can be induced to disarm while temporary arms control over an experimental period is enforced. The Anglo-American delegates more or less agree there must be some disarmament and that the experimental trial must be as short as possible.

Daladier to Geneva.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Premier Edouard Daladier himself will go to Geneva to defend France's demand for an international armaments control commission, the noted political writer, Pertinax, announces in tomorrow's Echo de Paris.

Daladier's decision to make a personal appearance is significant in that it indicates France considers the present situation critical in view of Germany's violations of the treaties of peace, Pertinax says. He points out that "the premier is not one of those ministers who burns to appear on the international scene. His decision attests the fact that he takes seriously, very seriously, the present state of things. Germany is violating treaties and it is important that nobody be ignorant of it."

On the eve of the Franco-British armaments talk in Paris Pertinax reveals that Downing street is now in possession of a detailed list submitted by France of all of Germany's violations of the Versailles treaty. What is more important, Britain has not made any reply to Paris regarding the document.

Fears Exposing Facts.

Pertinax interprets this to mean that Prime Minister MacDonald, who even failed to give Capt. Eden instruction personally before the Paris conversations, fears that revelation of the facts of Germany's rearmament would be the inevitable cause of a breakdown of the Geneva conference, which Britain wishes to avoid.

The French writer attacks MacDonald not only for failing to send Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, himself to conversations of such importance but because his stand "shows clearly that the exigencies of reality escape him."

The temper of the French people and officials seems adamant against disarmament. All that can certainly be said about France's position is that there must be rigid, automatic, and permanent control of arms, and that this must be tried by experience over a period of years before she will disarm. This atmosphere of pessimism is the usual thing in Paris before and during disarmament negotiations.

We never consider a suit sold until the customer buys another

Our salesmen know that. Simply because they've written up your order doesn't mean that they consider the sale closed. They'll be waiting for you to come back again—and not until then will they be sure that they have "sold" you a suit of clothes.

But these clothes of ours this fall sell themselves. Take our Tipperary Twist for instance. Here is a suit that will bring you back again and again, just as it is bringing scores of other Chicago men back for their second and their third and their fourth Tipperary Twist.

ELEVEN COURTS TO SPEED UP WAR ON CRIME TODAY

Chief Justice Sullivan Revises Calendars.

The war on crime is expected to get up full speed again today when eleven judges, under the leadership of Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan, start work to clean up the Criminal court calendar.

Their immediate goal is to establish as a permanent institution in Chicago a system of criminal justice under which a defendant indicted for a major crime of violence will always find a judge ready to try him the moment he is indicted. Judge Sullivan said yesterday that the court calendars have been revised so that pending indictments for such crimes will be tried first.

Jurors Are Available.

Included in this category are murder, robbery, burglary, automobile larceny and rape. Jurors are now available and witnesses have been notified to appear and prosecute such cases. It is the belief of prosecutors and judges experienced in criminal trial work that all pending cases of this type can be cleared up and a policy of immediate trial for all such offenses instituted within two months.

During the war on crime which was started in August by the then chief justice of the Criminal court, Judge John Prystalski, it was demonstrated that it is possible to deal out quick justice in isolated cases. Morris Cohen, now in the county jail under sentence of death in the electric chair for the murder of Policeman Joseph Hastings, committed the murder in a holdup Aug. 14. He was tried, convicted, and formally sentenced to die on Aug. 24, just ten days later.

Work by All Judges.

To make such procedures possible for all criminals charged with crimes of violence will require work on the part of all of the judges assigned to the court, it was pointed out by observers. As an example of efficient courtroom administration they pointed to the case of Judge Denis E. Sullivan, who gave up part of his vacation and volunteered to sit in the Criminal court during the drive on crime.

On one day Judge Sullivan had four juries at the same time considering verdicts upon evidence heard in his court. As quickly as one jury retired Judge Sullivan started trial of another case. Frequently, in the past, it has been the practice of a judge, when a jury retired, to stop work until it brought in its verdict, hours later.

When Chief Justice Prystalski relinquished that office on Sept. 8, there were 866 indictments pending in the Criminal court. The action of the grand jury has increased this total by about 150 or 200 since.

Delays Are Explained.

The crime war slackened its pace somewhat during the first two weeks of September. During August Judge Prystalski and his group of volunteer judges sentenced 251 criminals to the penitentiary for maximum terms and imposed three death sentences. In the last two weeks the new group of judges imposed 28 penitentiary sentences and one to the electric chair.

Court attachés explained, however, that the new group was handicapped by the delay always incident to a change of court administration and by the fact that cases were not ready for trial. This situation has been rectified with the opening of the regular court term, it is said, and trials should be speedy even though criminals, unable to bargain with prosecutors, demand jury trials.

List of Judges.

The judges, who will sit in the Criminal court, besides the chief justice, are Donald S. McKinlay, Michael Feinberg, William V. Brothers, Harry B. Miller, Charles P. Molthrop, Francis B. Allegretti, Benjamin B. Epstein, Walter Steffen, and Thomas J. Lynch. All have full calendars of crime violence cases. Judge Michael McKinley will hold Criminal court in the county building, specializing in so-called bail cases, which include confidence game, embezzlement, and conspiracy.

Several murder cases, one in which a policeman was the victim, are scheduled for disposition this week. The state's attorney's office announced that it will attempt to send more killers to the chair. So far four murderers, three of them police slayers, are under the death sentence.

Tony Rocco, Emil Manzone, Richard Basile, Dominick De Nardi, and George Chevas are scheduled to go to trial tomorrow before Judge Harry B. Miller for the murder on Jan. 21 of Policeman Maurice Marcusson. The death penalty will be asked for at least three of the group, Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty said.

Killed While on Duty.

Marcusson was killed while acting as guard at a loan office in a building at 323 Jackson boulevard. The state charges that the defendants intended to rob the dress shop of Sam Schuman in the same building when the policeman encountered them. Marcusson ordered Rocco, Manzone, and De Nardi, who had entered the building, to take their hands from their pockets. Instead they shot the officer.

The policeman returned the fire and before he was mortally wounded shot Rocco twice. The latter was apprehended by another policeman. In his pocket was found a revolver with five empty shells. He subsequently confessed the crime and said that Basile was the driver of the bandit car. Chevas is charged only with being an accessory in that he allowed the group to use his car. Manzone was recently arrested in New Orleans and returned to Chicago.

Rocco, who is believed to be the actual killer, was first convicted of crime on Nov. 14, 1927, and placed on probation for six months on a charge of larceny. On Dec. 11, 1928, he was sentenced to Pontiac for automobile larceny and paroled Jan. 1, 1931. He was charged with robbery in the fall of 1932, but the grand jury returned a no bill in his case.

Slaying of Milk Driver.

Joseph Francis, 35 years old, colored, is scheduled to go to trial this morning before Judge Donald McKinlay for the murder of Joseph Hartell, 28 years old, 3423 North Irving avenue, a milk wagon driver. Hartell was slain on Aug. 2 during a holdup. The murder occurred in front of 5019 Forrestville avenue. The death penalty is to be asked.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney said yesterday that he has instructed his assistants not to waive charges under the habitual criminal act in any case when they can be made. If criminals refuse to plead guilty under the act or waive a jury for a bench trial, then his assistants are to insist on a jury trial, Mr. Courtney said. The prosecution can refuse to waive a jury in any case.

The trial of James W. Stevens and his son, Ernest J. Stevens, former officials of the bankrupt Illinois Life Insurance company, on charges of conspiracy to embezzle $1,000,000 of the company assets, will be continued for a week when it is called today before Judge Feinberg.

EARLY HEARING SEEN IN STOREY ALIENATION SUIT

$200,000 Sought from Rail Man.

With the opening of the Superior and Circuit courts today after the summer vacation, several important cases that have been in litigation for a long time are expected to get a hearing within a month

One case, pending since December, 1931, is the $200,000 alienation of affections suit brought against William B. Storey, 199 Lake Shore drive, former president of the Santa Fé railroad, and his wife, Laura. The complainant is the Rev. Ulysses Grant Warren, a Congregational minister, who was dismissed by his congregation in Corning, N. Y., shortly before he filed the suit.

His suit charges that the love of his wife, Edith, who is a cousin of Mrs. Storey, was alienated by the Storeys. Mrs. Warren won a divorce at Minden, Nev., in 1932.

Storeys File Demurrer.

Mr. Warren is represented by Attorney William B. Gemmill. Attorneys for the Storeys filed a demurrer to the suit, which will be argued in the Superior court this week. In the event the demurrer is overruled, the case is expected to go to trial shortly.

Another alienation of affections suit pending in the Superior court is the $1,000,000 action brought by Mrs. Grace W. Willett, 2130 Lincoln Park West, against Mrs. Mary Cave Hall, 5490 South Shore drive. Mrs. Willett alleges that Mrs. Hall, a wealthy widow, alienated the affections of her husband, Howard T. Willett, teaming company official. Attorney Bennison F. Bartel, representing Mrs. Willett, last spring tried to force an early trial but was blocked by technical objections made by Mrs. Hall's counsel. It was said then that the case would go to trial this month.

Seeks Alimony Reduction.

Attorneys for Henry K. Chapin Jr., 2430 Lake View avenue, are expected to appear in the Superior court this week to ask a reduction in the $15 a week temporary alimony he was ordered to pay last March to his wife, Mrs. Ada Bruce Chapin of Boston, who has a divorce bill pending. Chapin is the scion of a socially prominent family and is the secretary of the Lake Coal and Dock company. Mrs. Chapin, who is the daughter of a Boston physician, charged cruelty in her divorce bill. Her attorneys said yesterday that Chapin is in arrears in his alimony payments.

In the Circuit court, a final decree will soon be entered in the separate maintenance suit brought by Mrs. Lila Hotz Haskell against Frederick Tudor Haskell, banker, who resides at 1200 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Haskell has been receiving $1,000 a month temporary alimony since a court hearing in January, 1932. She charged cruelty. Mr. Haskell is 77 years old.

'When We Were Girls'

Fourteen Chicago women, all of whom were born in Chebanse, Ill., renewed home town memories yesterday at a dinner and reunion in the home of Mrs. Minnie Allen Whiting, 3519 West 65th street. Many of those present had not seen each other for more than 50 years. The day was spent chatting about what "they did when they were girls at Chebanse." The youngest woman present was 38 years old, and the oldest was 72. It was decided to make the gathering an annual affair.

'Converted' at Camp Meet, He Kills Two, Then Self

Neosho, Mo., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Animated by what officers described as religious frenzy, Harry Ager, 57, a farmer, today shot and killed two neighboring farmers, seriously wounded a third and died by his own hand in a burning barn. George Clapp, 50, and his son, Glenn, 20, were killed by blasts from Ager's shotgun. A second son of the elder Clapp, Curtis, 17, was shot in one side and in one arm. H. O. Buchanan, deputy sheriff, said Ager had attended a camp meeting at Goodman last night and "was converted." He was to have been baptized today, the officer said.

RABER IS READY TO SPEED TRIAL OF RACKET CASE

Prepares for Action in October.

Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber said yesterday that he is prepared for trial next month of the indictment charging Attorney Aaron Sapiro, Al Capone, Murray Humphries, Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], Dr. Benjamin M. Squires and nineteen others with a racket conspiracy.

The return to Chicago on Saturday of Sapiro, a nationally known lawyer who vainly resisted extradition from New York, will permit the state to proceed with the racket prosecution, Mr. Raber said.

Doubts Capone Will Come.

It has not been definitely decided whether the government will send Capone here from Atlanta penitentiary for trial, and Humphries, who succeeded Capone as Public Enemy No. 1, is still a fugitive. Prosecutor Raber said he doubted if the government would release Capone from prison to stand trial.

"We don't need the presence of Capone and Humphries, however, to prove that a conspiracy to control prices, to exact tribute from business men and working men, existed here," said Mr. Raber. "We can go to trial with those already arrested and under bond and can try the others later."

Charge Gang Rule of Industry.

Sapiro, a noted organizer of farm cooperatives, was counselor for the Chicago Laundry Owners' association until last spring. Allegations in the indictment declare that this was one of the organizations that ruled the laundry industry through the power of Capone and Humphries.

Sapiro was brought to Chicago from New York by First Assistant State's Attorney Grover C. Niemeyer. He spent two hours in jail and then was released on $10,000 bail through an arrangement by Judge James Fardy, who was acting chief justice of the Criminal court.

MOVIE SLUGGING REVEALS REVOLT AGAINST MALOY

Renew Search for Quinn on Assault Charge.

Emmett M. Quinn, a motion picture operator who doubles as a dentist, was being hunted yesterday by police who have a warrant for his arrest on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. The police said they would not rely on promises of union officials that Quinn would surrender today in the court of Judge Joseph H. McGarry.

The complaining witness is Clyde Osterberg, 4716 Winthrop avenue, who was beaten last Friday in the headquarters of the motion picture operators' union. The beating is said to have been an incident in a new revolt against the rule of "Czar" Thomas Maloy, business agent of the motion picture operators' union.

Son of Labor Leader.

Osterberg, an operator whose father was a well known labor official, procured a warrant for the arrest of Quinn after charging that Quinn had beaten him when he tried to see Maloy. Osterberg said he wanted to complain that Quinn was withholding money from him and other operators. Quinn, according to Osterberg, is chief motion picture operator at the Chicago theater and practices dentistry at 55 East Washington street.

About 200 operators have broken away from Maloy and have organized the Independent Union of Motion Picture Operators, Inc., the complainant said, with Erwin J. Savage as business manager. The rebel union has the backing of the state's attorney's office, Osterberg said, because of the tactics used by the Maloy crowd. His own difficulties with the union were not due to the formation of the independent union, Osterberg said, but because his pay was being collected by Quinn, who only gave him part of it.

Operator Is Slain.

The revolt against Maloy followed the killing of Fred Oser, an operator, in union headquarters by Ralph O'Hara, assistant to Maloy. Many of the revolters are said to have been threatened. For that reason Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said yesterday he believes there is more to the beating of Osterberg than has been revealed.

BANK ROBBER TRAIL LOST.

Gallipolis, O., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The trail lost to bloodhounds, a sheriff's posse today abandoned search for one of the suspected robbers of the Citizens Bank of Albany, O., who deserted his auto yesterday and fled under a hail of bullets into a thicket near Kanagua.

Pressed Toward Inflation.

The President is being hard pressed to exercise his power to issue 3 billion dollars of greenbacks. If he refuses, the inflationists will bring great pressure to bear on congress in January to start the money printing presses.

To the returning sojourner nothing is more striking than the complete transformation of the government. The conservatives that dominated the government up to March 4 have disappeared from the scene. The liberals and radicals who, for more than a decade have pilloried Republican administrations as protectors of special privilege and tyranny, are now in control of the government machinery, making over the entire scheme of things in the interest of the proletariat.

G. O. P. Radicals Busy.

The radical Democrats and radical Republicans who supported the elder La Follette for President in 1924 have come into their own at last. They are proceeding to carry into effect the principles for which La Follette contended—and then some. Most prominent among the new powers that be are the union labor forces that constituted La Follette's chief support.

Right and left bowers of blustering Gen. Hugh Johnson, chief of the NRA, are Donald Richberg, radical labor lawyer, who wrote the labor sections of the recovery legislation, and Eddie McGrady, for many years congressional lobbyist for the American Federation of Labor. Behind them is William Green, president of the federation, which from a period of decline that seemed to threaten its extinction a few months ago, has been lifted to a position of greater power than ever before by the rôle assigned organized labor in the NRA.

Peek Previously Defeated.

No less powerful than Gen. Johnson in passing sentence of life or death on industrial units is George N. Peek, dictator of agriculture, who achieved his present eminence after fighting one losing battle after another for farm relief from the day he brought the first draft of the McNary-Haugen bill to Washington.

The big three of the new deal are Johnson, Peek, and Ickes—Harold L. Ickes, secetary of the interior, dictator of oil and public works administrator, charged with the disbursement of the three billion three hundred millions of easy money. Always a liberal, Ickes fought with the President's famous fifth cousin at Armageddon, insurged in the Republican party under the banner of Hiram Johnson and organized the radical Republican support of Franklin Roosevelt in the 1932 campaign for which he was rewarded by appointment to the cabinet.

Brain Trust Still Busy.

Hovering in the background of the star performers now on the stage are the professors of the brain trust, who, despite the not exactly voluntary defection of Raymond Moley, are, by reason of continual accretions, more numerous than ever. In the background are the professors but really on the firing line if the great economic experiment, which is of their devising, should fail they will be the first victims to be thrown to the lions.

It's surely a new deal.

Things that were once considered very wicked are now highly moral. Much that was once disreputable is now wholly respectable. The Sherman anti-trust law has been thrown into the ash can. Combination in restraint of trade is now lawful—under that government supervision designed to make all trusts into those good trusts envisaged by T. R. The boycott labor unions were once punished for practicing is the golden rule of the NRA. We pledge ourselves to boycott any one who does not sport the Blue Eagle. Even the pork barrel has been sanctified. Those ladlings of public works construction funds from the federal treasury are no longer "pork," they are "reëmployment money."

Cites Cromwell's Adage.

To the returning denizen Washington appears to be a welter of confusion. The new deal and the new economic order are being put into operation in a multitude of directions, each involving a multitude of details, the complete comprehension of which is reputed to baffle the intelligence of the head new dealer himself. Mr. Roosevelt will tell you quite cheerfully that he does not see the end of it all, but he is buoyed up by the Cromwellian confidence that "None goes so far as he who does not see where he is going."

One hears that Roosevelt already has conceded that, if his recovery program fails, he will go down in history as the worst President—and the last President, as he hastened to add. The last Democratic President, a cynical Republican moved to amend.

Senator Predicts Dictator.

One hears that a conservative Democratic senator from the south has confided to his friends the belief that, whether the recovery program succeeds, or fails, there never will be another presidential election — that there will be a sure-enough dictator in the White House by 1936.

The creation of the vast machinery to carry out the gigantic undertaking of making over the economic order and the confusion attendant thereon are reminiscent of the early days of America's participation in the world war. But the war objective was pretty clear to everybody. The objective of this war on the depression is variously described by various observers.

To some, it is only a temporary scheme to restore the purchasing power necessary to revive industry. To others, it is a permanent modification of the capitalistic system, calculated to produce a redistribution of the national income in such manner as to give employers less and employés more of the profits. To others, it is a bridge to the establishment of a still more radical order resembling socialism, communism, or Fascism.

Recalls Days of War.

Just as in war days, Washington has been invaded by an army of swivel chair executives who have proceeded to take charge of the lives of the citizens, to tell them what they may do and what they may not do, to exhort them, to instruct them and to threaten them with dire consequences if they fail to obey orders. Each one of the hundreds of new executives has brought with him a small army of retainers whom he has installed as his office force. Many of the executives have their sweeties presiding in their office reception rooms and their relatives and friends established in other positions appertaining to generous salaries.

Office furnishings by the carload have been acquired. Office forces and field forces have been organized. Regional, district and local offices have been set up in thousands of localities. Maps with the red, blue and yellow pins, by which the executive is able to visualize the national network of the activities he directs, have reappeared upon office walls. And the taxpayers' money is being spent like water. It is all so much like war.

The camp followers of war days also have reappeared. Keyhole listeners and the male and female undercover agents of Wall street speculators are hovering about, buttonholing, wining and dining recovery administration personnel, in search of tips on what the government is going to do next that would be valuable in playing the stock market.

Washington is full of stories of the killings that have been made on the stock and commodity markets by the insiders who had advance knowledge of government activities affecting prices and the value of the dollar. All this reminds one of the famous wartime "leak" that made fortunes for speculators close to the Wilson administration and precipitated a congressional investigation.

Losses of R. F. C. on Interest on Loans May Be 5 Million

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—In its headlong rush to pump credit through the banks of the country into industry, the Reconstruction Finance corporation has hooked itself on an interest payment arrangement which may cost it and the taxpayers 5 million dollars, inquiry disclosed today.

Cutting interest rates it is charging on its loans to the bone in an effort to attract borrowers, the R. F. C. forgot to make sure that the interest it was having to pay on its own borrowings was being cut. The slip has left the corporation in the position of paying out more interest than it charges, it was learned.

Special Loans Offered.

In an effort allegedly aimed at providing financing for the industries signed up under the NRA, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the corporation offered on last Thursday to make special six month loans to banks at 3 per cent interest. On the day before the R. F. C. itself paid 3½ per cent on 10 million dollars it borrowed from the treasury department.

All its money is drawn by the R. F. C. from the treasury at an interest rate of 3½ per cent, a rate set by the average interest paid on the public debt. Mr. Jones' latest offer, therefore, leaves his corporation paying out one-half of 1 per cent more in interest than it collects, plus all the handling, bookkeeping and risk charges on its loans.

Loss May Be 5 Million.

If the emergency lending campaign of the corporation should reach the billion dollar total at which Mr. Jones has aimed before the tangle of interest rates is straightened out with the treasury, the R. F. C. will be out 5 million dollars in interest charges alone.

At the R. F. C., officials, in the absence of Chairman Jones, insisted that the treasury had agreed to cut the interest it is charging the corporation to a flat 3 per cent. It was upon this understanding that Mr. Jones made his special offer for emergency loans, they explained.

In support of their contention they cited a press statement given out by the corporation during the summer saying that an agreement was reached between Chairman Jones and Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin at that time to cut the rate which the treasury charges the corporation from 3½ to 3 per cent.

Report Rate 3½ Per Cent.

Inquiry at the treasury, however disclosed that if thir agreement was ever reached, it was not carried into effect. Daniel W. Bell, commissioner of accounts and deposits, who has charge of the R. F. C. treasury account, declared that all of the R. F. C. notes given as security for its borrowings bear on their face a pledge to pay 3½ per cent interest.

As late as Sept. 13, the day before Chairman Jones made his 3 per cent offer, the corporation sent to the treasury as security for borrowing another 10 million dollars a batch of notes in the like amount bearing interest at 3½ per cent, according to Bell. The notes themselves are the deciding documents, he admitted.

Some sort of intra-governmental refinancing, new borrowing or other financial gymnastics will be necessary to extract the R. F. C. from its position of losing money, it was said. Either the treasury will have to agree to refund the 3½ per cent notes into 3 per cent obligations of the corporation or the corporation will have to borrow a special fund at 3 per cent out of which to make its special loans.

Borrowing May Be Revamped.

Probably the whole amount of R. F. C. borrowing from the treasury will have to be revamped because in addition to making an offer of special 3 per cent loans for six months periods, Mr. Jones cut the basic all time interest rate from 4½ to 4 per cent at the same time. The one-half of one per cent differential between the rate it charges and the rate it pays will not be enough to cover the corporation's handling charges and risks in the long run, it was said.

DEVALERA AGREES TO HELP LABOR PARTY IN IRELAND

KILDARE, Irish Free State, Sept. 17.—(AP)—William Norton, the Labor leader, today announced to his constituents details of the Labor party's agreement with the De Valera government.

Norton said the government had guaranteed in its next year's budget that a scheme of pensions for widows and orphans would be provided. He said provisions soon would be made for a bill to provide financial assistance to workers who had exhausted unemployment benefits.

The Labor leader asserted that there soon would be a speeding up of house-building activities. The government also has undertaken to introduce a workmen's compensation bill, he said.

FARLEY AND HIS FAMILY LEAVE FOR NEW YORK

Postmaster General James A. Farley and his family left Chicago yesterday on the Broadway Limited, bound for their New York home after a four day visit to A Century of Progress Exposition.

The cabinet member said that the entire party, but particularly the three children, had enjoyed the Fair. He said also that he had succeeded in his plan of keeping away from the political field.

He and Mrs. Farley took dinner with Mayor and Mrs. Kelly at the Kelly residence Saturday and spent the evening there, but this affair, it was said, was entirely social in its nature. No important politics was discussed.

SENATOR DAVIS' SECOND TRIAL TO START TODAY

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The second trial of United States Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania and Theodore G. Miller, charged with violations of interstate commerce laws in connection with the running of Loyal Order of Moose lotteries will begin before Judge Johnson Hayes of North Carolina in federal court here tomorrow.

Senator Davis was brought to trial upon the same indictment last September, but a mistrial was declared when a juryman communicated with his lawyer. The retrial was postponed from last spring owing to Davis' illness.

More than $3,000,000 was raised in Moose lotteries in 1930 and 1931, of which Davis got $170,000 and Miller $80,000, according to the charges against them. Of the remainder, it is said, $500,000 went to lodges and beneficiaries, $200,000 in prizes and the remainder to "overhead."

AMERICA STEPS OUT

THE MARCH TO GOOD TIMES IS ON . . The nation is stepping out!

Ask the hotel men! Entertainment is back out in the open. Cafes crowding up. Dining rooms bright with life, gay with music. Eating again becomes a gracious ceremony. People sit longer to dine. Conversations are livelier. Light-heartedness is in the air. Yes, we're stepping out!

Rooms are filling up. Lobbies taking on life. Salesmen staying longer, seeing more people—selling more goods. New jobs for the decorators, furniture folks and equipment people. Commerce has taken to the road again. Ask the railroad men—bus lines—airways! Travel has picked up—newer, faster, better travel. There's new cheer in the smoking cars. Business is stepping out!

And wherever you go, BUDWEISER is first choice of those who know the good things of life. For BUDWEISER is beer at its best. NEW YORK NOT OVERLOOKED IN EASY MONEY DOLE

State Obtains Grand Total of $180,873,430.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Charity begins at home, even in the minds of Presidents, for just as Hoover took care of California, so is Roosevelt taking care of New York.

In doling out the easy money for public works, Mr. Roosevelt's administrator, Secretary Ickes, has done handsomely by his patron's home state of New York. Under Mr. Hoover's beneficences the R. F. C., passing out loans for public works, showered California with a flood of easy money.

And California is still a golden haired child: her outstretched palms are still being filled again and again from the federal treasury.

Remembering Friends.

The Golden State—aptly named!—is favored, so it is said, because it has fortunate representation in the United States senate. The senior senator is Hiram Johnson, radical Republican, who supported Mr. Roosevelt in the election. More significant in this picture, however, is the fact that Mr. Johnson's first reward by the President was the naming of his radical Republican friend, Harold Ickes, as secretary of the interior.

In passing out the easy money, Mr. Ickes has been kind to Senator Johnson's state, and he has expressed strong desires, too, to hurry easy money into Wisconsin, as a mark of esteem for another radical Republican friend, Senator Robert M. La Follette. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, the junior California senator, who turned the tide for Roosevelt at the convention in Chicago, is also a frequent communicant at the Ickes dispensary.

Poor Relation Gets Slapped.

Beside these favored states, Illinois is indeed a poor relation, thrown a bone now and then, but slapped if she has the temerity to ask for some warming vituals. Putting forth the plea for the federal government to buy the sanitary canal, useful in the future only for navigation, and promising to use the money for building the sewage plants ordered by the United States supreme court, Illinois gets cold glances and hears sneering remarks about grafting officials.

As will appear during the course of this tale of a Cinderella state, Illinois, who never finds her prince, the two richly bedecked sisters, New York and California, have been able to get federal easy money for many less worthy projects, and have promises for much more.

Roads Funds Barred.

In the calculations which follow, the public works moneys allotted to the states for roads are not included. The 400 million dollar fund set up for this purpose was allocated according to a definite rule laid down by congress, and consequently does not figure in the patronage aspects of the case.

New York state thus far has obtained specific allotments of funds from the public works administration to the extent of $107,920,430, not including naval construction. In the first contracts to be let from the 238 million dollars set aside for building up the United States navy, New York companies obtained the contracts for building two destroyers at $3,400,000 apiece, and in addition, one cruiser and one gunboat are alloted to the New York navy yard.

Total of $180,873,430.

A naval officer provided a rough estimate that New York state will get at least 20 per cent of the naval building program, which would be $47,600,000, and this, added to the amount thus far allotted for other things, gives the President's home state the fine sum of $155,520,430.

When the R. F. C. was making loans for public works, New York state participated to the extent of $25,353,000, making its grand total of easy money, $180,873,430.

California has received specific allotments of $28,261,592 from Mr. Ickes' public works fund. That state is also the chief beneficiary of the Boulder dam project, for which $38,000,000 has been allotted, but this sum is not included in this calculation.

$167,834,592 to California.

The R. F. C. loaned to California on bridges, water projects, power developments, the huge sum of $139,573,000, and thus California's grab of easy money totals $167,834,592.

The Cinderella state, Illinois, has received at the hands of her resident son, Secretary Ickes, $14,214,275 in public works allotments. The R. F. C. had provided Illinois with $7,784,460 in loans for public works. Thus the "grand" total for Illinois is $21,998,735.

The comparative setup between Cinderella and the gorgeous sisters is shown as follows:

Illinois	7	$ 21,998,735
New York	23	180,873,430
California	6	167,834,592

Thus New York, paying a little better than three times as much of the federal tax bill as Illinois does, gets eight times as much easy money. California, paying less taxes than Illinois, gets seven and a half times as much easy money.

The "Old Home State."

For New York state the public works administration has provided $4,828,000 for a new postoffice annex in New York City; $37,500,000 for building a tunnel under the Hudson river; $44,200,000 for a triborough bridge at New York City; $11,359,000 for three New York City housing projects, and many millions for a long list of additional projects.

Illinois shares, with other states of the upper Mississippi valley, in the improvements which will be made in the navigability of the river to Minneapolis and St. Paul. The proportion allotted to Illinois in this respect is $10,720,000, nearly half of her entire easy money allotment.

A direct example cited as evidence that Illinois is suffering from discrimination in favor of New York state concerns respective appeals of the sanitary district of Chicago and of New York state.

A Canal Comparison.

The sanitary district proposes the purchase by the federal government of the canal which it built for sewage carryoff, but which is now part of the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway a which, under the decree of the Supreme court, is not to be used for sanitary purposes. The proceeds of such a sale would be sufficient to pay the cost of building necessary sewage disposal plants.

Secretary Ickes has frowned on such a purchase without making a definite refusal.

In New York state, Gov. Lehman proposed that the federal government give outright to the state $27,500,000 of easy money to be spent by the state and through New York contractors in making needed improvements for the Erie barge canal between Oswego, on Lake Ontario and Waterford on the Hudson river.

A bill giving the federal government the "privilege" of donating the $27,500,000 to the state was introduced in the last session of the New York legislature, but because the project did not carry the deepening of the canal to upstate, it was opposed and permitted to die in the house after passage in the senate.

Gov. Lehman, expressing his deep chagrin over the failure of the bill, is continuing his efforts in its behalf, and will push the bill again at the regular January session of the assembly.

Wreck Adams & Westlake Building Erected in 1872

Wreckers are at work tearing down the former general offices of the Adams & Westlake Co., railway supply concern, on Franklin street between Ontario and Ohio streets. The structure, a four story brick building, bears in large figures the date "1872," indicating it was erected almost immediately after the great fire. G. L. Walters, treasurer of the company, which now has its offices at 319 West Ontario street, yesterday said the building is being torn down to save taxes. He added that the destruction of the building will give three months' work to a number of men.

HIDDEN GOLD AGAIN SOUGHT; LISTS ORDERED

New Threats Made by Government.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin today warned that tomorrow is the last day for filing returns with the collectors of internal revenue by persons owning gold coin, gold bullion or gold certificates in a total amount in excess of $100.

Persons failing to comply with the requirement for returns on gold holdings, which was set forth in President Roosevelt's order of Aug. 28, may be prosecuted as criminals, the secretary said. Moreover, gold held without official approval must be surrendered by Oct. 3.

Today's warning was the second issued by the treasury head since the government gold drive started.

Other Warnings Given.

On May 1 he also warned that prosecutions would start immediately against all persons who did not surrender gold by that date. Since that time the deadline has been made and postponed twice by the treasury and by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

The attorney general, however, is insisting that this is the last deadline. Prosecutions will start, he declares, but he admits there will be another delay while he investigates to see if the 342 persons known to be storing gold have complied with the latest requirement and filed returns.

Await Results of Inquiry.

Until this inquiry is complete no action will be taken. Then those not making returns will be prosecuted, and those who made returns but refuse to give up the gold by Oct. 3 will be prosecuted later, according to Cummings. Publication of names of persons charged with hoarding, if that course is decided upon in order to put pressure on gold holders, also will await the checkup by the treasury.

Meanwhile, Cummings is hoping that the registrations will reveal hitherto unknown storers of gold. He is convinced that hundreds of millions of dollars in gold, perhaps a half billion dollars, are held illegally in this country by persons not yet discovered.

PRESIDENT ANXIOUS FOR RATIFICATION OF SEAWAY TREATY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt is preparing to fight for ratification of the St. Lawrence treaty with Canada and will move this week to include the project in the federal public works program, according to some of his advisers.

The President is represented as having his heart set on approval of the treaty at the next session of the senate in order to complete New York's power project on the St. Lawrence, launched while he was governor. It is estimated the state's share of the water power under the treaty will generate 1,100,000 horse power, with a larger yield of firm power than Muscle Shoals or Boulder Dam.

The belief that the administration plans to press for ratification results from the prepared address delivered last Saturday at Superior, Wis., by Secretary of War Dern. "The President favors ratification of the treaty in its existing form," he said. "He has authorized me to repeat to you today that he hopes the treaty will be ratified and that the project will be constructed."

Secretary Dern will report to the President Monday after a tour of inspection of the Duluth-Superior harbors and other ports on the great lakes. Duluth is the western terminus of the deep waterway provided by the treaty.

JAIL 2 SUSPECTS IN SLAYING OF YOUNG HOODLUM

Two suspects were arrested by Chicago avenue police yesterday in connection with the killing Saturday of Samuel Incandello, a hoodlum, who was 22 years old. Those arrested and turned over to the Shakespeare avenue police for questioning were Tony Valenti, 867 Orleans street, and Frank Mayleo, 411 Elm street, friends of the slain man.

Mayleo and Valenti admitted having been with Incandello, who was shot and killed at Bloomingdale road and Ballou street, a few hours before the slaying, but they denied complicity in the act. Witnesses said Incandello was shot by a man with whom he had been walking in friendly fashion. Police believed the killing was the work of associates desiring revenge upon Incandello for some double cross.

The largest attendance at the Fair since Labor day, combined with the first general turnout of Chicago visitors, yesterday cheered officials after a week of subnormal crowds and unseasonal gloomy weather. At 11:30 p. m. the admissions totaled 217,515.

While no official check was made, guides, gate attendants and officials said that the percentage of Chicagoans was greater yesterday than it had been on any other day. With favorable weather yesterday the earlier predictions of officials that Chicago was waiting for cool fall weather to visit the Fair seemed to be coming true.

With a break in the weather on Saturday the attendance mounted to 169,974, which was equaled yesterday shortly after 4:15 p. m. Officials attributed the poor showing of the last week to the opening of school, the inclement weather and the failure of Chicagoans to turn out in large numbers. A falling off of out of town visitors had been expected.

"Attendance should continue in an upward swing," Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, said. "The rail and air agencies report that their out of town traffic is still the heaviest in years, and the percentage of Chicago visitors is increasing. Of the present 15,000,000 total only 3,000,000 were from Chicago. This attendance record has never been equaled at any other exposition. At the old fair, when a final of 21,000,000 was recorded the records show that Chicagoans visited the Fair on an average of twelve times each. At this Fair the average is one visit for each Chicagoan."

Only 44 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair

Firms Organize Group Visits.

Another indication that Chicago is setting out to see the Fair was the announcement that industrial and business firms, under the leadership of the Association of Commerce are completing a program by which every employé would make at least one visit to the Fair. It is estimated that this program alone will account for more than 400,000 paid admissions. Nineteen business concerns have been assigned days at the Fair. Twenty-one additional firms will have been assigned days by Sept. 19.

Under the program blocks of tickets are sold to the companies, and they in turn will retail them to the employés. In many cases the firms are selling the tickets for 35 cents to the employés, absorbing a 15 cents loss on each ticket.

The schedule of days already arranged follows:

Sept. 23—Dick & Traeger, Elsendrath Glove company, Peabody Coal company, Pines Winterfront company, Rockwell Barnes company.

Sept. 30—Bauer & Black, Charles F. Clark, Inc.; Railway Express agency, and Spiegel, May & Stern company.

Oct. 1—Armour & Co., Hately Bros., Swift & Co., Hammond Packing company, and Libby, McNeil & Libby.

Oct. 7—Metropolitan Picture Frame company and Devoe & Reynolds company.

Oct. 14—Chicago Malleable Castings company.

Two firms, the Royal Blue stores and Remington-Rand, Inc., were each given a week at the Fair. Royal Blue stores have Sept. 23 to Sept. 30, and Remington-Rand Oct. 10 to Oct. 16.

Parisian Novelty company and Quaker Manufacturing company have set no definite dates, but all their employés will attend.

Hold Venetian Night Carnival.

Yesterday's crowds were greeted by perfect weather, and one of the most colorful programs yet presented. High lights of the day included a Constitution day program, the participation of sixteen national groups, Brazil day ceremonies, and the staging of an elaborate Venetian night carnival in the evening.

Troops from Camp Whistler at the Fair paraded in review past the Illinois Host house as one of the features of the Constitution day program. After the parade addresses were made by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, and Dr. Allen D. Albert, executive assistant to President Rufus C. Dawes of the Fair.

The International day program included singing, dancing and drills with actors in costume in the Court of States.

The Brazil program was given in the court of the Hall of Science and included the dedication of that nation's exhibit in the Travel and Transport building.

The evening was turned over to music and gayety of the Venetian carnival. This program centered at the floating theater on the waters of the north lagoon. There were all star acts from the concessions, dancing in the Avenue of Flags, and a parade of lighted and decorated floats on the lagoon.

20 MAROONED ON SKY RIDE AS CURRENT STOPS

Some twenty passengers on the Sky Ride at the World's Fair were marooned in midair for twenty minutes last evening when two of the rocket cars stalled. The electric current failed because of the blowing of a fuse in the control room in the west tower. The two cars were propelled to a tower by emergency power they carry, and the passengers discharged. Operation of the ride was resumed two hours later after repairs had been completed.

LINDBERGH VISITS GRANDFATHER'S FARM IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today made another of those mystery trips for which he has become famous.

He arrived by automobile with Mrs. Lindbergh this evening at Smedstorp, in the south of Sweden, to visit a farm which belonged to his grandfather. He departed from Hagernas naval station here without revealing his destination. Two hours later he landed at Karlskrona, a fortified Swedish town 55 miles east of Christianstad.

After a welcome by naval air officials, he departed with Mrs. Lindbergh to a nearby spa, and turned up later at Smedstorp. From there they took a short automobile trip to the little community of Baarby to visit Col. Lindbergh's cousin, Miss Bertha Person, who has a small knit goods shop there. The Lindberghs spent the night at Baarby. Afterward they will return to Karlskrona and continue the flight they started this morning, which is expected to take them to various places, including Leningrad, Russia.

She's Champion Farm Girl of Southern California

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

What type is your little girl?

A WOOL crepe jumper frock for Jane's jaunty little self. Perky puff sleeves on a silk blouse, and a crisp little frilled collar. Sketched below. $4.95.

IS she blonde or brunette—? Is she a demure little lassie with long Mid-Victorian curls? Or do you see in her modern sturdiness a future tennis star?

The Baby Shop has made a special study of little personalities as well as little clothes—and fitted the one to the other.

See how many ways there are of expressing these little personalities!

We've the right shades of pink, yellow, blue; quaint or dashing prints. In this announcement we can only touch on "dressing your little girl to type." There are dozens of other ways. Do come in.

HELEN (see her swing her racquet) is her own active little self in a high-neck sweater (mothers, please note the purling), and a bit of a cap on her bobbing curls. $2.95.

It takes Healthy Nerves

TURNER BREAKS OWN AIR MARK; WINS BENDIX CUP

Nerves Never Waver

LOS ANGELES—Colonel Roscoe Turner flashed across the finish line here 11 hours, 30 minutes out of New York, breaking his own coast-to-coast record for the westward flight and winning the annual running of the Bendix Trophy.

Forty-eight thousand spec... were on hand to greet the plucl... healthy nerves had... tory. For a secon... was his. One of t... was for a Cam... man if stead... nerves. Turner...

"I watch my nerves as carefully as I do my plane," Colonel Turner says. "I smoke Camels for the sake of healthy nerves, and I enjoy them more because of their mildness and better taste."

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

STEADY SMOKERS TURN TO CAMELS

Discussing healthy nerves and cigarettes, Colonel Roscoe Turner says:

"Breaking air records is an exciting business—and a nerve-wracking one! I know because I have gone out after a whole flock of records—and managed to pick off quite a few. Like most pilots I smoke a lot—before I jockey my plane into position for the take-off—after the flight is over—in fact, I enjoy smoking any time. But I watch my nerves as carefully as I do my plane. I smoke Camels for the sake of healthy nerves, and I enjoy them more because of their mildness and better taste. To me Camels are a much finer cigarette, and being a faithful Camel smoker, I never have to give a thought to jangled nerves."

Are you nervous? Irritable? Try Camels for a change, and get a fresh slant on your smoking. Being a milder cigarette, Camels are better for steady smoking. You will find it a fact that Camels never get on your nerves... never tire your taste.

AFRICA SPEAKS AT FAIR WITH JUNGLE DRUMS

And Amid the Throb You Hear an Oxford Accent.

Those who come in here expecting a lot of foolishness are going to be disappointed.

[Warning by the lecturer at "Darkest Africa" on the Midway of A Century of Progress who identified himself as "Judge Daniel Brewer of Mississippi, sir."]

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Throb of drums.

At home in Ashanti, whence these drummers come, the sound on a quiet evening will carry eleven miles.

In times within the memory of men still young certain cadences, a certain tempo, meant war.

In the days of British "pacification" the drums would relay from village to village for five hundred miles, "The enemy is coming!"

Dialects might differ, as they still do, but all Ashanti warriors, however remote from one another, understood the language of "the talking drums."

That would be true as late as thirty-three years ago when the Ashanti people, pacified—ruthlessly pacified—came under British rule. In that last of their wars the chiefs could put 40,000 armed men in the field—black, straight backed, sinewy men of the pure breed, men of whom so cautious a historian as Frank Cana has said, "Valor is a part of their national character."

But the Cannon Conquered.

For a whole century the Ashantis were a handful for the British. Nearly a hundred years ago their king, Kwaka Dua, said, "The white men bring many cannon to the bush, but the bush is stronger than the cannon." When King Kofi Karikari ascended the throne about 1868 he swore "My business shall be war." That oath brought on the war of '73, one parliamentary grant for which was £800,000.

For another generation there was unrest. The war of 1900 ended independence. In 1901 a kingdom about three-sevenths the size of Illinois and with a population of half a million became a British possession.

No longer do the drums say, "The enemy is coming!" All they relay now from village to village is news that an ancient ceremonial dance is on.

A Caucasian showman at Darkest Africa tapped one of the huge drums. "The blacks call it 'the grand drum,'" said he. "It is four and a half feet high, and older than Columbus."

And now 'tis played by way of ballyhoo at a World's Fair show. Sic transit—and the rest.

A Black Oxonian.

The principal exhibit in Darkest Africa is a scion of the old Ashanti reigning stock—a burly man aged 34; black as your hat; naked to the waist save when he wears a rich silken robe which he bought in Morocco while on his way to Chicago, and who speaks with a lisping Oxford accent. His name is Kwesi Kuntu—Kwesi meaning Sunday, the day on which he was born, and Kuntu blanket—and he is addressed by the white showmen as "Duke."

With him I visited an hour and do not ask for an evening's yarn a more mannerly and interesting companion—white or black.

Thus he received and answered questions:

"This is beautiful work, Duke. [Indicating a massive and richly chased bracelet of gold on his left wrist.] Is it native craftsmanship?"

"It goes way back to my great-grandmother. That is why I wear it."

"Do your people like the British rule?"

An Answer Fair Enough.

"Are the missionaries a bother?"

"Well, you have to give them time."

"I mean are they doing real good?"

"They have established about twenty large hospitals in Ashanti. That is doing good! And they encourage sanitation. Good!"

"Do they make many converts?"

"Some. They make some. But the converts retain their natural faith."

"You mean?"

"I mean their faith in the powers of nature. The Ashantis are nature worshipers at heart. God is Nyame. The word means 'My Maker.'"

Some freak of memory caused me to recall that in the olden times a king of Ashanti was bound to maintain the magic number of 3,333 wives. To talk of plural marriage to a representative of so thoroughly married a line seemed not indelicate.

He Will Do His Best.

Hence:

"How many wives have you, Duke?"

"I have none now, but I am going to have them when I return home."

"How many, if I may ask?"

"As many as I can support."

"But you are 34 years old. Why so long unmarried?"

"I have been much traveling, and I could not ask wives to wait for me whilst I was traveling. [I trust you catch that treasure, "whilst."] I cannot take them with me whilst I am traveling. I cannot support them."

All this time throb of drums in the arena outside Kwesi Kuntu's dressing room—hour long throb of drums—monotonous—rhythmic—haunting as exotic perfume.

And all this time that Oxford accent—lisping, suave, composed.

Throb of drums—Oxford accent. Was I on a Mississippi raft with a black variant on Huck Finn's fantastic royalties, or was I at a World's Fair show?

"If I mistake not, Duke, your English is Oxford. Why is that?"

Instead of telling me to mind my own blasted business my host replied:

"I was five years at Oxford."

"So! And what degree did you take?"

"None. I was there more for the contacts. I took no degree."

He was at some pains to point out that he was not in Darkest Africa as a paid exhibit, adding, "I came to America on a good will tour. The rest are paid."

Still Dreams of Kingship.

The visitor seems to be under the conviction—how sincere may be a question—that he is of a family that still reigns, and I believe it is in truth a point of British polity in Ashanti to allow native chiefs to exercise some authority over natives. Kwesi Kuntu spoke of a cousin, aged 30, as "the regent" and of Prempeh, last of the great Ashanti kings, as "my ancestor," adding that he would take the regent's place upon his return to Ashanti.

Up spoke the Duke's companion, a pure black of singularly delicate features and a haughty manner. He bears the African name, Hammarabi, and the English name, Robb. Giving me credit for more knowledge of Ashanti than I remotely possess, he said, "As you know, in the Duke's country inheritance is based on the matriarchal system."

"And you," said I, "are you an Ashanti?"

"My father was African born, my mother American born."

"And where were you born?"

"At sea."

"But surely you call yourself of some country."

"I am a cosmopolite. Why be anything else? Being a cosmopolite, you are never a stranger anywhere."

The Causes of the War.

"Just what, Mr. Hammarabi, was the cause of the last Ashanti war—the one that extinguished independence?"

"The immediate cause of every war, sir, is usually a pretext. The real cause is always basic, although often remote. British land hunger was the real cause of all Ashanti wars for a hundred years."

All this was said in pure university English—University of London, as it turned out.

Well, as the saying is, you could have knocked me down with a feather.

For in my ears was that throb of drums, and in the arena a few feet distant black men—men from Nigeria, Uganda, Ubangi, Karamojo, Belgian Congo, French Congo and Ashanti—were by turns chattering, drumming, howling, gyrating, jumping on broken glass—not very jagged or sharp glass I must acknowledge—running through trenches ablaze with oil, doing the old fire swallowing trick by means of skillful distribution of saliva and swift creation of a vacuum in the mouth, playacting with appalling vehemence the exorcism of devils from a girl who lay limp on a platform, and otherwise comporting themselves like a chapter out of the books of Sir Henry Stanley.

Wondering Caucasians looked on from platforms on three sides of the sunken arena, and I said to myself, "This is a real show!"

Sir Arthur's Experience.

A few days ago Gen. Charles Dawes, a tireless Fairgoer at the age of 68, took Sir Arthur Hartley, a director of the Bank of England, into Darkest Africa.

Now it happens that Sir Arthur speaks five languages. It also happens that the two Africans from French Congo—called respectively "Congo Masumba" and "Congo Phillipo"—speak, as part of their stock in trade, French, Italian, Spanish, German, Arabic, Swahili, Benguelan, and a Congo dialect. What with his five languages and their eight, Sir Arthur got on fine with Masumba and Phillipo, who are the men with the carved faces. So did I with some awful German.

Judge Brewer, one of the Darkest Africa lecturers, paid a splendid tribute to the Congo lads, aged 38 and 40 respectively, although they do not look it. "As interpreters, guides, and gun bearers for white hunters," said the judge, "these lads take the rush of the lion in case of a gun jam. Their sole stock in trade is knowledge of languages, a spear, and courage. I have great respect for them."

Their Marvelous Eyesight.

Another of the lecturers, Capt. Harry Lewiston, formerly of the British army, also spoke of the blacks with genuine respect, adding, apropos of the Nigerians, "You know, those men have eyesight about 300 per cent better than ours. Brave and strong! Look at the play of muscles on those backs! Give me a hundred thousand such men, trained to the use of modern arms, and I'll conquer the moon—as the German officers used to say."

And the Pygmies.

I listened to one of them—a man who said he was "Thi'tty yeh's old," who comes, so Mr. Eagles, the manager, told me, from the Ituri Kivu tribe of flatheads in Belgian Congo, and who patters along, or rather echoes, a kind of English.

Always "Ten Minutes to Six."

All his fingers and both his thumbs were loaded with rings on which he gazed frequently and with great complacency, and on his left wrist were two wrist watches.

On the latter he looked alertly when I asked him the time, and replied, "Ten min's to six"—the "x" pronounced almost as if it were "th."

As the hour then was ten thirty, I was baffled.

Mr. Eagles intervened, saying, "Always with him it is ten minutes to six."

The little man—say about four and a half feet tall and of a clean chocolate brown—laughed delightedly and echoed, "Al'ays ten min's to six!"

This seemed so beautifully to simplify existence that I envied the Pygmy.

Mr. Ili on Matrimony.

"Ili"—for such I understood his name to be—wore on the front of a head that in babyhood had been painstakingly flattened, front and rear, by thoughtful parents, a tiny tuft of his own hair. The significance of that cuteness, said Mr. Eagles, is that Ili has one wife. The topic of matrimony being one that develops unexpected interest in Darkest Africa, I made bold to ask Ili how he won the lady.

"Seven goats," he replied.

"You mean you bought her for seven goats?"

"Yeth. That ve'y many goats. That's highest price we got."

From some prattled English I acquired the notion that my small friend felt that he had been unduly lavish with goats and that a fine article in the way of a wife could be obtained by a knowing buyer for two goats.

Pygmy in a Tantrum.

The lady in question I observed in a tantrum. She was participating in the ballyhoo outside the exhibition hall and evidently she was refusing to do something the white lecturer had asked her to do for the benefit of the spectators. She was acting like a spoiled child, whimpering and writhing, and she looked mad enough to bite the white man.

Then in a flash all was over and she was smiling and snuggling her head against the lecturer.

"That's Pygmy nature all over," said Mr. Eagles. "Very good natured and affectionate and loving jokes, but flying into sudden and unreasoning fits of temper."

Turning to Ili, Mr. Eagles asked, "You like beer, don't you, boy?"

"Sure, I like beer! Good, too!"

But heaven shone brightest on the little man's countenance when a matronly white woman approached him with a dish of ice cream which she fed to him as to a child.

Away from this sight Mr. Eagles, an Alabaman, turned with much disfavor and several of his softly muttered words seemed to begin with "D."

"Can you beat it?" he asked later. "You know some white women have tried to send in cards to our blacks and one of them offered to send her car to take them to ride. I intercepted her card and said to her: 'We have trouble enough keeping these boys in hand. You let them alone!'"

A Triumph in Acting.

Of the tribes represented by the men and women in Darkest Africa the management considers the Karamojos from British Uganda the least civilized—they have painted faces and rings in their noses—the Swahilli speaking blacks from French Congo semi-civilized, and the Ashantis far and away the most civilized. Mr. Eagles says they all are easy to handle "now," adding "but when they first came the different tribesmen were jealous of one another and inclined to quarrel. Sometimes we had to call the ambulance twice a day. Now they are developing a sense of discipline and I never have to scold one of them about being late. If I say 'Tomorrow is children's day and I want you to be here at 10 o'clock,' they're here. On Labor day they gave 50 shows in twelve hours, and never whimpered."

The most thrilling show is the little drama of exorcism by Abdull, a Nigerian, enacting a witch doctor. His hissing intake of breath, his mad laughter, his piteous sobs, his frantic prayer to the grisly fetishes, his body glistening with sweat, and his ecstatic joy when the black girl—his daughter—lying at his feet, comes out of her trance, all constitute one of the finest pieces of acting I ever saw—and seeing acting was my trade for seventeen delightful years.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

The 20th Century Limited of the New York Central lines arrived in Chicago yesterday in three sections, two of them being filled with visitors to the Fair. Twelve extra sections were used on other trains from New York and Boston, bringing more than 14,400 passengers into Chicago, and a special train of two sections brought 856 passengers from Pittsburgh. Eight extra sections on regular trains were used Saturday.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota will be received with military honors when he arrives at the 14th street entrance to the Fair Thursday noon to participate in the Minnesota day program. A delegation of several hundred persons, including the 151st artillery band and the Apollo club singers, will accompany Gov. and Mrs. Olson to Chicago. The program in the Court of States will begin shortly after 2 p. m.

Haj Ahmed El-Abdi, who is in charge of the Morocco pavilion at the Fair, returned yesterday from a month's vacation in Morocco. His return was celebrated by a special entertainment program in the pavilion.

Ceremonies at Fort Dearborn at the Fair will mark the opening of a two day convention of the Military Order of the World War Sept. 28. Brig. Gen. John Ross Delafield of New York, commander in chief of the order, and Col. Bion J. Arnold, commander of the Chicago chapter, arranged the program.

Bagpipers and the Highland Fling will be features of the Scotch day program at the Fair next Saturday. Music will be furnished by the Essex Scottish Highlanders' military band of Windsor, Ont.; the Kiltie band of Stock Yards post of the American Legion, and the Michigan City Boys' Kiltie band. The Rt. Rev. George Craig Stewart, Episcopal bishop of Chicago, will be the principal speaker.

World war heroes of Du Page county were honored in a ceremony at the Pantheon de la Guerre yesterday by the drum and bugle corps of Villa Park post of the American Legion. It was the last public appearance of the corps before the national drum and bugle corps championship competition the first week in October in Soldiers' field.

Lieut. Gov. Vic Meyers of the state of Washington and a party of fifty, including "Miss Almira," state beauty queen, will arrive today on the North Coast limited of the Burlington lines to attend the World's Faid. The party will make their headquarters at Hotel Sherman, where Buddy Rogers, College inn bandmaster, on Tuesday night will hold a celebration in their honor. Lieut. Gov. Meyers is a former orchestra leader.

A party of 125 branch representatives of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company from the Pacific coast district arrived in Chicago yesterday to visit the Fair. They traveled on a special train over the Chicago & North Western railway.

Slim Williams and "Salvation Jim" Woolers are camping in a tent pitched near the Alaskan cabin at the Fair in preference to a suite on the roof of a downtown hotel. Both Williams and Woolers traveled to the Fair with dog teams and sleds.

ONLY 44 DAYS OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

PRESIDENT PUTS SIGNATURE TODAY ON COAL CODE

NRA Turns to Retail Store Price Pacts.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A smoothing out of minor details in the hard won soft coal code today delayed until tomorrow its presentation by Hugh S. Johnson, industrial chieftain, to President Roosevelt for executive approval. It is to be effective Oct. 2.

"There has been no hitch," Mr. Johnson said, explaining that the delay was to permit study of wage rates for Alabama and western Kentucky, left blank in the code, but which are to be inserted later.

Can Combine on Prices.

Authorization for combination to fix fair prices is contained in the coal code. The prices would be subject to approval by regional administrative bodies appointed by the President. The code says:

"The selling of coal under a fair market price [necessary to carry out the purposes of the national industrial recovery act] to pay the minimum rates herein established and to furnish employment for labor is hereby declared to be an unfair competitive practice and in violation of this code.

"In order to determine the fair market price, agencies shall be established . . . and sales of coal at any time at a price less than a fair market price determined and published . . . shall create against any person selling at a lower price a prima facie presumption that such a person is engaged in destructive price cutting and unfair competition. It shall be proper in determining such fair market price to take into consideration, in addition to the matters above set forth, also competition with other coals, fuels and forms of energy or heat production."

Retail Code Is next.

Mr. Johnson now is turning to the problems of price control in retail trade plans, on which a decision soon must be reached.

The price control question now up for decision finds a stack of briefs on the desk of Donald R. Richberg, NRA counsel, for and against the provisions in the retail code for maintaining minimum prices at 10 per cent above the wholesale cost.

Several important hearings on codes are due for the coming week, with the radio broadcasting industry up Wednesday, along with agricultural implements, while tomorrow is the opening day of public sessions on the commercial printing, publishing-printing, and printing industry trade plan.

Can manufacturers come in on Wednesday, and on Friday, the NRA starts hearings on the newspaper code submitted by the American Newspaper Publishers' association. Office equipment manufacturers open hearings Thursday, along with periodical publishers.

Nineteen Disputes Settled.

As a cheering note in the recovery campaign's progress the national labor board reported it had settled 19 labor disputes in the last three weeks, involving nearly 400 firms.

"Most of these cases were of strikes, a number of them of considerable duration," said Senator Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], chairman. "Other interventions of the board were successful in preventing strikes. Altogether, we estimate that about 200,000 employés have been returned to work or kept from striking since the President established the board on Aug. 5, either by direct action of the national board or by local action modeled on the board's types of settlement.

"The list does not include pending cases, which may yet come into the column of definite settlements. The high proportion of what we believe will prove to be lasting agreements is especially gratifying. It is an encouraging record for the board in a difficult period."

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Pickets keeping vigil at Fayette county's mines tonight predicted that "not an ounce" of coal will be produced in the region until the H. C. Frick Coke company signs a code recognizing the United Mine Workers of America.

No plans for an immediate return to the mines have been made by leaders of the more than 30,000 coal diggers who quit work last Wednesday in protest against slowness in adoption of a coal code, although the official "holiday" ends tomorrow.

JOHNSON ASKS MILD TACTICS TO CODE VIOLATORS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Here is a summation by the NRA of the instructions from Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, to guide local compliance boards in enforcing the Blue Eagle campaign:

"As most violations grow out of misunderstanding rather than flat refusal to coöperate, when an employer is notified that a complaint has been filed against him, the whole tone of the notification should be that of assuming that the employer is complying and that the complaint is due to some misunderstanding which the employer can clear up by explaining the situation to a representative of the board.

"Particular emphasis is placed on the rule that no publicity of any kind should be given to the fact that the employer has had a complaint lodged against him.

"If, it would be a serious injustice to reverse this unauthorized approval, much weight should be given to this fact."

"Although the employer may be represented by counsel," Mr. Johnson added, "if he so desires, there is no necessity for this. The employer may not be forced to answer questions. In fact, it should not be found necessary to ask any questions except as an aid to the employer in making his voluntary statement. No questions should be asked except those strictly necessary to determine whether or not the employer is complying.

"This hearing should not be taken advantage of as an opportunity to pry into a man's business. The board has no power to compel the attendance or examination of witnesses, or to compel a submission of books or other papers to the board. If the employer takes the position of 'standing on his constitutional rights' or 'refusing to answer question because they might tend to incriminate him,' it should be explained to him by the legal member that the President's reemployment agreement is not a statute to be enforced by law, but a voluntary individual covenant."

Guests at Tea

Former Judge and Mrs. Lorin Cone Collins were guests yesterday at a tea celebrating their sixtieth wedding anniversary, at the studio apartment of their son, George R. Collins and Mrs. Collins at 155 Carl stret. Judge Cullins and the former Miss Nellie Robb were married a year after his graduation from Northwestern university law school in 1872. He was admitted to the bar in 1874. In 1878 he was elected to the legislature, where he served three terms and was speaker of the house. He became a judge of the Cook county Circuit court in 1884, and in 1905 he went to the Canal Zone for a service of six years as a federal judge.

GREEN REVEALS PLAN TO UNIONIZE EVERY WORKER

Drive to Organize Labor Will Be Launched.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The declaration that the American Federation of Labor intends to organize all workers and that "there is no room in the United States for any other labor movement" was issued today by William Green.

The federation president set forth in a formal statement the outlook for the national labor convention, opening here Oct. 2, and said "important revelations" would be made then.

The executive council, he continued, has prepared its annual report, which will make clear "that the American Federation of Labor is going to organize the unorganized."

"It is not going to be stopped in its energetic and sweeping campaign to bring workers into unions throughout the nation," he added.

"It is going to continue to be, as it has been for more than half a century, the recognized, all-embracing spokesman for American labor. That means there is no room in the United States for any other labor movement."

Green summed up the objectives of the convention as follows:

"Our main attention will be centered upon the Recovery act, in an effort to strengthen its operation so as to produce more employment and more purchasing power. We shall be able to secure a better measure of results by the time our convention opens, because we shall have reports through code authorities, not now available.

"We have no unduly optimistic picture of the benefits of the Recovery act in terms of new employment up to this time, but it is clear that the Recovery act is sound in principle, that it has started the nation on the upward swing and that it must succeed, for the reason that its failure means a chaos that the nation cannot stand.

"Not only are we concerned as to reduction of work-hours per week to a level lower than the average thus far fixed in codes, and as to higher wage levels than the average thus far established, but we are concerned about the question of adequate representation of labor in machinery created under codes. Our convention may be expected to demand that in all of the new machinery of industrial government labor be represented by men of its own choosing, as a matter of right and not as a matter of privilege."

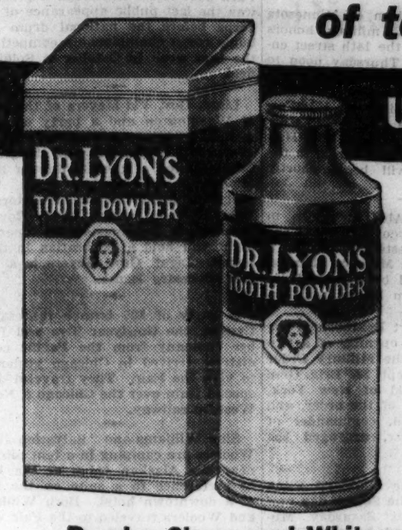
Try Your Dentist's Way of tooth cleaning—

USE POWDER



100% Cleansing Properties
Twice that of toothpaste

No Grit—No Pumice
Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter. Free from all grit or pumice, it cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Once you use powder you will never go back to a less scientific way of tooth cleansing. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

WRECK OF FAST TRAIN TIES UP DUNES HIGHWAY

Liberty Limited Derailed in Whiting.

The second section of the Liberty limited, crack Pennsylvania railroad train from Washington to Chicago, was wrecked yesterday morning when it struck a derail at Whiting, Ind. Although the train was going nearly 50 miles an hour when the locomotive and six of the eleven coaches left the rails, the steel construction of the cars saved the passengers from injury.

The wreck occurred at the point where the Dunes highway, routed at that point over 119th street in Whiting, crosses the tracks. Both tracks of the main line of the railroad were destroyed, and the derailed cars blocked highway traffic until late yesterday. Thousands of holiday motorists were sent over detours around the scene of the wreck.

Rail Traffic Also Rerouted.

It was also necessary to reroute rail traffic, and the Golden Arrow, another fast Pennsylvania train, reached Chicago an hour late. A relief train was sent from Chicago to bring in passengers aboard the wrecked train.

H. R. Reed of Fort Wayne, Ind., fireman on the train, was injured when the locomotive left the rails. He was taken to St. Catherine's hospital in East Chicago with a sprained back and severe bruises.

Six Cars Leave Rails.

The locomotive, striking the derail, plowed ahead on the ties until it struck the tracks of the intersecting line. The tender, by some freak, remained on the rails, but a combination baggage and passenger coach, two day coaches, three Pullman cars and the front trucks of the diner, all steel cars, left the rails.

The derailed cars ripped up the rails of the westbound track on which they were running, and also knocked aside the rails of the eastbound train track. Several of the cars tipped at precarious angles, but none of them overturned.

Riding in one of the coaches was a delegation of G. A. R. members, going to attend their annual encampment at St. Paul. None was hurt.

MYSTERY VEILS ARREST OF TWO NAVAL OFFICERS

Mystery surrounding the arrest last Monday of two naval officers assigned to Great Lakes Naval Training station on charges of disorderly conduct is expected to be cleared up today when they appear before Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt at Waukegan.

The arrests became known Saturday when Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius requested United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green to assign an assistant to defend his two aids, Lieuts. William Shahan and John Perry. Assistant District Attorney Eugene A. Tappy will represent them.

They were arrested in a beer tavern operated by Leonard Townsend of Waukegan. With them were two Waukegan young women, Miss Ruth Bronchion and Mrs. Adele Pulse, a divorcee. The officers assert that Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county entered and asked them to have a drink. When they refused, words followed and the sheriff had them arrested by a squad of his deputies, they said.

Sheriff Tiffany has refused to discuss the incident.

LAKE CARRIERS STALL ON CODE, ROOSEVELT TOLD

A complaint against the Lake Carriers' association was forwarded yesterday to President Roosevelt by representatives of four seamen's unions, who charge the association with "unnecessary delay" in drafting a code for the shipping industry. The carriers' association is an organization of great lakes ship owners.

"Thousands of seamen, now unemployed, will remain unemployed unless the carrier's association is compelled to present a code," asserted the labor representatives in their message. They asked the President to insist on the presentation of a code.

Accused in Escape

BAD MAN BAILEY ON TRIAL TODAY FOR KIDNAPING

Charged with Abduction of Millionaire.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 17.—(AP)—In a carefully guarded federal courtroom, Harvey Bailey, smug southwestern badman, goes to trial with eleven other accused conspirators here tomorrow for the 9 day kidnaping that cost Charles F. Urschel, millionaire oil man, $200,000.

Beset for days by rumors of possible attempts at delivery, prosecutors were determined to allow no avenue for escape and to give no quarter in seeking maximum penalties.

Held in Dark Shack.

Only last night District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde flatly turned down an attorney's offer for the surrender of George [Machine Gun] Kelly, who has escaped a nation-wide man hunt in the case, conditioned on the release of R. G. [Boss] Shannon, his wife, and their son, Armon.

Urschel, prodded from a sunporch bridge game at the point of machine guns last July 22 and taken to the Paradise, Tex., farm where the Shannons and Bailey later were caught, has told but little of his fearsome experience.

He was kept in a dark shack, blindfolded and bound, until anxious business associates, directed by his wife, paid over the small fortune in ransom.

Bailey Plans to Offer Alibi.

Bailey, who broke from Kansas prison Memorial day and from the Dallas county jail after he was arrested for the kidnaping, is expected to present an alibi. So is Albert Bates, who, the government says, accompanied Kelly in the actual kidnaping. The Shannons say they were victims of circumstance, forced under threats to guard Urschel at their Paradise farm.

NUDISTS FROLIC IN INDIANA CAMP ON BALMY SUNDAY

Fifty Bask in Warm Sun Minus Clothes.

Yesterday was an ideal day for outdoor activities and particularly for the nudists in the Zoro Nature camp near Lake Village, Ind., about 65 miles southeast of Chicago. The sun shone warmly, and the west wind was balmy, all of which was appreciated by the exponents of nature in the raw.

The summery weather attracted nearly thirty men and women to the camp, all from Chicago. Twenty others—of both sexes—had remained over Saturday night, so that the total population yesterday included all the entire membership of fifty-three.

Nudists Aren't So Timid.

Attorney Alois S. Knapp and his wife of 2408 Warren boulevard, who operate the camp, beamed happily as they looked upon the gay nudists out for their week-end holiday. The members were not so timid as they were on Saturday, when, because of the presence of a reporter, they refused to doff their clothing. With fears of intrusion removed yesterday, the nudies, as they banteringly call themselves, went about their usual activities.

The activities began at daybreak, the nudists' motto being "Up with the sun." The twenty who had remained overnight, sleeping in nonsegregated cots in the hayloft of an old barn, tumbled out of bed, and hastened to the playgrounds in a clearing 500 feet away.

There they paused for a brief religious service conducted by the "reverend," a precise speaking young man who studied for the clergy and is known as Victor. He is the major domo of the camp. After the services, the "reverend" led the nudies in setting up exercises, which taxed the agility of several paunchy men close to 60 years of age.

This over, the group scattered, some playing volley ball and other games while a half dozen men and women, with a Grecian athletic urge, ran races which the men won easily.

At noon the colony adjourned to the "white house" for a vegetarian luncheon prepared by "Mother" Knapp, and after that returned to the clearing. Some wandered into the virgin forests, causing a TRIBUNE photographer, who had been in the vicinity since dawn, to beat a quick retreat, but not before he had obtained several pictures. A few hours later the camp broke up for the week-end, most of the members expressing hopes for another ideal Sunday such as yesterday.

REGISTRATION SHOWS BIG UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS INCREASE

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Whether or not NRA has anything to do with it, at least that mysterious corner must be in sight if advance registration of new students in the University of Illinois is any indication.

Up to Saturday night 259 more permits to register had been issued than a year ago, the total for the newcomers being 4,189. First year students registered Friday and Saturday while upperclassmen enroll tomorrow and Tuesday.

The sixty-seventh year of the university begins with class instruction on Wednesday morning.

Dr. Arthur Hill Daniels will serve as acting president this year. He became a member of the faculty in 1893 when the university faculty numbered sixty-two and the institution's total enrollment of 552 was less than one-seventh the size of this year's entering class. Dr. Daniels has been dean of the graduate school for years and has filled other administrative offices.

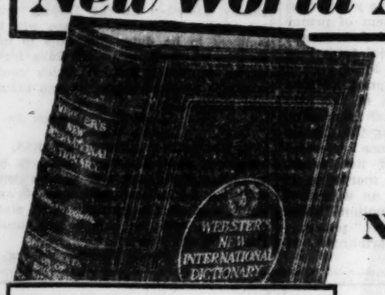
Will You Accept This New World ATLAS Without Extra Charge?



The splendid New Reference Atlas of the World is given without extra charge in connection with our special offer on Webster's New International Dictionary—the most widely used reference work in the world and the book you have always wanted for your own use and for the use of every member of your family or office staff.

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY
a Merriam-Webster

Here in one great book, there is put at your service a wealth of information that is amazing. The contents of this one convenient volume are equivalent in type matter to a 15-volume encyclopedia. The scope and completeness of its information make it a reference work that goes far beyond the ordinary conception of a dictionary. It is the foundation book of every home or office library—the always-dependable question-answerer for everyone.

Scope and Completeness

Webster's New International forms, in effect, a special dictionary for each science and profession at the same time that it meets fully the needs of general use.

Encyclopedic Treatment

Wherever you turn you find admirably condensed treatises, tables, illustrations. The word coin is an example. In addition to a concise definition, there are four columns listing more than 450 coins, the countries where they are used, their values in U. S. and British money. At least 150 of these coins are also separately defined in their proper alphabetical place, frequently with illustrations. Thousands of subjects are as thoroughly treated.

Biography—Geography—Law—Religion—Fiction—Mythology—Music—Art—Science—etc. are among the many special features of Webster's New International.

The "Supreme Authority" of the English-Speaking World

Wherever men and women value quick, accurate information their reliance is placed on the Merriam-Webster. It is the "Supreme Authority" in Courts, Schools, Libraries, and the offices of Newspaper Editors, Doctors, Lawyers, and other professional people.

A Whole Library In One Volume

In its 3,000 pages there are 407,000 entries including 12,000 Biographical entries and 32,000 Geographical subjects. There are over 6,000 illustrations and 100 valuable tables. It is really many dictionaries in one offering not only a complete general vocabulary but also a complete vocabulary of terms in scores of special subjects such as law, religion, science, mythology, art, music, literature, etc. Its encyclopedic treatment of thousands of subjects makes the Merriam-Webster a remarkable storehouse of practical information and an always-dependable question-answerer.

Rely on the testimony of Presidents and Department Heads of the leading Universities; the indorsement of hundreds of Supreme Court Judges and Government Officials who have chosen the Merriam-Webster for their own exacting needs.

THE ATLAS

which is given without extra charge is The New Reference Atlas of the World. This splendid volume is new throughout and has latest census figures for all cities and towns in the United States. Size 9½ x 12½ inches.

NEIGHBOR

Once Meant a Near-by Farmer

In Anglo-Saxon neah meant "nigh," "near," and gebur meant "dweller," "farmer." These two words were combined into neahgebur, meaning, literally, "a near-by farmer." The word appears in modern English as neighbor with a meaning that has changed with the evolution of civilization.

This is typical of a number of unusual stories told and illustrated in a most interesting booklet which will be sent you entirely free. Just mail the coupon.

THE FLIGHT FROM NEW YORK.

The municipal tax imposed upon security transfers in New York has led to the incorporation of an exchange in Newark, N. J., to take over the business of the New York stock market. The move to Newark would provide an escape from New York, but it could hardly be as satisfactory as a move to Chicago. Setting up the exchange in Newark would raise more problems than it settled. Banking services would be lacking, communications for a time, at least, would be inadequate, and adequate office accommodations for security brokers and dealers would be difficult to obtain. The members of the exchange would feel a great deal of hesitation in making heavy commitments for establishments in Newark in face of the fact that their stay there might be for only a few weeks or months.

None of these shortcomings apply to Chicago. All of the important stock exchange houses are already established in Chicago and there is ample accommodation for the rest. The wire services are available. So are the banking accommodations. The move could be made either by expansion of the Chicago exchange or by the transfer of the New York market here. Either could be accomplished with a minimum dislocation of business.

Naïvely the political bosses of New York have assumed that a stock exchange is a building. It is, in their view, therefore immobile. They will live and learn. Markets, and especially financial markets, cannot be tied down. They will flee from governmental oppression as they have always done. The history of the rise of new commercial and financial centers is the history of the decline of others. The exchange of securities or anything else will take place, other things being equal, where it is least hampered by excessive taxation.

What is true of institutions like the stock exchange is only less true of all other forms of business. Perhaps the principal characteristic of modern economic activity is its mobility. The life of plant and equipment is short and growing shorter every year. Cost accounting is becoming more and more precise. The disadvantage of remaining in a jurisdiction where taxes are high and the advantage of moving to a locality where taxes are low is constantly called to the business man's attention. On this showing New York state with its immense current deficit amounting to more than a hundred million dollars, is growing constantly less attractive to enterprise. As if this were not bad enough, New York City, with its already exorbitant tax rates, proposes further increases. The wholesale flight of industry and capital from New York cannot be long postponed unless the policies put forward by Gov. Lehman and Mayor O'Brien are promptly reversed; and there is no sign that they will be.

In contrast, the position of Chicago is vastly more favorable. Our taxes are not as high, either in the city or the state, as New York's. Severely criticized as the tax provisions of our constitution have been, they have served to hold expenditures down and the repeated and stubborn refusal of the people of Illinois to modify the revenue clauses is a demonstration of the determination to avoid oppressive levies. Meanwhile the costs of government in the city and state have been reduced. If Chicago and Illinois can continue to hold this relatively superior position the future is bright with promise.

FEDERAL AID FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The National Conference on the Financing of Education has come out with a recommendation for federal aid for the public schools. There is, of course, nothing new about this proposal. It has been heard from time to time for many years and at one time or another has had the support of various organizations of teachers. Lately a good deal more has been made of the idea because of the financial plight of the schools in Chicago and other large cities. As local sources of revenue have dried up, the desire to draw upon what are carelessly thought of as the inexhaustible sources of federal revenue is stimulated.

Before accepting this easy way out it might be well to examine it. At once it becomes evident that the proposal is not and cannot be put forward on behalf of urban school systems. The emphasis is all on country school districts and the 150,000 one room rural schools. It is proposed to obtain federal aid for consolidated school districts and for building central school plants in the rural sections.

It is not going to help solve the problems of the Chicago schools to take more millions of dollars out of Chicago for the support of education elsewhere. One reason, and probably the principal one, for the existing plight of all the local governments in Chicago is the weight of federal taxation upon this community. The millions which the federal government abstracts every year are not available for the support of local government. Therefore our school teachers are unpaid and retrenchments have to be instituted. It is as certain as anything can be that if federal support for public education is instituted the cities will carry the load and receive little of the benefits. The result on balance will be still less money available for education in this community.

PIGS IS PIGS.

Agricultural adjustment administration estimates that nearly three and a half million pigs have been destroyed in the effort to make a lean year out of a fat one, but only 75,000 piggy sows have been sent to the killers, although the administration was trying to buy up a million. One piggy sow in the stockyards is one piggy sow, but one piggy sow on the farm is soon herself and ten little pigs. The administration buys little pigs between twenty-five and a hundred pounds to get rid of them. Any pig raiser with a piece of wrapping paper and a pencil can figure out a reason for sending in little pigs as long as the administration wants them.

Any one who has tried to roll a little ball of quicksilver on a flat piece of glass and make it adhere either to a course or to itself may have an idea of what is keeping Mr. Wallace and his aids up at night. There is something more in rugged individualism than the scoffers and critics were willing to concede. There is at least a rugged consideration of the individual stake and at least a survival of the idea that the citizen does not go broke taking a profit. So Mr. Wallace finds that pigs is pigs and ten are ten pigs.

Until recently if a citizen sold his gold in the United States he would get $20.67 an ounce for it in paper money. If he sold it abroad he got ten dollars more an ounce. Gold in the United States is now property with such limitations that it can hardly be classified as such. There are too many restrictions. They constitute another Volstead act, but there was a free market in London and elsewhere and the producers have at last broken down the government objections to the flight of new metal and they have forced the London price on America. The commodity is going where the price is. This country should have something to learn of bootlegging.

New York taxes stock exchange transactions and the price of seats on the Chicago exchange is doubled in three days. The peanutta remains in its old relationship to the damma banan. Milk goes to eleven cents and the adult finds that five cent beer is a good beverage. A rural rugged individualist takes a government subsidy for a 15 per cent reduction of cultivated land, puts fertilizer on the free land and raises more than he had raised on the whole.

GLIMPSES OF PARADISE.

A few months ago the Russian periodical whose name is translated "For Industrialization" had some comments to offer on the Grozny petroleum field which include the following:

"A study of conditions . . . reveals that there has been no serious attempt to provide for the future, either in prospecting or development. . . . Not one of the regions discovered has been prepared for exploitation. Even where drilling was started accidents intervened, leading to complete stoppage of all work. Such outstanding wells as that developed at Malgobek have been left undeveloped after the first gusher had subsided."

The merits of an economic plan imposed by an all-wise central government are further revealed: "The result of the shortsighted policy of the management has been an enormous waste of money in equipment tied up in disuse and a display of ignorance in exploiting existing wells that has checked the natural growth of the industry. Operations are often entirely suspended during the winter because of the failure to construct the necessary roads for bringing in equipment and hauling out oil. . . . Many wells were drilled with too small a bore to permit of later deepening. The experience of Malgobek is typical. Drilling here began in 1927, and in the six years since then only eleven wells have been sunk. Of these, four have been closed down by accidents, three have been capped to avoid losses of gas and oil, and only four were in actual operation, experimentally, in 1932. . . . The picture is no different in the older regions of this district."

All of this inefficiency, of course, can be forgiven in view of the fact that the workingman in the soviet paradise is at last receiving his just dues, as is revealed in the ensuing passage:

"The first step that must be taken to remedy conditions is to reorganize labor, particularly the skilled workmen. There has been an enormous turnover of workers. One drilling job, involving sixteen men, used 250 before completion. The old methods of wage payment must be revised to prevent the shift from harder labor to the easier jobs. Means must be devised to reduce the large number of accidents in which the Grozneft has established an unenviable record. In 1930 there were 498 accidents and in 1932 the number had increased to 678, while this year's figures promise to be even larger. . . ."

Editorial of the Day

THE BRAIN TRUST IN THE SYNDICATE FIELD.
[From the September Bulletin of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.]

Another member of President Roosevelt's "brain trust" has entered the journalistic field and is offering, through a syndicate, to inform and instruct the public on governmental matters at so much per article. If one may judge by the newspaper writings of his government colleagues who already have taken up journalism, his contributions will be in impeccable English and, in that respect at least, they will be a treat to readers.

But what can he say? Certainly nothing that would in any way embarrass the administration. His colleagues' articles in the press have been eminently innocuous, and, but for the attractive byline, would hold few readers.

But it is not alone the futility of such contributions that strikes me wrong. The fact is that the writers in question are officials of the United States government and, as such, are being paid by the public. What they write, if it is to have real value as a newspaper feature, contains material that they acquire by virtue of their official positions. The inference from syndicate announcements is that here is an opportunity to buy inside facts. No public official is justified in selling governmental facts at any time, much less while he still is in the public service. The public already has bought and paid for his wisdom. Newspaper editors could very easily put a stop to such mercenary service by refusing to buy, and I doubt if their readers would miss much by the refusal.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ONE GETS so snobbish these days without realizing it. We had three applicants for washing the windows, a Russian grand duke, an English marquis, and a Wall street financier. I decided to give the job to the English marquis because he may introduce me to the Prince of Wales if he comes over to the Legion convention. And, besides, the Russian grand duke is liable to marry an American heiress and drive off in my car any day, and the American financier—well, I live on the fifth floor, and the fifth floor is getting almost as popular as the seventeenth for jumping purposes.

DEDICATION AT VINCENNES.

The night comes on and darkness falls
Where but a few short hours
Was pride and pomp and ceremony
And all that wealth and politics could muster
To dedicate a pillared shrine
And the arched reaches of a mighty bridge.

The night comes on and darkness falls.
How may the two come forth
For whom all this is called?
There was no place for them at the day's full height.
Who would have had this Clark, hungry and naked and cold;
This Lincoln, awkward and ugly and poor,
Unlettered, uncultured, both!

The night comes on and darkness falls.
The figures creep
Across the great imposing structure of the bridge
And seek the river's western bank,
Where, back against some friendly trees,
And weary feet soft washed by lapping waters,
These two, who molded nations with their hands,
Dream in the moonlight
And meditate how man attempts in stone
Atonement for the wrongs that he has done.

Or virile broad shoulders,
Or gray eyes instead
Of the blue ones I loved
Just a few days before,
Or a soft voice that sang
On the sand by the shore.
Love starts with a laugh
And ends with a sigh:
I cannot be faithful,
For I've often tried.
Perhaps the bright stars

Make new moods for me
And new whims to please.
I'm always in love

AN EXPERIENCE WITH FEET.

J. F. B. WRITES: I have had a long experience in trying to find shoes that keep my feet comfortable. This experience with fallen arches and related foot troubles commenced with my high school football days. Some of the conclusions based on it I set down for the guidance of others.

1. Each case requires individual study and a man might as well make up his mind to do the job himself. I was not helped by physicians who advised me, and I soon learned that what salespeople told me was not helpful. In fact, it was usually just about the opposite of what I should do.

2. Wide-toed shoes, like those built on the army or Munson last, are the most harmful type for some cases. The navy last, between the Munson and the English, was a far better one in my case.

3. The stronger and tougher the leather, the firmer and more unyielding the construction, the better. This does not mean iron shoes. It means that a shoe which is right when it is first put on should stay just as it was, with no stretching or change in shape. New shoes, fitting fairly well, I found gave me most comfort. Old, stretched shoes increased the discomfort due to my arches. In these I put lightweight arch supports which I bought for 10 cents.

4. The principle of shoe building which I found to be nearest right is that of the bandaged foot. That is, the shoe should come as nearly as possible to doing what a properly applied bandage does, by fitting the shape of the foot. The shoe should permit flexibility of movement, but without changing shape or stretching.

5. Exercises for the arches, to strengthen the muscles, and also walking pigeon-toed, are valuable. Such experiences are so effective in promoting sound sleep, causing recovery from fatigue, and in supplying pep and bringing comfort and happiness that the time spent on them is a trifling investment. A person should consider such use of a little time daily as far more valuable than the same time spent on beauty culture of other kinds. I say "of other kinds" because improving foot comfort contributes to beauty. Foot conditions affect posture and grace of movement. Comfortable feet prevent ennui, laziness, and wrinkles and other marks of age on the face.

GARTERS AND THE FAIR.

A. W. S., M. D., writes: Because of cramps in one leg I left off my garters the last time I visited A Century of Progress. I have always advised my patients of the evils of tight garters, but never had an idea that mine could cause any constriction, for I have been careful not to have them tight.

To my great surprise the weary aching in my feet that I experienced after former visits to A Century of Pedestrianism did not occur, though I outdid my previous creditable records in walking. I came home much less tired than I expected.

Evidently even slight constriction is too much for legs as old as mine, only 62. I trust that some of the women I have seen at the Fair in high heeled shoes will profit by their experience as I have by mine.

POLLENS IN TOWEL.

W. C. D. writes: Have had an interesting experience in attempting to reduce my reaction to the pollens in the summer air. I happened to notice that sneezing occurred for an hour or so following each use of face towel, but that at other times there was scarcely any nasal irritation. It occurred to me that the towel was serving as a concentrating or gathering surface for collection of pollens, as apparently the normal concentration of pollens in the air was not enough to cause trouble.

A couple of years ago I discontinued using a cloth face towel in the summer, and when drying off after a bath I have been careful to keep the towel away from my face. Symptoms of hay fever have practically disappeared, and the only attacks I have had since then occurred when I forgot this little rule.

PROPERTY TRANSFER.

Maywood, Ill., Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A and B sign a trust deed on vacant property. The property is in A's name only. A dies. 1. Is B, the widow, liable for the amount of the note? Note reads: "We promise to pay, etc." 2. If B transfers her interest in other property after suit has been started against her, can the transfer be set aside? B is heir to A's estate by will. 3. If C, the holder of the note, secures judgment against B, can C garnishee B's widow's award and [4] dower interest? 5. Where there are claims against an estate, does B get title to property one year after the will has been probated, or not until estate has been settled? 6. Does a mortgage holder have the right to satisfy amount of debt by either of three ways—filing claim against estate, suit on the note, or foreclosure, all at the same time? E. D.

1. Yes.
2. If the transfer was by way of gift to defeat creditors it could be set aside as a fraud on existing creditors.
3. No.
4. Yes, in the sense that after the death of the husband the dower interest would be an asset which could be reached.
5. B gets "title" at once, but it would be subject to the possible claims of additional creditors and hence would not be salable until those claims had been barred.
6. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on farm management, financing or governmental regulations addressed to this department must be accompanied by stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

T. P. O. asks: I have had an application for a loan from the government on my farm on file in St. Louis nearly two months. Why the delay when we were promised we would not lose our farms under the new deal?

Answer: Loans are being made by the farm credit administration as rapidly as appraisers of land can be trained and can cover the wide areas in which farms offered as security are located. We understand the present policy to be that those farms most in distress are being acted on first. Also that the total amount of loans asked for by farmers now is in excess of the funds appropriated for refinancing farms. The St. Louis office in which your loan is filed reports 791 loans made in eight months ending August, 1933, for a total of $3,183,762, compared with 110 made in the same period last year for a total of $528,100. It also reports 14,818 applications on hand Aug. 31, 1933.

E. M. D. asks: Can you tell me what to do to prevent loss of our cucumber crop? We are told it is killed off by a disease called "mosaic" disease.

Answer: A new variety of cucumbers said to be resistant to this disease has been discovered in China by Dr. Porter of Iowa State college, Ames, Ia., but the seed is still scarce in this country.

G. H. J. asks: What are the terms of loans being made on farm lands by the government?

Answer: Interest is charged at the rate of 4½ per cent for five years, during which time no payment of principal is demanded, provided borrower becomes member of a local farm loan association. The rate is 5 per cent if he does not. A subscription of one-twentieth of the amount of the loan either to stock in the local association or the land bank granting the loan is required. The rate becomes 5 per cent on all loans after first five years. Loans are made on first mortgage up to half the land value as appraised "for agricultural production under normal economic conditions," plus one-fifth of the value of permanent, insured improvements.

NRA Question Box

Requests for information concerning the NRA will be printed in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly. Following are some typical questions occasioned by the national recovery act and their answers:

Question—To whom should complaints for violation of the NRA be addressed?

Answer—They should be addressed to the NRA headquarters, 201 North Wells street.

Question—Where may copies of the electrical code be obtained?

Answer—Copies of this code may be obtained from the government printing office in Washington or from the office of the Chicago Recovery council, 1 North La Salle street, Chicago.

Question—How can I obtain a copy of the photo finishers' code without paying $2.50 for it, this being the amount that a certain group is attempting to charge?

Answer—Copies of all codes as approved may be obtained from the government printing office in Washington at a cost of five cents each. However, we have not had information to date that such a code has been approved, and since codes do not go in operation until usually a week or ten days after they have been signed, there will be ample time for you to get a copy after you know definitely that your code has been signed. In other words, we see no reason why you should at any time have to pay $2.50 for a copy of a code. They are public property and as such are available to every one.

FOR AN ANNUAL FAIR.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Chicago business men and civic leaders should follow the suggestion of THE TRIBUNE editorial of Sept. 3 to make the World's Fair an annual exposition, not only because it will profit Chicago, but because Chicago owes it to modern industry.

Here are the facilities for the twentieth century industrial world annually to display all of its latest inventions, discoveries, and developments at the crossroads of the leading industrial country. Civilization will suffer a needless loss if Chicago permits the principal exhibit buildings to be destroyed and the present organization to be disbanded without realizing the opportunity of establishing a trade fair as an annual function on the lake front of the world's greatest industrial city.

The present exposition has demonstrated the interest of millions in industrial exhibits—automobiles, electrical equipment, household appliances, and scores of other products of the industrial age which help to raise the standards of living. There is every reason to believe that an annual industrial progress exposition would enjoy a success comparable to that of the International Industries exposition at Leipzig. Building and ground space rented for commercial displays would defray a large share of the expenses. Amusement concessionaires would be attracted by the possibility of profit from the visitors. Cultural groups would find the exposition an ideal place to sponsor musical programs and art exhibits. New buildings needed from time to time could be designed by leading architects and serve as models for builders everywhere. It would permit a yearly integration of all the forward movements of our modern complex civilization.

Chicago cannot afford to pass up this opportunity to fill its hotels and stores each summer with such throngs as Philip Kinsley describes at the Leipzig fair. But further than that, Chicago will be negligent in its duty if it fails to use its splendid facilities on the lake front for an annual exposition which could be a true contribution to modern industrial civilization.

INEPTITUDE AND DULLNESS.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Was Chicago's ineptitude and dullness ever so well demonstrated as by our ignorance of and indifference to the greatest event since the world war—the superb and unattended World's Fair?

JACOB EDMANSON-BOCK.

THE NIGHT BLOOMING CEREUS.

Princeton, Ill., Sept. 8.—Your item from Morris, Ill., in today's TRIBUNE is incorrect as to the frequency of blooms on a night blooming cereus.

My mother, Mrs. J. S. Nelson, has raised these plants for thirty years or more, and at the present time has four ranging in age from six to eighteen years. These plants had thirty-six blossoms in all, sixteen on Tuesday, eleven on Wednesday, and nine last evening. A plant will bloom the third year if healthy.

The six year old plants had the sixteen blooms, ten on one and six on the other.

These cereus plants bloom every year if healthy, and have several series of blossoms, which may open over a period of two months or more. They begin to open at dusk and are out fully by 10 o'clock or midnight. They have a peculiar odor which may be detected many yards distant.

The description of the flower was correct except that those two were above average in size.

My mother always holds open house to allow people to see the cereus bloom, and hundreds have exclaimed over their beauty and character.

UNPAID JURORS.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—No juryman in either the Criminal or the civil courts of Cook county has been paid for his service since November, 1932. The writer served two weeks last February at an expense of car fare and lunch, and found that his voucher was not exchangeable for goods at any store or security for loan at any bank.

A man is compelled to appear when summoned and may be punished in contempt of court if he does not appear. Why not see that he is paid for his services promptly? Where does NRA come in in this? H. W. BENNETT.

THE ORDER OF THE EAGLE.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—As a soldier is decorated for deeds of valor on the battlefield, why not decorate employers in proportion to their loyalty to the NRA in the industrial field?

For instance:

For employers paying a higher wage per hour than in 1929—a golden eagle with two stars.

For employers paying the same wage per hour as in 1929—a golden eagle.

NEW LAKE DRIVE EXTENSION TO BE OPEN ON SUNDAY

Includes Latest Type of Grade Separation.

BY HAL FOUST.

The outer drive extension northward from Montrose avenue to Foster avenue will probably be opened to traffic by the end of this week. Jeondrick Harger, district engineer for the state highway department, made this announcement yesterday and Hugh Young, consulting engineer for Lincoln park, said that extra crews will start work today in an effort to meet this date.

The mile of new boulevard, over land pumped from the lake, will save north side motorists from delays, annoyances and hazards of the congestion in the Wilson and Lawrence avenues' business district. It will also carry automobiles over the first grade separations in the Chicago area designed to segregate all movements of traffic, the turns as well as the cross flows.

New Grade Separations.

Last week the outer drive north to Montrose avenue was opened after having been closed at Byron street for a few weeks. Many motorists then got their first view of one of these complete grade separations. The Montrose structure has been rebuilt in the so-called "clover leaf" design. Similar structures are being built on the outer drive extension at Wilson and Lawrence avenues.

In a quick glance from a moving automobile, the clover leaf looks like a complicated tangle of ramps. Chicago motorists are prone to take this view because both the state and the county highway departments have erected engineering atrocities in the metropolitan areas in the last few years, such as at North avenue and Mannheim road and at 123d street and the Southwest highway.

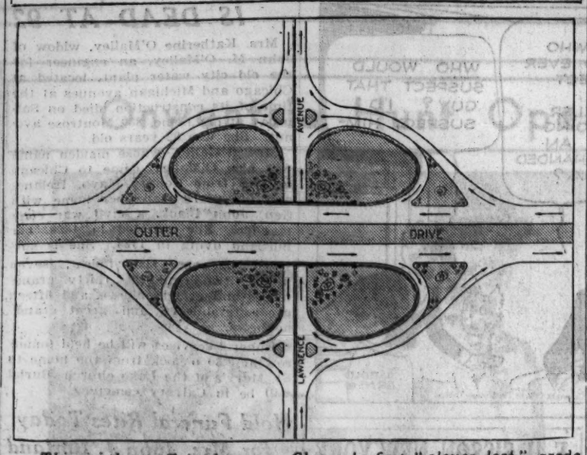
All It Needs Is Signs.

However, when directional signs are erected on the clover leaf it becomes a simple facility, virtually fool proof, with a maximum of safety and convenience. Each traffic movement is separated from all others by curbs. There is no cross traffic above or below the viaduct, as at the North avenue and Lake Shore drive structure, which was Chicago's first grade separation.

The left turn, a difficult movement at grade crossing and at many of the grade separations in Chicagoland, is maneuvered with the clover leaf design by circling to the right after passing under or over the cross pavement. The car remains on one way drives at all times.

The ramps on the Wilson and the Lawrence avenues clover leaves will not be opened for another couple of weeks, but the through traffic lanes are to be ready by next Sunday so that motorists can continue north from Montrose over the new acres of Lincoln park to Foster avenue, which has been widened and repaved.

New Type Crossings to Be Ready Soon



This is the traffic scheme on Chicago's first "clover leaf" grade separations, nearing completion on the outer drive at Montrose, Lawrence and Wilson avenues. The arrows indicate the direction that cars will move. Note that all pavements are for one way traffic only, and that each movement is separated from all other movements by curbs. The diagram was prepared by the Chicago Motor club.

SHOW ECONOMIES IN ONE MAN BANK RECEIVER SYSTEM

Saving of Millions Is Predicted.

Millions of dollars in receivership costs will be saved to depositors of closed state banks in Illinois under the one-man receivership plan originated by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, according to results of a survey which were made public yesterday.

The report shows that the single receiver's fees from forty closed Chicago banks during the three months the plan has been in effect are only 9 per cent of what they would have been under the former method, whereby a separate receiver was appointed for each bank. For three months the fees of William L. O'Connell, who is being appointed receiver for all defunct state banks unable to reorganize, totaled $3,569, as contrasted with the $40,373 which would have gone to the dismissed receivers.

Total Saving Put at Millions.

For a year the savings of these same forty banks will total $160,000 under the new plan, according to the report. There are 532 closed state banks in Illinois, of which 102 are now under O'Connell's receivership, while others are being added daily when it is certain there is no likelihood of reorganization and reopening.

Bank receiverships last an average of four years, State Auditor Barrett declared, so the total saving in receivership fees will run into the millions, he said.

The months covered in the auditor's first report are July, August, and September. It was shown in the survey that the average monthly salary which was being paid to the former receivers was $336, as compared to the average monthly fee of $29.72 being collected by O'Connell.

Monthly Saving in One Bank.

In one institution, the Mount Greenwood Trust and Savings bank, the present receiver's fee is $4.16 a month, as compared to the $50 a month which was collected under the previous method.

Monthly salaries for receivers under the old method ranged from $50 to $625. O'Connell's monthly fees range from $4.16 to $58.33.

Reports of Radical Revolt in Spain Prove Baseless

MADRID, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Reports of an impending extremist uprising which caused police in Madrid to take precautions, were laid today to exaggerated newspaper reports which proved baseless. Dispatches from various parts of Spain said peace and quiet reigned throughout the day.

LAMSON, FACING DEATH, PLANS TO APPEAL VERDICT

Convicted of Murdering Wife at Stanford.

San Jose, Cal., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Convicted of wife murder and facing death on the gallows, David Lamson, 31 year old Stanford University Publishing house executive today clung to the hope of being saved by an appeal.

Late last night Lamson walked into the courtroom of Superior Judge Robert R. Syer and heard a jury of seven men and five women decree him "guilty as charged" of beating to death his pretty wife, Allene Thorpe Lamson, in their cottage on the university campus last Memorial day.

The state charged a love triangle was the motive.

E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley criminologist who had been the mainstay of the defense, termed the verdict a "serious miscarriage of justice."

"The question of remoteness was overstrained," he said. "If we are to be hampered in making scientific investigations by such an interpretation of the question of remoteness, we might as well abandon scientific criminal investigation and handle cases on rumor."

Evidence Ruled Out.

Because Heinrich examined the bathroom in which Mrs. Lamson was slain after the room had been cleaned, the court ruled out much of the evidence he wished to present because of his "remoteness" from the crime.

"The physical evidence was in absolute conflict with the verdict," Heinrich said, "but under a ruling of the court I was not allowed to bring this evidence to the attention of the jury."

Next Tuesday Lamson again will walk into the courtroom to hear himself sentenced to death on the gallows, then another legal battle will begin, an appeal to the District Court of Appeals and perhaps later to the Supreme court of California.

The appeal will be based, defense counsel said, on charges of legal misconduct by assistant district attorneys, on the alleged insufficiency of evidence and on asserted errors in decisions by Judge Syer.

Campus Calm Shattered.

The academic calm of Palo Alto, 15 miles from here, the site of Stanford university, was shattered by the verdict.

Friendships have been disrupted in the conservative university town and academic circles were divided in two camps.

Mrs. Carol Green Wilson, a friend of the Lamson family, whose testimony perhaps aided materially in the conviction of the defendant, said "it was a question of justice, and justice must be done."

"Because of the background I had during several months of watching impending disaster in the home of our loved friends, Dave and Allene Lamson," Mrs. Wilson said, "the shock of yesterday's verdict was nothing compared to the facing of facts three months ago when I was forced to admit that the accident theory was untenable."

Trial Three Weeks Long.

The prosecution, in a three week long murder trial here, charged that Lamson was unhappy in his home life and contended that his frequent trips to Sacramento, the state capital, were motivated by a desire to visit Mrs. Sara Kelley, a divorcée, there. On these trips, testimony revealed, he bought her flowers, was seen at breakfast, luncheons, and dinners with her and at times was in her apartment.

Other prosecution witnesses testified Lamson had attempted to obtain employment for his wife away from the university campus where she was employed as a Y. W. C. A. secretary and had said but three weeks before her death that his mate was unhappy and wanted a separation.

"And I don't care much," they quoted him as saying, "when it happens."

CHICAGOLAND MAP!

No Other Map So Helpful!

The Chicago Tribune's Chicagoland Map represents an investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars and years of painstaking effort on the part of this newspaper to provide the motoring public with an accurate, informative map of the Chicago territory. To keep this map up-to-date, the Tribune maintains an entire map-making department and a fleet of "checking cars" which actually travel over all roads and check conditions and mileages. No other map available anywhere receives such careful attention in the making as the Tribune's Chicagoland Map. And the 1933 edition surpasses all previous editions in completeness, accuracy and convenience to the user.

By Mail 30c

THE most useful article you can take along on your trip to Chicago is the Tribune's 1933 Chicagoland map. It's the master-map of Chicagoland—the most informative, comprehensive road map of the Chicago territory ever published.

This map is indispensable when you reach the outer rim of the Chicago area, over forty miles from the "Loop." Every highway in this territory surrounding the lower end of Lake Michigan is shown. A glance at your map will show which of these roads is the most direct, safe route to your destination.

In Chicago, you can use this map to get about freely without any other assistance whatever. The "Loop" district is shown in detail. It gives the locations of the principal buildings at A Century of Progress, all airports, baseball parks, 299 golf courses, race tracks, beaches, and hundreds of other places worth visiting.

FREE U. S. PRESS VITAL NEED NOW, DEAN DECLARES

Says Right to Comment on Facts Imperative.

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the Columbian School of Journalism said today in his annual report it was indispensable to the public welfare that the news and editorial columns of the press be free to record and interpret or comment on the facts, as well as to print what is inspired or requested by "earnest and devoted public officials."

The report was submitted to President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university.

"At no time in the history of the United States has the education of the public in national and international affairs been so essential as during the recent period of depression and the present cycle of reconstruction," Dean Ackerman stated.

Points to Responsibilities.

"As the press is the chief impartial and uncontrolled agency for the distribution of information its responsibilities are evident."

"The public," said the dean, "continued to buy and read newspapers during the depression although deprived of many necessities."

"With the Roosevelt administration in a position to control the radio, with an almost equal power over the motion pictures, and with public emotion stimulated to such a tense state that public meetings must of necessity reflect the spirit as well as the letter of inspired government propaganda, the only possibility of the United States escaping a dictatorship was inherent in the fight of the profession of journalism for public recognition of the freedom of the press.

Points to Other Nations.

"If the newspapers of the world were free to report and interpret affairs in their respective countries, there would be less cause for concern over recent developments in the United States. But the history of Russia and Italy and the recent course of affairs in Germany and Japan establish the fact that once the press is controlled all institutions which function in the fields of liberty lose their rights and their heritage and individual liberty of thought and action disappear entirely.

"Public education in national and international affairs cannot be advanced solely by securing or recognizing the freedom of the press. Editorial courage is needed. Knowledge and understanding must be included. Responsibility for the public effect of the printed word is imperative, but above all—courage."

Sees Power Over Press.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Senator Schall (Rep., Minn.) predicted in a formal statement today that "after Jan 1 we shall witness the destruction of all newspapers that attempt to criticize the gods controlling our national political administration."

"Under the provisions of the NRA," Schall said, "the administration may withdraw its Blue Eagle from any publication it desires, and as all advertisers have been forced to become members of this illegal government racket, they will be forced to withdraw their advertising from the publication losing its 'soviet duck.'"

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Read It and Weep

EX-DRY OFFICER TO BE QUIZZED IN KIDNAP PLOT

Former Agent Accused of Murder.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Henry Dierks, former Denver agent for the federal prohibition department and accused of the brutal murder of an Englewood boy over a few ounces of wine, will be questioned in the police investigation of a plot to abduct Adolph Coors Jr., wealthy Colorado beer brewer and hold him for $50,000 ransom, Chief of Police Albert T. Clark announced today.

Chief Clark refused to reveal what he intends to question Dierks about, but said that he knows Dierks introduced two former federal prohibition agents who police claim are involved in the plot.

One of the agents, Paul Robert Lane, is under arrest here and officers say he has confessed his part in the attempted abduction. The other, Clyde Culbertson, a former employé of the Coors brewery as well as a former investigator for the federal department, was arrested tonight in Peoria, Ill. A third man is being sought, but police did not reveal his name.

Dierks Never Tried.

Dierks, through intervention of the federal government, never has been tried on the murder charge filed against him at Littleton, Colo., following the death of Milford G. Smith, Englewood youth, who resisted arrest after Dierks and another agent found him in a restaurant with a few ounces of wine in his possession.

In every move in the slaying case Dierks has been backed by the federal district attorney here. He is trying to have the case tried in a federal rather than state court, claiming he was doing his duty as an officer of the United States government. The case now is before the United States Supreme court.

Smith died of injuries incurred in his struggle with Dierks in November, 1931. Before his death he told state officers he did not know Dierks was a prohibition agent, and that he had not been told he was under arrest. The murder charge was filed immediately afterwards. But never has Dierks been brought to trial. He is at liberty on bond.

Owns Big Brewery.

Coors owns the largest brewery in the Rocky mountain area, at Golden, Colo.

It is said the original plan was to kidnap him on Sept. 1, but that two of the gang were in Kansas City delivering stolen cars and the abduction therefore was postponed.

Chief Clark announced he has in his possession the ransom letter the gang intended to send to Coors' family.

Coors planned to allow the gang to kidnap him and worked throughout the case with police.

Youth Killed as One Flies His Father's Plane

Lexington, N. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Two youths, John L. Grimes, 17, and James T. Dennis, 19, both of Lexington, were killed near here today when a wing crumpled as Grimes was flying his father's airplane. The airplane fell 1,500 feet.

New Mexico and Idaho Vote on Repeal Tuesday

Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 17—(AP)—In one of the strangest elections New Mexico has held, citizens will vote Tuesday on repeal of the 18th amendment. In addition to lacking oratory, the election is being run on a financial "shoe string." The state legislature forgot to provide funds and it was necessary to borrow money to print the ballots. Repealists have predicted a two to one victory. The anti-repealists have made no forecasts. Idaho also votes Tuesday. If those states go wet they will count as 30 and 31.

Horses and Trucks Burn in Palos Park Barn Fire

Four horses, two motor trucks, two passenger cars, and 100 tons of hay were lost last night when fire attacked a large barn on the farm of Emil Witt at 123d street and the Southwest highway in Palos Park. It is not known how the fire started. By the time it was discovered by Witt the horses had been destroyed. Firemen from Palos Park and Orland Park could do nothing to check the fire because of lack of water.

Found Mysteriously Shot; Police Hunt 3 Companions

Joseph Long, 33 years old, 5033 Hohman street, Hammond, found with a bullet wound in his thigh in an alley near Blue Island avenue and Taylor street last night. He told several stories about the shooting and Maxwell street police started a search for three men who disappeared after calling an ambulance for Long, who was taken to the Bridewell hospital.

Carol Asks Rumanians to Sacrifice for the Nation

BUCHAREST, Sept. 17.—(AP)—King Carol today appealed to the Rumanian populace to "watch and defend the interests" of the country. He demanded of the people unity without egoism and sacrifices for the nation whose future, he said, could then be regarded with optimism despite the immense difficulties which face it.

20 CONVENTIONS THIS WEEK WILL DRAW THOUSANDS

5,000 Restaurant Men to Discuss NRA.

Thousands of delegates will begin arriving in Chicago this morning to attend more than twenty conventions scheduled to hold sessions here this week. The trades and the professions and associations of public officials will be among those represented by the various gatherings.

One of the largest conventions will be that of the National Restaurant association, which opens in the Furniture Mart today, with an expected attendance of 5,000. Competition from beer taverns and the problems of the NRA will be the chief subjects of discussion. Wholesale hard liquor distributors are exhibiting their wares and taking orders at the convention of restaurant keepers.

Ice Cream Makers to Meet.

Also interested in the competition occasioned by the return of legal beer will be the International Association of Ice Cream manufacturers, which opens its three day meeting at the Palmer house today. Members say there is no direct competition from beer, but that any possible drop in sales will be counteracted by making ice cream more attractive to the public.

The beer interests will have their day with the opening of the American Brewing exposition in the Coliseum Saturday. The exposition will be the first of its kind held here since the first national exhibition of the industry 22 years ago. There will be 237 exhibits, picturing all phases of the industry, and including an old fashioned beer garden.

Market Control Problems.

The convention of the International Association of Milk Dealers, with 2,000 members, will open at the Palmer house on Thursday for a three day meeting. Problems resulting from the government's venture into marketing control will hold the spotlight. Dr. Clyde L. King, head of the dairy section of the agricultural adjustment administration, will speak.

Five hundred park executives from all parts of the country will meet at the Stevens hotel today for the convention of the American Institute of Park executives. The annual convention of the International City Managers' association will open in the International house, 1414 East 59th street, with several hundred delegates.

Mail Supervisors Convene.

Sixteen hundred members of the National Association of Postal Supervisors will open their 25th annual convention at the Stevens today. Several congressmen and United States senators, Chief Postal Inspector K. P. Aldrich and Joseph C. O'Mahoney, first assistant postmaster general, are scheduled to speak at the three day meeting.

The four major national organizations of radiologists—The American Radium society, the American College of Radiology, the American Roentgen Ray society and the Radiological Society of North America—will meet jointly for the first time in their history for a six day session at the Palmer house today. About 1,200 radiologists are expected.

Other important conventions include the American Transit association, with 1,000 members, at the Stevens, and the Grain and Feed Dealers National association, at the Congress hotel.

F. H. SISSON, NEW YORK BANKING OFFICIAL, DIES AT YONKERS

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company and until this month president of the American Bankers' association, died early today at his home in Yonkers. He was 62 years old.

FRANCIS H. SISSON

Sisson, long prominent in financial circles, had been ill only four days of heart disease.

Before he entered the banking profession he was associated in publishing and advertising interests. He edited a newspaper at Galesburg, Ill., where he was born on June 14, 1871, and also was editor and publisher of the Peoria, Ill., Transcript.

For several years Sisson was identified with railroad activities, serving as assistant chairman of the advisory committee of the Association of Railroad Executives. He was a member of the American Economic association and of the Academy of Political Science, and was a director of the League for Political Education.

He served as national president of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, which he had joined at Knox college. He also had attended Harvard.

His widow, Mrs. Grace Lass Sisson survives.

Date of Insull Mail Fraud Trial Will Be Set Today

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today will rule on a motion by the 19 defendants in the Insull Utility investments mail fraud case for a bill of particulars. The case also will be set for trial, but the Insulls, Samuel Sr., Samuel Jr., and Martin, together with others indicted with them, are expected to be tried first on an indictment charging violation of the bankruptcy laws. Judge Wilkerson also will rule today on a motion for a bill of particulars for Moe Rosenberg, west side politician and ex-convict, who is charged with income tax evasion.

WIDOW OF EARLY WATER ENGINEER IS DEAD AT 92

Mrs. Katherine O'Malley, widow of John M. O'Malley, an engineer for the old city water plant, located at Chicago and Michigan avenues at the time of its construction, died on Saturday at her home, 830 Montrose avenue. She was 92 years old.

Mrs. O'Malley, whose maiden name was also O'Malley, came to Chicago in 1863 from County Mayo, Ireland, and for years made her home with Gen. John Black, a civil war commander. She married in 1885, her husband dying in 1924. She is survived by one sister-in-law, seven nieces, two nephews, thirty grandnieces and grandnephews, and fifteen great-grandnieces and great-grandnephews.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9:30 o'clock from the home to St. Mary's of the Lake church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Hold Funeral Rites Today for Mrs. John J. Borland

Funeral services for Mrs. John J. Borland, 85 years old, 2450 Lake View avenue, society matron and daughter of Chauncey Blair, one of the city's pioneer merchants, manufacturers and capitalists, who died Saturday of a heart attack after a month's illness, will be held from the home at 2 o'clock today. Friends are invited to the services, but the burial at Graceland cemetery will be attended by only the members of the family.

Milburn Hunt Opens Season with Thrills

Lake Forest Society Turns Out for Sport.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE was brilliance, exhilaration, excitement yesterday morning in the first meeting of the Onwentsia hunt at the Milburn Hunt club. Splendid mounts, several of Lake Forest's loveliest matrons in their impeccably correct riding clothes, and many of our best horsemen all contributed to the scene.

Off they went, riding cross-country to the sound of the huntsman's horn. The sun caught the high silk hats and made them glisten and the pink coats added color to stubble fast turning brown. Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. Howard Linn, and Mrs. Merrill Hubbard — society's three devotees of the side saddle — were out, and so were Mrs. John Andrews King, Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, Miss Jean Schweppe, and Miss Eleanor Wheeler.

Opera Opens Tonight at Auditorium.

Opera opens tonight at the Auditorium.

It will be the first performance of a four weeks' season of the San Carlo Opera company.

Mrs. Wentworth G. Field, Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Dr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Martin, and Mrs. Henry Veeder are among those who have main floor seats for tonight, and Mrs. Archibald Freer is one of tonight's boxholders. Her guests will be Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Clair E. More, Mrs. Joseph B. Long, and Mrs. Americus F. Callahan.

Among those who have boxes for one night this week are Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mrs. Charles K. Corsant, Mrs. Francis Johnson, and Mrs. John V. Farwell III.

Interest in university circles over the week-end centered around the announcement made by Dr. and Mrs. Shailer Mathews upon the return from their summer home at Monson, Me. Their daughter, Mary, they told their friends, was married a week ago today to Jesse E. Thomas at Monson, with the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, who is dean of the University of Chicago chapel, performing the ceremony.

It was a very simple and quiet service, just as the new Mrs. Thomas had always wanted her wedding to be. It was blessed, however, by a heritage of years, for the Mathews' summer home is a house built by Dr. Mathews' great-grandfather.

Mrs. Thomas is a Vassar graduate and has been working as the educational curator of the Brooklyn Children's museum. Mr. Thomas is completing his preparation for the ministry at the Union Theological seminary, which means that the young couple will be living at least temporarily in New York City. Mr. Thomas and his bride are now making a motor trip through the forests of northern Maine.

Good Morning!

The Julian theater management exuberantly announces the American premiere on its screen of a Swedish photoplay whose title means in plain English "We Who Go the Kitchenway."

The piece is a light and merry comedy, all about a certain Miss Helga, society girl, who bets her daddy that she can support herself for a year by working as parlor maid and kitchen assistant.

She hires out and via the backstairs route meets her fate in a handsome chauffeur. Future events disclose that the youth is only thus employed that he may earn money enough to enable him to complete his engineering course.

There is much ado about a series of gay nothings. Complications threaten through the interest of the daughter of the house in the blond papa who drives her father's cars. But, of course, true love triumphs and the riotous finale should send patrons away happy.

The feminine lead, Miss Tutta Berntzen-Rolf, is a cute trick, with the same sort of ecstasy about her that is Dolores del Rio's greatest charm. She has a most expressive face and, though you may think as I did that she overdoes the grimaces, still she is on the whole clever and intriguing. Bengt Djurberg as the chauffeur is good looking after the manner of James Hall and is a pliant and engaging player. The supporting actors are able. The film is creditably directed, staged, and photographed.

"Vi Som Gar Köksvägen," will, I imagine, delight Svenska theatergoers, and others could find it entertaining if they take a forehanded glance at their programs, wherein is given a brief English synopsis.

See you soon!

Club District.

Glamorous Women Replace the Lone Belle of Other Years

Intelligence Enters Beauty World and Brings Great Changes in Standards.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

SOME of you younger readers will have to have grandma remember for you that there was a time when the town—any town—boasted of one great "belle," meaning its reigning beauty. A quaint phrase, no doubt, to younger ears; also quaint and another old time tribute to the town beauty—"the belle of the ball."

Good old days for the favored one—while they lasted! They lasted, too! Often until the "belle" was folded away in her very last gown. Such was the beauty tradition of a former era. One "belle" got all the breaks!

Not so today! It's a dull sister of this decade who can't make some kind of pictorial name for herself! Beautiful hair! Gorgeous figure! Lovely eyes! Grand ankles—anyway something to give people a chance to remember her by.

A great age for women—the one we're living right now! Every woman gets a break unless she's too indifferent, lazy, backward, or doesn't give a darn!

Fancy a dance event today with one girl getting all the cut-ins. Or, a more formal occasion with one sole woman elected "the reigning belle." It can't be fancied, can it?

Even Nursery Pets Are Thing of Past.

A lot of water, to say nothing of makeup and diets and massage, has passed under the bridge since the twin Lillians — Langtry and Russell — cornered the beauty market. Why, there isn't even a nursery pet any more, that former bane of the "s-m-a-r-t" but plain little sister's existence. The youngsters all get off to an even start. Barbara of the golden ringlets hasn't the ghost of a chance of being the little beauty prig tradition used to foster. Jean, being pretty smart herself and because she has a smarter mother than the homely duckling of earlier days, knows if she hasn't ringlets—she has other gifts and she can even have the ringlets if she cries hard enough for them.

Anyway, she gets a chance at a smart little coiffure, becoming colors, straight teeth. If she has personality, anything, it is recognized and emphasized so that there's little opportunity for the nursery-born-inferiority complex common to an earlier day.

All of which leads up to and contributes generously to the standard by which today's women are measured for their pictorial worth.

I've seen quite a few phases of this evolution from the "single belle" standard in my time. There was an immediate post-war period when women were perhaps a bit too standardized in their knee length skirts and their alike bobbed heads to contribute anything valuable to beauty annals. Nevertheless, even . .en women were stepping out of the "patterned" beauty idea. They were on their way to enjoying equal rights with other women.

Beauty Standard Changes Completely.

A few more years and we saw springing into beauty view women who in the old days might have experienced "thumbs down" for their effrontery in projecting themselves. Only they did not project themselves. A sweeping change was coming over beauty judges, illustrated in the newer and better magazine cover type of girl, the new type of screen siren or charmer. And yet no type! All kind and condition of type, you might say. Interesting looking girls, terribly chic or personality charged ones, beautiful ones, pretty, and so on. Red head, blue eyed, brown eyed, platinum haired, raven—all kind, all colors, all types, eligible for distinction provided they brought more to the picture than a set of features and a more or less perfect 36.

A whole new picture developed, at which women caught on with miraculous speed. Aided and abetted, of course, by the contributions volunteered them by cosmetic and dress art, by easily acquired knowledge of personal hygiene and health.

So that today there is abroad in our land the most decorative woman that has ever walked the earth—and countless numbers of her. Where she'll go

Northwestern U. Will Open Freshman Week at Exercises Today

President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university will greet 1,100 new students at the annual freshman assembly in the First Methodist church of Evanston at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The assembly will be the first of a week's series of meeting for the new students.

Registration for the freshmen will get under way Thursday. Upper classmen will register Friday and Saturday. Classes will start next Monday.

The enrollment will be slightly lower this year than that of last year, according to Dr. E. L. Clark, director of admissions, and approximately 60 per cent of the new class will be men.

Movie Expert Tells How to Select Rouge

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Just a peek at your powder puff, madame, for an imaginary roomful of interested spectators! A thousand to one, asserts V. E. Meadows of Hollywood, for many a year cosmetic consultant to the film stars, you will shriek a refusal, because it won't come up smiling, in pristine purity, but clogged with dust and dripping microbes. It's the gravest hygienic fault of American women, declares this expert, who will start a series of educational lectures on makeup for Chicago women at the Sovereign hotel today.

"There are women who tell me a powder puff isn't any good until it's soiled," he shuddered, in his room at the Drake hotel yesterday. "Disgusting. "Those women wouldn't dream of washing their faces with a dust cloth, yet in principle that's what they're doing. Otherwise they are dainty and sanitary in dress and grooming. Puffs cost so little and clean so quickly, there's no reason why they shouldn't be spotless."

This authority, who was makeup man for the versatile Lon Chaney, bluntly informs his feminine audiences that no cosmetics at all would be greatly preferable to using the wrong shades, as the majority does. His logic is this. That the skin of the face is no different from that of the body, which is superior in appearance because it is protected. That properly applied cosmetics provide protection for the face and enhance its charm when correctly chosen and applied. And that they should be put on in the morning and forgotten until evening.

"Normally your makeup shouldn't need altering during the day, whether you're swimming, or exercising strenuously, or going through a normal routine," he says. "If your face gets dirty use soap and water and dust it with powder brushed off with a camel's hair brush. Don't rub your powder on—it causes enlarged pores and grinds small particles into your skin. Nobody should be afraid of soap on the face—does anybody take a bath without soap? Even dry faces need it.

"About shades of makeup. For testing the proper shade of face rouge, rub or pinch your arm near the elbow, then put the box of rouge against it, and if it isn't exactly the same shade, don't buy it. For lipstick, apply a bit to the lips, then draw down your lower lip until you can compare the color with that of the skin just inside. If there's a variation it isn't your color. That's where most women make mistakes—they want to use a more vivid shade than nature gave them.

"Properly applied cosmetics are never apparent. They accentuate the coloring, but never exaggerate it. Society women err just as often as others because they seek to be exotic and overdo it. Business girls are sincere in using cosmetics, but I don't think they're particularly more intelligent. Yet it isn't a complex matter. And when women apply face powder, why do they forget they have necks?"

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt, who returned to the White House yesterday morning from her camp in the Adirondacks to attend with the President the funeral service for Irwin H. Hoover, executive manager of the White House resident section, left last night to return north. James Roosevelt and his brother, Franklin D. Jr., also returned from Boston and New York for the service and left again today.

The secretary of the interior, Harold Ickes, accompanied by his son, Raymond, is spending the week-end on a motor trip through the surrounding country. Mrs. Ickes, who is now in Illinois, after spending the summer in their New Mexico place, is expected to join them here this week for a visit.

A CHINESE laundry near Karlov avenue and Madison street proudly displays a NRA sign. And when our favorite bulletineer saw it it was at 2 o'clock in the morning and the heathen Chinee was busily ironing.

DO you think you would recognize a picture of Ely Culbertson if he did not have playing cards in his hand? Or of Fritz Kreisler without his violin? Perhaps you've played the game, which was popular in Lake Forest during the summer, where it was introduced by Edith Cummings, and reached a new high when it was played at the home of the John Andrews Kings. Mrs. King had elicited the aid of her son Johnny in cutting out the photographs of much publicized persons and pasting them on heavy paper, minus captions or objects that would help identify them. Without her knowing it, young Johnny included a photograph of his mother in riding clothes he came across as he was turning the pages of a smart magazine. The pictures were passed around after dinner and each guest listed those he could identify. John T. McCutcheon was 100 per cent perfect in his identification, we were informed, and most of the guests recognized Al Capone and Sidney Lenz. Adele Astaire in country clothes was a little hard, but there were three or four guests who did not recognize the chic woman in riding clothes. And two of them had sat beside her at dinner!

"Yes, folks, some call it lunch; some call it luncheon. In France they call it dejeuner . . . in Germany mittagessen. . . But here we just call them eats and they are good eats. . . . Come on in, folks. Come on in and bring the family . . ."

OUR scouts report that there are many queries about the lagoons at the Fair. The other day a woman asked Flo Harvey at information booth No. 25 at the Enchanted island at which end they filled the lagoons. And another sightseer asked what time the lagoons were fed.

BLOOD MONEY

SYNOPSIS.

Uncas Cresap and his Chinese servant are found dead in the upper room of Cresap's boathouse on Kettle pond, near the eastern end of Long Island. Gilbert Jonathan Redd, Cresap's stepbrother, keeps a written private account of developments in the case. A blow on the forehead from a slender, sharp edged implement killed Cresap. The cause of Wong Gee's death is not apparent. Capt. Bray, a special investigator, is an old friend of Redd's. Redd is a former police reporter. Florence Dane, Cresap's niece and an orphan, lived with him. Redd was fond of Florence's mother. He bought a home near Cresap's in order to protect Florence. Cresap made his fortune in the far east. Redd freely admits to Bray his hatred of Cresap, who was a drunkard and a débauché. There seemed to be some secret bond between Cresap and two of his servants, the Chinaman and a dwarf, Sabino. Bray finds a new will disinheriting Florence. As it was unsigned, the old will stands. Cresap disapproved of Florence's penniless sweetheart, Gregory Thorpe. Thorpe disappears. He is found in a hospital, victim of a hitch-hiker, before Cresap's death, which exonerates him. Florence takes a room in the hospital. Hilda, Florence's maid, tries to leave the Cresap estate and is arrested. Florence leaves the hospital and can't be found. Sabino also disappears.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

NEARING A SOLUTION.

"The nurse says she don't know where Miss Dane was heading for or why," Chief Taper went on with his story. "All she knows is that Miss Dane just asked her before they started to help her get out of Long Island and over to the mainland and she did it without asking any questions. But she does say the notion to vamoose must have took Miss Dane pretty sudden. . . . So Cap Bray is all steamed up over it, naturally. One minute he's cussing out that thick deputy from Riverhead for letting her get away on him and the next minute he's saying that with her gone for sure and Sabino seemingly gone and the hired girl trying to get gone and being nabbed, he's beginning to see some daylight at last. And he's got him a crutch and he's leaving that infirmary right now, but not coming this way. He's going the other way. . . . But there's still a few things about it ain't quite absolutely clear to me. And so I want to find out——"

I broke free from him and ran for my car, which I had left standing in front of the town hall, and drove away at random. I drove mechanically, trying, as the car slid along, to rally my wits.

I don't remember what cataleptic course I took to get there or who all I passed, but some time later and long after a normal man's lunch hour I found myself well out on the narrowed ridge of Van Houk's Neck where it protrudes outward and gently downward from the higher ground, like a slanted pitchfork with one tine missing. Past the post oaks and jack pines that dip off into an extremity of even more stunted scrubgrowth, I left the car on the furthermost patch of dependably firm loam. Still wool gathering, I shoved through beach plums and sumacs until I came to the naked tip, with the circlet of Kettle pond at my front and on beyond, thwartwise of the tarnished looking lead toned waters of the pool, the looming bulk of the boathouse where many's the night Uncas Cresap and his familiar, Sabino, got roaring drunk together and where, one week ago tonight, Uncas Cresap died and with him old Wong Gee. With my face turned to that hub, that prim white axis of the tragic red wheel upon whose madly revolving rim half a dozen of us have ever since been whirled, I sat down on a nubbin of half-buried driftwood.

"I flatter myself that here and there I read cloaked meanings."

How long I sat, with grim interrogation marks rising in the back part of my head and streaming across my mental vision like a school of black sea horses swimming up from the bottom of an aquarium, I can't say; it was as though proximity to that spot just over yonder multiplied them so that they spawned one from the other, endlessly repeating themselves and coming back again and again. But I do know that when at length I stood up to go and flexed my cramped legs the half obscured sun was far down the western wall of the sky.

When I got back here the early afternoon editions of the New York papers had been fetched from the postoffice, and in one of them I saw the answers to some of the questions of that interminable queue of questions which had been tormenting me.

I saw them answered in an authorized interview which Bray had given out shortly after he reached Riverhead, still lame and wincing but jubilant. The very pitch and surge of him, as transmitted through the screen of a squab reporter's high-toned phraseology, proved to me how jubilant and how confident he must be. The 'prentice's effusion must have reached the telegraph desk barely in time to beat the deadline else some rewrite man surely would have recast it into simpler English.

From olden days I knew full well that when Bray reaches the point where he is ready and primed to be quoted in print he is at the point where he believes the solution of his case lies surely within his hands, so, unless he has changed—and he hasn't—he never would be the one to cry on the chase until he thinks the prey has been flushed, and now would replace secrecy with publicity the better to increase the host of volunteer hunters and the quicker to bag his trophies.

I flatter myself that here and there I read cloaked meanings between the lines of Bray's broadside, but because I am in no present mood for analyzing my reactions to his trickiness, I mean merely to cut out an ambitious younger's dispatch and paste it in as a part of this record.

Here goes for the clipping, highfaluting style and all:

"Referring to the nominal arrest by his son this morning of the Finnish girl now in custody, viz.: Hilda Jannensen, personal maid of Miss Florence Dane, the suddenly missing and allegedly fugitive heiress of the slain millionaire, Capt. Bray said:

"'Albeit I am not yet done with my questioning of Hilda Jannensen, I have succeeded in evoking information from her of no little value as relating to one at least of the attendant circumstances occurring upon the night of the murder.

"'For instance, I have wrung from her the admission that she endeavored to mislead myself and Mr. Motley at the time of our preliminary examination of her last Tuesday afternoon. On that occasion she sought to create the impression that she was practically continuously in the company of Miss Dane throughout the dread hour during which the mundane extinction of the ill-starred capitalist is reliably believed to have taken place. She now owns up that throughout a period originating at or about 11:10 she was absent from Miss Dane's room for fully twenty minutes, being busied below stairs with duties contingent upon her status in the household, which interval would have given Miss Dane ample opportunity to quit the residence and traverse the extensive grounds, even as far as the boathouse which was the scene of the crime, and then to hastily repair back to her apartment on the second floor of that palatial establishment. In fact, Hilda Jannensen has conceded that she had reentered her mistress's boudoir before Miss Dane herself returned; also upon her reappearance the latter seemed to be in a comparatively breathless state and greatly perturbed. Most significant of all, the servant confesses that Miss Dane immediately denuded her feet of a pair of fur-topped bedroom slippers which were freshly disfigured and marred by muddy smears, thereby plainly indicating that the wearer had ventured across the greensward to the miry marge of Kettle pond. Upon removing these soiled articles of footwear, it was but the work of a moment for Miss Dane to replace them with a similar pair, she then instructing her, Hilda, to restore the former pair as best she could to their pristine state of unsullied elegance and store them away on a specified upper shelf of a remote closet, at the same time admonishing her, Hilda, to say nothing of the transaction.

"'Beyond the peradventure of doubt,' continued Capt. Bray, 'it is now revealed that these slippers are none other than the identical ones which Hilda Jannensen vainly endeavored to conceal in a brushpile while en route to the Nepahogue station early this morning, and I have every reason to believe that in so doing she was carrying out the direct command of some other implicated conspirator. Color is given to this assumption by the obvious indication that, once Hilda Jannensen had quitted the place of her recent employment, the task of searching the hitherto unvisited recesses of the house by the delegated emissaries of the law would be greatly facilitated.

Movie Stars Pay Honor to May Robson

Celebrate Her 50 Years as an Actress.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 17. — The movie industry, which every now and then shows its heart, showed a great big strain of sentiment yesterday when May Robson's bosses at MGM rallied some 200 of May's new and old friends at a luncheon for her on stage 19.

The occasion celebrated May's fiftieth anniversary as an actress. An orchestra played "Bicycle Built for Two" and other hits of other days while May and some of her friends dabbed now and then at a moist eye, as a succession of speakers heaped verbal garlands at her feet.

Edgar Allen Woolf, writer and humorist; Lionel Barrymore, Polly Moran, Louis B. Mayer, and Zelda Sears all poured out extolling words, and Elsie Janis, Irving Thalberg, and Lillian Harner, who has been Miss Robson's companion for 20 years, also sat at the right and left of the honor guest.

Marie Dressler, who couldn't be there, sent a wire of her own sort. Miss Sears, now famous as a playwright but in those days Miss Robson's contemporary on the stage, said: "I am glad to add one sprig of spinach to May Robson's laurels. We are of the same period—early paleolithic. May was the daughter of the Neanderthal man and I was the niece of the missing link. (Turning to May) May, do you remember those early days aboard the Ark?

"May Robson was born young, as so many of us are," Miss Sears continued. "She was just as young at 40 years of age and now that she's rounding this new milepost, she's the youngest of us all—in her viewpoint. When called before the great white throne, I confidently expect May to come in with a skipping rope. May Robson, the eternal ingénue, I salute you."

May, who is 67, beamed.

Her old pal, Marie Dressler, wired:

"The first fifty years are the hardest. After that, the joke is that you believe work is the thing. There is no love between us, you old battle-ax. —Marie Dressler."

May beamed again.

Polly Moran, who was introduced as "that little primrose," was, for perhaps the first time in her life, not flippant. She said: "I feel it a privilege to talk in this company, with this subject and on this occasion. But honestly, I feel as out of place as Schopenhauer at a firemen's ball." Polly, who is to be co-featured with May in "Comin' 'Round the Mountain," added "I am in the cast so the studio will have something to cut from May Robson, too."

Lionel Barrymore made May beam still another time when he said he wanted to assure May that her next 50 years were starting with even more promise than the first fifty, and it looked as though things would keep on picking up.

Louis Mayer remarked that "having closed one career with distinction—on the stage—she now is starting a new career of distinction in the medium of films."

Miss Robson responded: "When I went into pictures I thought it would be for a rest. But I have worked harder during the last four years in pictures than I did during the first forty-six. And I feel better for it."

Miss Robson wore a black dress, a black narrow brimmed felt hat with black feather pompon on the front right side, lilies of the valley on the left shoulder of her black jacket with cape sleeves, and a high white lace collar with white lace jabot. She wore long black earrings with rhinestones and three diamond rings, and when the luncheon was over and the lady radio soloist had finished "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," May said, weeping a bit, that she never had a happier time in her life.

Warner Baxter, who says he makes no pretense of being an expert in the matter, maintains rather doggedly that Helen Vinson has the best figure of all young leading women in Hollywood. How does Mr. Baxter know? He has been embracing her for a week in scenes of "As Husbands Go," directed by Hamilton McFadden at Fox's. Baxter, moreover, has been assigned to embrace as many young leading women as any Hollywood leading man.

Keeps Age A Secret Brushes Away Gray Hair

Now you can really look years younger. With an ordinary small brush you just tint those streaks or patches of gray back to your natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. It is so easy to do—at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years' success. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Defies detection. No telltale "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving hair.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not give your gray streaked, dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and luster your money back. Only 50c

WALGREEN DRUG STORES

Teen-Age Child Demands Rest, Proper Sleep

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The two rapid spurts of growth come during babyhood and early childhood, and at adolescence.

Sleep and rest of a baby or very little child we guard assiduously. Growth is very rapid at this time and we know plenty of sleep is essential to a baby's health.

But there is another period in a child's life when we should be almost as watchful of his sleep. That is during adolescence. It is then that the second rapid spurt of growth takes place. During adolescence his food and rest have to take care not only of his daily needs, but of the demands made by tremendous growth and development.

Rest for boys and girls should be carefully guarded when they are in their teens.

And this is not an easy thing to do. When they're very little home is their world; mother and father are the sole arbiters of their destinies. Routine is simple and there is little to interfere with it.

But later, in their teens, when they next start growing rapidly, the story is a different one. Athletics, friendships, social engagements and that everlasting homework are all clamoring for attention. The day isn't long enough to get everything in. The idea of bed is apt to be met with resistance. Evenings are no longer synonymous with sleep, as they were a year or two ago. "The other boys in my class stay up late, why can't I?" "None of the girls go to bed early, I want to stay up and read," are to them perfectly valid reasons for a pushed along bed hour.

Frances Patterson True, to Dr. Herbert W. Virgin Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Virgin. After her graduation from Smith in the class of 1930 Miss True traveled extensively abroad. Dr. Virgin took both his undergraduate and medical training at Northwestern university. The wedding will be an event of next spring.

Julian Streets Are Entertained.

There was considerable entertaining last week for the junior Julian Streets and Mrs. Street's sister, Miss Virginia Vanderlip, when they passed through town on their way to the west coast to join the Frank Vanderlips. Among their hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Lafiin Jr., who entertained at a Century club luncheon.

Mr. Street was telling several of his friends of the engagement of his sister, Rosemary Hale Street, to C. Hunt Lewis, II., son of Mrs. Robert W. Lewis of New York City, for many remember her as a little girl when she lived here with her family, the senior Julian Streets.

Miss Street made her debut in New York four years ago after her graduation from Miss Walker's school in Simsbury. Later she was presented to society in Budapest. Her fiancé, a Princeton man, is known to a number of the Chicago alumni of the university.

The Rufus C. Dawses and the Harry S. News are going to see more of each other today and tomorrow than they probably will again during the next several weeks. Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Dawes are entertaining two guests at dinner at the Casino for Mr. New, who is the United States commissioner to the Fair, of which Mr. Dawes is the president, and Mrs. New, and tomorrow night the News are having a dinner for the Dawses at the Congress hotel.

Strangely enough, Mr. New and Mr. Dawes decided to fête each other at the same time for the splendid work each has done for the Exposition. Quite without the knowledge of the other, each planned a dinner for tonight, but then the News graciously moved theirs up a day when they learned the Dawes' party was already set for this evening.

Gives Farewell Party Tomorrow.

When Arthur Barnhart entertains tomorrow evening at a dinner and opera party he will be wishing two of his guests long lazy days on a Pacific ocean liner, another exciting experiences in Brazil, and two more a successful year on eastern college campuses. It is to be a farewell party in the real sense of the word.

Miss Suzette Morton, Miss Lucy Fairbank, Miss Emeline Bush, and her sister, Carol, and Miss Narcissa Swift are the guests who will be receiving these farewells. In another week Miss Morton is returning to Vassar while Miss Fairbank has decided that she will go back to Bryn Mawr for another year rather than enroll at the University of Chicago. A very fine scholarship of which she received word the other day is the reason for her change in plans.

The day after the party Miss Swift is entraining for New York with her father, Alden B. Swift, and from there they are to sail for three months in South America. Their itinerary is still a bit indefinite, but you may depend on it that they will see all of the interesting out of the way places as well as that most beautiful of all South American cities, Rio de Janeiro. It is Miss Swift's intention, we understand, to bring back material for at least one article for her magazine, Polity.

Traveling in the other direction, the Misses Bush are leaving the end of next week with their mother, Mrs. William H. Bush, for several months of leisurely visiting in the orient.

Mr. Barnhart has invited his guests for dinner at the Tavern with a performance by the San Carlo Opera company following. He may well be offering congratulations and best wishes, too, for he also will have among his guests Miss Betty Dixon and her fiancé, Parker Bryant, that popular young couple who are to be wed very quietly the end of this month. Among the young men escorting the students and world travelers tomorrow evening will be Edward F. Wilson, Jeff Currier, Robert Purchas, and Durand Smith.

Miss Betty Archer Wins Scholarship.

Another young woman whose scholastic abilities have been recognized through the award of a scholarship is Miss Betty Archer, daughter of Mrs. J. D'Wolf Archer. This month she will enter her senior year at Connecticut college on an award received a few weeks ago.

Miss Eliza Campbell is at home at the Pearson hotel after a summer abroad, most of which was spent visiting Mrs. Owen Franklin Aldis in Paris. Miss Campbell brings back the reassuring news that Mrs. Aldis is walking almost as well as she did before the accident she suffered here last February that broke her leg in three places and necessitated her spending all of her visit here in the hospital.

The Misses Dorothy and Marion Bard, daughters of the Francis N. Bards of Highland Park, left yesterday for college, the former for her last year at Connecticut college and the latter for her first year at Sarah Lawrence. Miss Dorothy made her debut last year, but her sister will not be a debutante for another year at least.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Wham have Mr. Wham's parents, the Charles Whams of Centralia, as guests at their Winnetka home. Over the weekend they entertained for them both at the Century club and at the Indian Hill club.

Miss Belle S. Mason of Evanston and her sister, Mrs. William W. Ross of Wilmette, are leaving Wednesday with their brother, Harvey Roswell Mason, for Carrollton, Ga., where Mr. Mason is to be married on Saturday. His bride is Miss Marian Elizabeth Bledsoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Baskin Bledsoe of Carrollton. The wedding is to take place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon in the Methodist church.

Accompanying Mr. Mason and his sisters south will be three of his friends who will attend him as best man and ushers—Gerard Noerenberg of Highland Park and Malcolm Clifton and Norman Andresen of Evanston. Mr. Mason, who is a great-grandson of Chicago's fire mayor, Roswell B. Mason, was graduated from the University of Alabama last June, and it was there that he met Miss Bledsoe, who was a student there. Mr. and Mrs. Mason will be at home after Sept. 25 at 811 Sheridan road, Evanston.

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

This blouse and skirt make a wearable, smart, and decidedly new looking dress. The blouse is a wool and synthetic mixture in wine red tones, and the skirt is eel gray worsted crêpe. The collar with soft jabot repeats the eel gray worsted crêpe, and is a modish item. One material will be pretty in this model, too, such as tobacco brown faille crêpe, with white crêpe jabot, or a bright red rabbit's hair woolen.

The pattern, No. 2842, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

Hibiscus Lends Colorful Beauty to Quilt Design

Hibiscus.

BY NANCY CABOT.

All the natural colors of the big showy hibiscus blossoms may be used in making a quilt of this pattern, each block different, though uniform in itself. A harmonious arrangement of vari-colored blocks will appeal to the tastes of all knowing quiltmakers. It is a new design, this "Hibiscus" block, another reason why you will want a pattern.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

BY MARY MEADE.

Saturday and cookies! They used to twin together in our growing up days as regularly as Monday and washing. Remember the way we lurked about for a chance to "lick the spoon" and scrape the cookie bowl? And in those days, along with cookies, we could always count on layer cakes, steaming pies, and big, crusty loaves of bread—a pantryful of food to last a hungry family a week.

But in these hustling kitchenette days few and far between are the meal getters with such ambition, and such ovens or pantries. So, necessity mothering invention, the big bakings of pre-apartment days are discovering a new way of tempting us through the latest and most entertaining indoor sport, waffle iron baking! You've never met cakes and cookies baked betwixt waffle irons? Then hark ye!

Cookies, it's true, can be baked à la waffle iron only four at a time, but even then, due to the shortened baking period, the process is a speedy one.

Just for instance, here's a recipe for chocolate brownies. Make up a batch of dough, cover it tightly, and place in the refrigerator. Then, if company's coming in some evening, whisk it out and turn part of it into a hot waffle iron, a tablespoon to a quarter section. When baked crispy hot, top with a mound of ice cream. And just watch those guests come tearing back for more.

CHOCOLATE BROWNIES.
[For waffle iron baking.]

½ cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream the butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in the eggs and add the flour, salt, and cinnamon sifted together. Mix in the melted chocolate and vanilla extract thoroughly and drop by tablespoonfuls onto a heated waffle iron, one to each quarter of the iron. Bake 1½ to 2 minutes. [The waffle iron should be somewhat cooler when baking the brownies than when baking waffles, as the chocolate burns easily.]

Ginger cookies are also applicants for waffle iron baking.

CRISP GINGER COOKIES.
[To be baked on the waffle iron.]

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2½ cups flour
Juice and rind of 1 orange

Cream the butter and sugar until light, add the slightly beaten eggs and the sour milk, alternating with the sifted dry ingredients. Add the orange juice and grated rind last, and drop a tablespoon of the dough in each section of the hot waffle iron. Bake for 3 minutes.

And since the waffle iron is out and all heated, have you ever baked an omelet in it? It's truly most delicate and attractive.

OMELET BAKED IN WAFFLE IRON.

4 eggs, separated
4 tablespoons flour
6 tablespoons hot water
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons melted butter
¼ cup chopped parsley

Beat the yolks until lemon colored. Make a paste of the flour, water, salt, pepper, and butter, and add to the yolks. Beat the egg whites until stiff and fold into the first mixture, adding the parsley at the same time. Bake for 2 minutes in a hot waffle iron.

Fitted Gowns Require New Underlayers

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Try as you will, you simply cannot pull or coax the newest satin-smooth dresses and suits or evening gowns over last year's short underlayers or foundation garments . . . every new supersmooth new arrival is from an inch and a half to two inches longer than last year's numbers. But the two inches is not apparent except over the thighline, where the new gowns fit smoother than they have ever fitted before . . . these differently designed sheath affairs will take a lot of knowing pulling to keep them smooth and unwrinkled.

If you are worried about bones, you can dismiss your fears . . . there aren't enough bones in all the new foundation garment collections to write home about. Ingenious designers have used fabrics in the most adroit way. Double faced satin fashions some particularly good models, with clever reinforcements over the diaphragm and other bulgy spots. Simplicity is stressed . . . lovely fine meshed net and laces fashion the brassiere tops that are miracles of exquisite up-lift fitting. Or you may like the more practical flesh colored tubbable batiste with a silky sheen that make some of the best looking all-purpose garments that can be found.

You can tell a new 1933 underlayer by the smaller fitted waistline, the longer thighline and the up-lift bustline, the faultless fitting and the clever use of materials without excessive boning.

You can achieve a willowy suppleness in no time at all if you will be fitted by the experts who know these new garments. Notice the attached trick garters that promise a smooth unbroken line under the most clinging of your evening gowns . . . super tricks that are nothing but triangular loops covered with silk that holds the top of your stocking in an iron grip without even a shadow of a bump or bulge.

National Hairdressers Open Meeting Today; Expect Record Crowd

For the first time since its organization in Chicago twelve years ago, the convention of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' association will be held in this city. The meeting will open this morning at the Edgewater Beach hotel with one of the largest registrations in its history anticipated. A special train carrying members arrived yesterday from various provinces of Canada, and delegates are expected from Porto Rico and Honolulu.

Miss Antoinette Donnelly, beauty editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, nationally known as an adviser to women on matters of health and grooming, will give a series of talks. She is scheduled to tell of the development of advertising in the cosmetic business in her address tonight.

Emil Rohde of Chicago, director of the convention committee, introduced the first of new discoveries to be shown at the gathering when he demonstrated how it has been found possible to change temporarily the color of an individual's hair by the injection of a harmless vegetable dye in the arm. Working with a Chicago physician, he said, tests showed that the texture of the hair was not affected nor any damage done the patient, although the effect wore off as the hair grew.

Oh Boy! Rheumatic Pain Went Like Magic

Is Able to Work and Goes Back to Work

A German Specialist's great success in relieving his rheumatic patients made it necessary to put up his Nurito prescription for the benefit of the public. It is now on sale in Walgreen drug stores on a positive guarantee. Those who have used other things without benefit should try this famous remedy without further delay. For the agonizing pains of rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica or lumbago the relief is quick. Strange as it may seem, this quick-acting remedy contains no opiates or narcotics. It is absolutely safe. Harmless even for children. You can prove this with one package. There is no use in wasting effort with anything that doesn't stop your pain. And if it does that you know you are going to get relief. Get a package today. If the very first three doses do not drive away the most intense pain, your money will be refunded.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

MIDNIGHT CHASE.

"On Wednesday, Detective Inspector Moran having learned through a stool pigeon that the 'Wilson mob' intended kidnaping Helen Howard, daughter of the famous and wealthy inventor, sought my assistance," said Prof. Fordney.

"The next day a man in police uniform called at the exclusive school which the child attended and said his inspector had instructed him to see the child home. While he was talking with Helen's teacher she received a phone call, presumably from Mr. Howard, stating that an officer would call for his child. Being thus assured she delivered the youngster into the 'officer's' care.

"Helen failing to reach home at the usual time, Howard telephoned Inspector Moran, who immediately got in touch with me. Shortly before midnight we came in sight of what we thought was the kidnaper's car. It was the same make as the teacher said the 'policeman' had driven away in with the girl.

"We closed up to about fifty yards of it on the wide, smooth highway when two shots were fired at us from the car in front. Then we knew we were on the right track. A second or two later the car ahead suddenly swerved from the road into a newly plowed field. We followed it for about 300 yards, our speedometer registering 72 miles an hour. They had gained on us a little, but we finally pulled alongside, rescued the girl, and arrested the kidnapers."

Prof. Fordney, speaking to the rookie police class of Oakland, told the above story and they were quick to spot the fallacy in it.

WERE YOU? WHAT WAS IT?

Itching Rash Quickly Healed

"For more than a month," writes one woman, "I had a rash on my hand which was something like ringworm. I tried various treatments, but it resisted them all. At last I started to use Resinol Ointment, and was amazed when a small amount healed my trouble nicely."

If you suffer from itching, burning skin, apply soothing Resinol Ointment to the irritated spots and see how quickly discomfort is relieved. No parts too tender for its soothing medication.

Knitted Collar, Cuffs Replace Fur on Coats

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—A welcome fashion for deflated pocketbooks is the sports coat that scorns fur and has, instead, knitted collar and cuffs. Lyolene, who created this type of coat, has made a big buyer hit with it.

She makes the coat with a turtle necked sweater collar, as shown in our sketch, and it's just as warm and chic as anything in fur.

The model is made of a heavy dark blue woolen material, having the long haired, shaggy surface that is so popular in exclusive Paris fashions for the coming winter. The cut of this coat is extremely simple. It has rounded, raglan shoulders that announce the return to a ladylike line here, and the sleeves are bishop, with turtle neck cuffs of the heaviest knitted yarn done in ribs.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. George P. MacGregor have returned from a three months' tour to South Africa.

Mrs. John F. Byers and Miss Nancy Byers returned on the Bremen.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor House have returned from a motor trip through the White mountains and Canada.

Miss Elisa Kent Wolff gave a dinner last night in the roof garden of the St. Regis for Miss Helene Gales and Judson Shafer, who will be married on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Wood arrived on the Europa.

"N. R. A. We do our Part"

ARE GRAY HAIR PREPARATIONS DANGEROUS?

Pertinent Questions Answered

Are All Hair Coloring Products Harmful?

No. Some containing crude dyes do irritate the scalp and cause hair to deaden and split. A few, however, are ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS.

What Coloring Products Are Harmless?

Those that have tonic-like qualities—that confirm certain ingredients known to be absolutely safe. This type not only colors hair safely and surely but also removes dandruff and tends to correct scalp conditions.

Can Hair Switches or Deadened Hair Be Colored?

Yes, by quick-acting crude dyes. But not by coloring preparations of the tonic-type.

How Does the Correct Type Operate?

Only on LIVE hair—requiring the active assistance of the system.

Can Color Be Self-Applied?

Some products require the services of a trained operator. The tonic type can be applied easily at home.

How Fast Do Coloring Agents Work?

Do All Gray Hair Preparations Remove Dandruff?

No. The ones with the tonic-like qualities remove dandruff.

What Kind is Nourishine?

It is classified as the tonic-type. Nourishine works gradually as if by magic! The hair becomes not only NATURAL IN APPEARANCE—but full of life, sheen and luster. It tones up the hair and scalp and removes dandruff. It cannot deaden the hair or cause it to split. Nourishine is applied EASILY—just like a tonic. It is economical—sure—absolutely harmless—positively cannot cause injury of any kind. Thousands of tests prove NOURISHINE to be actually the BEST hair coloring agent known—defying detection. The one liquid imparts any color.

For better results use NOURISHINE SHAMPOO. Contains no acids that hinder the action of Nourishine.

Write for our free booklet, "Home Care of the Hair." Contains helpful hints on the home care of permanents, marcels, oily and dry scalp, describes coloring methods, etc.

Nourishine, $1.25; Shampoo, 50c, at drug and department stores or by mail from NOURISHINE COMPANY, 939 S. Broadway, Los Angeles.

NOURISHINE BEST FOR GRAY HAIR

from here is tomorrow's worry. Enough for today that she is sufficient to appease a tired eye and very, very often tonicize it.

However, it does not remain for the fair sex to stay content. It's not the nature of the femme. She has her looks. She knows her makeup. She knows her colors. She knows her diets and her hair needs.

Now—what to do with it all? Meantime, her brain hasn't been on any freak diet. It hasn't been rusting. If she isn't bringing in movie box office bacon professionally, she's offering her talents in some other mart—in business, the arts, the professions, in politics, in social leadership, or in valuable pursuit. Anyway, she is not resting on her beauty laurels. And it is this phase of today's woman, added to what she's got, that makes her the glamorous creature she so often is.

Glamorous Is New Word in Beauty World.

Glamorous is the word. Hackneyed as it is accused of being, there is none that better applies. It is not looks alone that distinguishes today's leading women. It is something else—maybe a number of somethings else. Maybe an unusual personality, a flair for clever dress, mentality, or that warmth of being that creates great popularity. Indeed, it may still be a gift of unusual beauty or background, accomplishment; anyway, it's something that creates glamour and gives us glamorous women.

Reviewing Chicago's historical beauties one great tradition overshadows every other name. Mrs. Potter Palmer, of course! A woman of rare beauty, great wealth, background, a great social leader in her day. A glamorous woman!

Who are today's glamorous women? WOMEN, I said. Not "Who is today's most glamorous woman? Here we have in concrete form proof that there can no longer be a "toast of the town" or "the reigning belle." There are too many of her. Distinguished women! Elegante! Women of vibrant personality! Stunning women and awfully clever!

Who are these outstanding representatives of our modern appraisal?

I've been scouting around the town tracking them down with a view to presenting them here in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in a series beginning next Sunday.

To indicate what an optimist I am, I had conceived the brilliant idea of appointing a jury of men to name Chicago's most glamorous women. But, my dear sisters, if you would realize what a "safety-first" sex that other half of us is—go ask one of them to name names of glamorous women. Especially if they are married—watch how they duck to safety behind a long dead Helen of Troy, a Cleopatra or a Ninon d'Enclos.

Forced to Do Her Own "Picking."

Well—perhaps they're wise! Beside, I don't want to be the one to start any family trouble. So it evolved upon by humble self to do the "picking." My chief difficulty has not been finding glamorous Chicago women—but keeping their number confined within the limits of my series.

I did, however, do a lot of inquiring around. With the result that the votes represent considerable more male support than I am permitted to disclose. [And don't press me for names, please, unless you want to be party to an "ousted" male's discomfiture.]

However, they have ideas about glamour—the cautious sex has. You'd be surprised! And I'm going to let you in on some of their ideas! I find some of the men are fairly definite in their interpretation of what makes a glamorous woman glamorous. Others are vague, honestly or feignedly I don't know.

I did, however, manage to get a few reactions and these I'm going to pass on to you during the next few days. Such as the trick of greeting a man—but why should I tell you that today? It's another story!

Caresses Hold More Happiness than Careers

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Elizabeth Marbury was probably the most outstanding career woman of our times. Her career was no one-track one! There was scarcely an "interest," a work of importance this remarkable woman was not identified with in some way or another; politics, prohibition, playwrights and plays, writing. A social person of importance, she was always what we in the trade call "good copy."

She lived a life brimfull of adventure, people, and worthwhile movements, yet she is credited with having summed up here philosophy for women as: "A caress is better than a career!"

In interviews during her latter years Miss Marbury's comments on love and marriage were frequently quoted and applauded heartily by the domestic woman whose placidity she envied, or talked as though she envied it.

But one wonders sometimes if "that thing we want most in life" is not always in the other person's possession. One wonders if the housewife, in love as she may be, is always the contented little soul other disgruntled women picture her. As a matter of fact, we know she isn't. We know she yearns for adventure, for "interesting people" contacts, for the spotlight, for that something she doesn't have.

Not that we think she hasn't a better chance at contentment than the woman who puts the energy of a lifetime into career building, but sometimes we sit back and view this "disappointed" parade of women, careerists and women who've chosen the domestic rôle, and wonder why it is that there must always be that yearning for something else.

One reads that the career woman suffers a constant itching for playtime, parties, bridges and for doing things around the house. Career women like Miss Marbury manage to have homes in which they can have a free hand to do all the fixing they want. They're often crack contract players. They have their heartaches, their disappointments, their drudgeries—but haven't most women?

True, nothing in life can ever substitute for a normal love life and children. But the restlessness among married women would indicate the great need of all women of a different philosophy toward life, one in which complete personal happiness is not set up as the chief aim and ambition.

HOW IT WORKS

IF YOU THINK yellow, unsightly-looking teeth are natural—do this: Start using just a ½-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush twice daily. In 3 days you'll be amazed. Teeth will look shades whiter!

For Kolynos contains two important ingredients that literally work wonders with stained, off-color teeth. One erases stain and dingy film—foams into every fissure and washes away decay-causing debris. The other ingredient kills millions of germs that cause so many tooth and gum troubles—helps make teeth sparkling, flashing WHITE!

CUBS WIN, 6-5, 6-5; LAST PENNANT CHANCE GONE

JACK SHARKEY AND LEVINSKY BOX TONIGHT

Heavyweights Meet at Comiskey Park.

Fight Facts

PLACE—Comiskey park, 35th street and Shields avenue.
TIME—Main bout 10 p. m.; first preliminary 8:30 p. m.
PROBABLE ATTENDANCE—25,000.
ESTIMATED RECEIPTS—$50,000.
WEATHER FORECAST—Fair and slightly cooler.

THE CARD.
King Levinsky vs. Jack Sharkey [10].
Tony Canecla vs. Dick Daniels [8].
Bob Moody vs. Larry Johnson [6].
George Turner vs. Nick Taft [4].
Bob Stone vs. Jack Ronsinon [4].
Leo Rodak vs. Johnny Fitzpatrick [4].

Jack Sharkey and King Levinsky will get in their ten rounds of fisticuffs tonight at Comiskey park, provided the weather man is in a kindly mood. Held over since last Friday night because of inclement weather, the big heavyweights have dallied at their loop gymnasia to keep at a fighting edge.

KING LEVINSKY.

Each was disappointed when informed that the decision must await tonight. Each has been reported anxious to win by a knockout. Sharkey believes that a victory over Chicago's Kingfish will be a step back along the road to the heavyweight title, while Levinsky thinks he will be in line for big money if he licks the Boston ex-sailor.

Hudkins Comes Close.

Notwithstanding ambitions, it is quite likely that Sharkey will whip Levinsky on points. No one ever has knocked out the pride of Chicago's Maxwell street. Ace Hudkins, in a match at Mills' stadium, bounced the 200 King off the floor with a right cross, but Levinsky was there at the finish. Others have dealt him the works, but he still has a clean record as far as knockouts are concerned.

Sharkey has not been so fortunate. He has been placed horizontal by Jack Dempsey and Primo Carnera, but he has had a ready alibi. When he was dropped by Dempsey, Jack was engaged in a dispute with the referee over the direction of one of Jack's blows. Against Carnera he has not offered an excuse. The fact that he is trying for another chance at the heavyweight title is proof that he doesn't believe Carnera had so much on the ball, after all.

King Is Big Hearted.

Chicago may well give Levinsky credit for supporting his opinions of his ability with cash. At least Mrs. Lena Levy, the King's sister manager, was willing to concede Sharkey the first $25,000 in cash in order to get a chance at the sailor. This gratuitous offer brought Sharkey to Chicago for the first time.

Always a boxer and occasionally a puncher, Sharkey expects no trouble avoiding the King's free style attack. He is reported as asserting he will knock out the King. Without taking any credit from Sharkey, if he does put the King down for the count, he will have a ready talking point for other matches after he meets Tommy Loughran in Philadelphia on Sept. 27.

Jack Better Be Careful.

If Sharkey breaks loose with a knockout attack, he may open the path for one of Levinsky's haymakers. A saner method would be a left jab to keep the King in place and to insure a verdict of judges and referee on points. Perhaps that is what Sharkey will do. If he does, it will disappoint the crowd which is expected to number 25,000.

Fight fans like action. They are not particular who gets the works so long as some one takes a real walloping. Levinsky is not a hero, even on Maxwell street. But if Levinsky whipped Sharkey his stock would jump upward faster than any favorite on the market. Likewise, if Jack accomplished the feat of dropping the King in the resin, Chicago would cheer for him as if his past record was as clean as the proverbial hound's tooth.

Wolff Is Apprehensive.

Sammy Wolff, the promoter, is the only person who has reason to be anxious over tonight's outcome. According to our information Wolff needs $38,000 to break even. He is banking largely on the sale of the $1.20 tickets, of which there are 18,000, to get the required amount.

The list of preliminary fighters remains intact for the delayed schedule of bouts. Tony Cancela, a stable mate of Levinsky, who can and will fight, is booked for eight rounds against Dick Daniels of Minneapolis. Daniels at one time was ranked as a comer with Charley Retzlaff. Charley ran into a one round knockout by the King at the Stadium and Daniels also has bobbled a couple of decisions. Larry Johnson, a promising Negro heavyweight, who has served as the King's spar mate, is about the only other name on the card.

THE GUMPS—THINKING AHEAD

NOT A BIT OF NEWS OF BIM YET— WE FOUND HIS HAT AND HIS AUTOMOBILE— THE ONLY CLUES— I CAN'T FIGURE IT OUT—
WELL, THERE'S NOTHING WE CAN DO ABOUT IT— JUST WAIT— THAT'S ALL—

GREEN BAY TIED BY BOSTON, 7-7, IN PRO OPENER

Long Pass in 4th Period Evens Score.

Pro Football

New York, 20; Paterson, 0.
Chicago Cardinals, 29; Freeport, 6.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 17.—The Boston Redskins rallied in the fourth period of the opening National Professional league football game here this afternoon and, copying the method of attack the Packers had used, tied the score, 7 to 7, by a neatly executed forward pass. Until this long distance throw the 7,000 fans had believed the Packers were off in front in the race to regain the league championship they surrendered last season to the Chicago Bears.

The game was well played and there was a minimum of fumbling. Both touchdowns were manufactured without aid of opponents' miscues. Boston surprised in its determined line play, both on attack and defense. Green Bay gained more yardage from scrimmage, but the drive always bogged down near Boston's 20 yard line.

Half Time Halts Packers.

Green Bay might have scored in the second period if it had had more time. The half time ended as Englemann dashed five yards around Boston's right end to the four yard line. Forward passes by Herber, with the strong wind at his back, to Milt Gantenbein and Johnny Blood, had covered 50 yards and placed the ball in scoring territory.

Green Bay wasted little time in crossing Boston's goal line in the third quarter. The Packers received, and, after an exchange of kicks, Herber passed to Rog Grove, who caught the ball on Boston's 35 yard line, evaded two tacklers with a change of pace, and raced to the 6 yard line.

Two smashes at Boston's rugged forwards lost a yard. On the next play Herber, playing close to the center, took advantage of the new pro rule for forward passing. He took the ball, stepped back a yard, and tossed to Rose, left end, who ran laterally along the scrimmage line and then crossed the goal line. The pass caught the Boston half back asleep. Grove place kicked the seventh point.

Long Pass Brings Score.

Boston had the advantage of the wind in the fourth period, but did not open with a passing attack until it became apparent that the running plays never would succeed in reaching the Packers' goal. Westfall, at quarter back, changed the result with one pass. Standing on the Packers' 40 yard line he hurled a long forward to Frankian, who took the ball on the run near the side line and scored. Herber made a vain effort to intercept the pass, but the ball shot by his outstretched hands. Musick place kicked the tying point.

Three minutes remained to play, and neither team was willing to pass for fear of interception. Boston held the ball with a series of line plunges for the final minute of play. Gantenbein's reception of long passes and Dilweg's gains on short lateral throws featured Green Bay's attack. Battles, Pinckert, and Musick formed the ground gaining trio for the Redskins.

Cardinals Win, 29 to 6; Slow in Getting Started

Freeport, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Chicago Cardinals of the National Pro football league wore down Freeport in the second half to win here today, 27 to 6. The score at the half was 7 to 6, but after the rest period the Chicagoans put over three touchdowns to make their margin more impressive.

Late in the second quarter Moe of the Cardinals fumbled on the Freeport seven yard line and when the ball rolled over the goal line, Graham, a teammate fell on it for the first touchdown. Holmer added the extra point. Failing to gain through the line, Freeport resorted to passes, and interesference by Bennett gave the local eleven the ball on the Cardinal three yard line. Rimcus then carried it over. Freeport's place kick was blocked.

Lamb Breaks Away.

In the third period line plunged advanced the ball to Freeport's three yard line, from where Bausch plunged over. Vokaty's place kick for the extra point was low. Lamb broke through tackle and scored the third Cardinal touchdown just before the period ended. He also kicked for the seventh point.

McNally raced 37 yards with an intercepted pass in the fourth period, and the Cardinals immediately scored. When Freeport repulsed line plays at the ten yard mark, Vokaty passed to Nisbet for the final touchdown. Lamb placed kicked for the extra point. Ribble blocked a punt for a safety and added two more points to the Cardinal total. Lineup:

Safety—Rimcus.
Substitutions: Cardinals—Lamb for Simas, Bennett for Moe, Kokaty for Bausch, Nisbet for Creighton, Ribble for Gordon.

PORTSMOUTH WINS, 21-0.

Portsmouth, O., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Portsmouth scored touchdowns in the second and fourth quarters to win 21 to 0, from Cincinnati Reds in the National Professional league opener today.

Cincinnati, a new entry in the league, made only two first downs, were in Spartan territory only once and never threatened the Spartan goal line.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

NOTRE DAME'S prospects of returning to the front rank of college football center mainly around the development of four or five promising sophomores. I have been reading some interesting pieces about Don Elser, a young giant from the Gary steel mills who is said to have the plunging power of the great Bronko Nagurski. South Bend fans are counting heavily on Andy Pilney, who was an interscholastic star at Chicago's Harrison Tech, and on Mike Layden, a brother of Elmer, one of the Four Horsemen of 1924.

FRANK CARIDEO.

You see an occasional item about Tony Mazziotti, a high school half buck who has been shifted to quarter, which was left vacant by the graduation of Jaskwich, Murphy and Vejar. You can jot it down now that Mazziotti is the man who will make or break Notre Dame's 1933 aspirations. That is a heavy burden for a sophomore to shoulder, but he need only refer to Notre Dame records for proof of the statement.

Notre Dame has had great football teams only when it has had great quarter backs. Let's turn back 20 years.

Notre Dame was undefeated in 1912 and 1913, numbering among its victims the Army, Penn State, Pittsburgh and Texas. The quarter back of those teams was Gus Dorais, who is still considered one of the best all around backs in the school's history. Dorais and his teammate Rockne gave the first successful demonstration of the forward pass as a major weapon of attack. It was against the Army in 1913 and there never has been a game between the teams since that time that the work of Rockne and Dorais has not figured in the advance stories.

The next all victorious era was 1919 and 1920 when peppery Joe Brandy directed the teams. Brandy never received the recognition that was his due because he was overshadowed in the public prints by George Gipp, Ald. Roger Kiley, Dr. John Mohardt, Norman Barry, and other Chicagoans who were members of those teams will tell you how Brandy kept them on their toes. He weighed only 140 pounds, but it was a common practice for him to run back and forth behind the scrimmage line kicking 200 pound tackles in the pants in an effort to keep them fighting.

After Brandy finished college football Notre Dame had no undefeated teams until 1924. Harry Stuhldreher's senior year at quarter back. His exploits are too well known to recount. He was universally recognized as the country's outstanding player at his position.

Then came some lean years, as lean years go at Notre Dame. The 1929 season brought another undefeated eleven. So did 1930. And who was the quarter back? Frank Carideo.

There have been no all conquering teams since Carideo was graduated. Now comes a young man from Carideo's old neighborhood who may follow in his footsteps. Mazziotti is from Westchester county, New York, where Carideo got his start.

It is too much to expect that Mazziotti as a sophomore will begin where Carideo left off. That is why I am not so sure Notre Dame is going to breeze through a schedule bulging with opponents like Southern California, Army, Purdue, Northwestern, and Pittsburgh.

This much is certain. If the team is undefeated it will be because Mazziotti is another Dorais, Brandy, Stuhldreher or Carideo.

MILLERS EVEN SERIES WITH COLUMBUS, 6-4

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Minneapolis defeated Columbus, 6 to 4, today, squaring the American association playoff series at two victories each. Score:

Columbus	000	004	000	4	8	2
Minneapolis	000	102	21*	6	9	1

Batteries—Lee and Delancey; Petty, Tauscher and Glenn.

MEMPHIS WINS, 8-4.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Memphis evened the Southern association playoff series at two games apiece today by defeating New Orleans, 8 to 4.

Memphis	000	003	302	8	17	1
New Orleans	210	000	100	4	8	2

Batteries—Beam and Cuto; Messenger, J. Moore, Perrin, Marsavio and Autry.

Beer and Football Don't Mix on Air Minnesota Rules

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Beer and football must not mix, in the opinion of University of Minnesota officials who today refused to sanction radio broadcasts of Minnesota football games this fall — if sponsored by brewery concerns.

A university committee refused permission to one brewery to sponsor a broadcast and mix in a little beer advertising with the account of touchdowns. The concern already had contracted with a local broadcasting station to handle the accounts of the games.

Big Six Bans Broadcast of League Games

Columbia, Mo., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Broadcasting of Big Six conference football games has been banned by unanimous decision of the athletic boards and committees at the Universities of Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri and Kansas State and Iowa State colleges.

C. L. Brewer, Missouri athletic director and secretary of the conference directors' group, announced the decision today following a poll of the membership.

The decision applies only to football games within the conference and home games.

"Games away from home and outside the conference still may be broadcast if the school wishes," Brewer said.

The conference barred broadcasts of basketball games last winter and an increase in gate receipts at the University of Kansas was attributed by Athletic Director F. C. Allen to the banishment of the radio.

"Radio broadcasting has been a problem to the conference for some time," Brewer said. "It was felt by several directors that broadcasting reduced attendance, but some schools as a matter of policy have hesitated to banish radio from the press box. With the lowering of admission prices this year, however, and the necessity of drawing larger crowds, action of some sort was imperative."

Brewer said other factors influencing the decision were strong newspaper objection and the sharp competition among broadcasting companies themselves for the privilege of reporting conference games by air.

DEMAND $10,000 FROM LOUGHRAN OVER TELEPHONE

Norristown, Pa., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Joe Smith, manager of Tommy Loughran, reported to police tonight that a telephone call demanding $10,000, "or there'll be no Loughran-Sharkey fight" had been received at the Valley Forge Golf club, where the fighter is training.

Loughran is to meet Jack Sharkey in a 15 round bout in Philadelphia next week.

Smith said he took a call for Loughran and after hearing the demand for $10,000 was told: "In a couple of days you'll get a letter telling where to leave the money. If you don't leave it, or try any funny stuff, it'll be just too bad, and there won't be any fight."

The manager told police the speaker hung up after he asked who was calling. Investigators said they traced the call to a pay station in Norristown.

SOX QUIT BOSTON WITH SERIES A TOTAL WASHOUT

Hope to Play Today at New York.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 17.—Red Faber was sitting whittling as he waited for Old 183 to pull into the station.

"Red," asks we, "do you recollect of a whole series ever being rained out on the White Sox before?"

"Not on the road," says Red. "I recollect, though, that the Athletics and Sox got rained out a whole series in Chicago in 1916. I remember some of the boys came in from Cascade, Ia., to see me pitch. They sat around for four days and watched it rain, then went back to Cascade."

Today's double header scheduled with the Red Sox was not officially called off until noon, but it could have been canceled without a gamble at noon yesterday. As a result of the deluge, the worst this section has had since 1927, the Sox were able to board No. 183 at 4:30 o'clock and were due to arrive in New York shortly before 11 o'clock.

Warned of Gale.

Radio storm warnings and weather bulletins said that a gale of near hurricane force was likely to pass to the east of New York, but might hit Boston. In view of the warnings, Pasadena earthquake survivors with the Sox were quite willing to escape the possibility of another tilt with nature's violence. Some of the lads were at the station an hour before train time.

When and if the Sox play in New York, Manager Fonseca will assign Paul Gregory, recently returned to the fold, to pitch in the opening game. He also will send forth Charley Stoneham in place of either Mule Haas or Evar Swanson in the outfield. Stoneham is a chunky fellow; looks like Mike Kreevich, who is with the Cubs off and on. He is said to be pretty good with a bat. Bill Sullivan will catch.

Will Inspect Steak Consumers.

Now that the Sox seem assured of sixth place—no more, no less—Fonseca plans to look over all the possibilities for next year. There are about ten steak consumers on the squad who will not be back next year, and Fonseca wants to get a line on things without waiting until Mr. Comiskey has given a lot of hopeless aspirants a California outing next spring.

Badger Bocek, late of the University of Wisconsin and one of Cicero's strongest young men, was to have been given a tryout had the team played in Boston, but he told Fonseca he had a sore arm. This condition rather startled the Sox skipper, for the 23 year old candidate had not thrown any baseballs. The only reasonable solution was that Bocek had pulled a muscle in the dining room, a hazard which has impaired the efficiency of many a White Sox train rider and hotel inmate.

Miller Passes Cigars.

The only member of the White Sox who got any thrill during the stay here, other than those who occasionally filled inside straights and three card flushes, was Lefty Walter Miller, who this morning received word from his home in Cleveland that he had become father of a boy, who arrived early yesterday to join an 18 months old sister. Lefty passed the cigars.

The Sox are scheduled to play double headers in New York tomorrow and Tuesday and then wind up their eastern season with a single game Wednesday. Thursday and Friday are scheduled off days, after which the Sox will finish up their road season with three games in Cleveland.

Rochester Beats Buffalo, 1 to 0, in Series Opener

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Rochester opened the final playoff series with Buffalo for the International league championship with a 1 to 0 victory today. Tony Kaufmann held the visitors to four hits, all singles, three of them by Len Koenecke. Phil Gallivan allowed Rochester only six hits. An error facilitated the scoring of the only run in the sixth inning.

FIVE BROOKLYN PITCHERS FAIL TO STOP BRUINS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There were no pennant worries to annoy the Cubs yesterday, so they stepped out and made merry at the expense of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Relief from the flag pressure was expressed in two victories, each game concluding with a 6 to 5 score and each furnishing enough amusement to satisfy 12,000 customers.

CHARLEY ROOT.

The Giants' victory at St. Louis eliminated the Cubs from even a mathematical chance for the pennant.

In both engagements the Cubs came up with some effective free hitting such as was painfully absent while they were being subjected to four trimmings at the hands of the leading Giants the two previous days. They were so hungry for hits that it was necessary for Brooklyn to use five pitchers. Even Babe Herman, from whom no word was received while the pennant pressure prevailed, contributed five safe drives as his share.

No. 14 for Root.

The first battle marked Charley Root's 14th victory of the season, but it was attained only after great effort. Partly because of a blunder by Bill Jurges the Dodgers picked up four runs in the sixth, putting them one to the good and undoing the good work the Cubs had done early against Hollis Thurston. But Riggs Stephenson and Franke Demaree conspired to restore a tie in the seventh. Then Billy Herman clinched it in the eighth with a single after Walter Beck, the third Dodger pitcher, had walked Jurges.

Pat Malone, who has lost his status as a starting pitcher, wasn't on hand when the second exhibition got under way, but before the conclusion was reached the big speed baller had made quite a hero of himself. Malone was hustled into action in the sixth when Bud Tinning blew the last part of a five run lead.

Malone's Hit Wins.

Pat started off with a wild pitch that let one of Tinning's assailants scamper home with the tying run. Thereafter he made the Dodgers behave, but that was only part of his work. On top of this he came up with one of his rare singles in the sixth. Billy Campbell, who had doubled off Earl Leonard, used the Malone hit as a means of getting home with the winning run.

FIRST GAME

A triple to right by Frey, combined with an infield out, let the Dodgers move into a one run lead in the first inning, but this was properly adjusted in the Cubs' half. Koenig and Billy Herman singled. Babe Herman did the same, scoring Koenig and putting his namesake on third. W. Herman was nipped at the plate on Stephenson's bounder to Cuccinello. Demaree singled to send Babe Herman home and a single by Hartnett registered Stephenson. That put the Cubs in the lead, 3 to 1.

A pair of outs in the wake of a double by Root in the fourth presented the Cubs with another run, but Root fell apart shortly afterward. He walked Wilson to open the sixth and the pudgy Hack ran in ahead of Leslie, who dispatched a homer into the right field seats. Root disposed of the next batter, but Flowers singled and so did Lopez. Jurges made a bad throw on the latter hit, letting Flowers take third. Lopez then stole second. Root fanned Outen, a pinch hitter, but Boyle ripped off a single on which Flowers and Lopez scored. That gave the Dodgers the lead, 5 to 4.

WISE DAUGHTER'S OWNER, TRAINER HAVE A GOOD CRY

Think She Could Have Won That $81,700 at Belmont

BY FRENCH LANE.

The owner of the Everglade racing stable, Fred A. Burton of Chicago, called up Sherill Ward, the trainer of his steeds, who was in Baltimore yesterday and had a good heart consoling cry with him over the long distance phone.

John Enright of the Union League club, from where Mr. Burton put in the call, was also visibly affected at the grief of his friend and now and then large tears streamed down his cheeks. Yet he was able to explain what it was all about.

It's That $81,700!

"The Belmont Futurity, of course, and the $81,700 prize that went to Mrs. John Hay Whitney when her colt Singing Wood won it, has caused all this sadness," said Mr. Enright.

"Instead of being in Mrs. Whitney's pocketbook that $81,700 should be right here in the Union League club safe in an envelop with Mr. Burton's name written on it. The name of Wise Daughter, owned by Mr. Burton, should be blazing out in the headlines of the papers today as the Futurity winner. Over the sloppy track on which the Futurity was decided Wise Daughter would have tied Singing Wood and all the others into a knot."

"Then why didn't she do it?" Mr. Enright was asked.

She's Still Champion.

A great majority of the racing fans in America will agree with Mr. Enright, for if past performances mean anything Wise Daughter is the champion 2 year old of the year, regardless of Singing Wood's Futurity victory.

Take the Saratoga Special as an example. It was run on Aug. 12 over a fast track. Wise Daughter won it by two lengths and Singing Wood, the Futurity winner, was second. Sir Thomas, which finished second in the Futurity, also was beaten by Wise Daughter in the Special.

Wise Daughter is one of those peculiarly put up horses that is just as speedy over a sloppy track as she is over a running course that is lightning fast. She has demonstrated it more than once this year. She has also demonstrated that she can carry just as much weight as any 3 year old. So she no doubt would have done some real flying in the Futurity mud.

There's Nobody to Blame.

Burton probably would have been comforted a little if he could have blamed Trainer Ward for failing to make Wise Daughter eligible for the Futurity. He might have even threatened to fire him for such an offense, and sometimes that is comforting to some people.

Trainer Ward, whose fees for saddling such a winner would have amounted to more than $8,100, might have been feeling a little better if he could have called his boss a 'Dumb Ox' for failing to make such a race horse eligible for the richest event run in the world.

But there was no one around to blame for the slip-up. Colts and fillies are nominated for the Futurity before they are foaled. The breeder—owner of the mare that is to become the mother—makes the nomination. It is the biggest gamble in horse racing.

Wise Mother, the dam of Wise Daughter, was owned by Howard Black at the time Wise Daughter should have been nominated. He overlooked it and since then has passed away.

Match Race Urged.

Col. M. J. Winn was urged in a number of letters, messages and telephone calls yesterday to arrange for a match race between Singing Wood and Wise Daughter to be run at Washington Park some time during the 18 day meeting which opens there one week from today.

He was scurrying around last night trying to find out if both the star 2 year olds are eligible for the Eastern Shore Handicap to be run at Havre de Grace in Maryland on Sept. 27. If they should meet in that $10,000 stake there would be no necessity of a match race. If they shouldn't come together in the Maryland stake, then a match race would be the only way to ever decide the issue between them.

Col. Winn said he was willing to hang up a liberal purse for such a race. It is one match in which weather and track conditions need not be taken into consideration, for both Singing Wood and Wise Daughter are as good in one kind of going as another.

Wise Daughter is eligible for the Eastern Shore at Havre de Grace and is being pointed for the stake," Owner Burton said last night. He didn't know about Singing Wood.

He said such a match race would interest him.

FALL RACE MEET BEGINS TODAY AT HAVRE DE GRACE

Havre De Grace, Md., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Soaked by the heavy rains of Saturday, the local mile track will offer a muddy reception for the opening of the Maryland fall horse racing season here tomorrow.

Eleven maidens are entered for the first race of the Welfare day program. The feature of the card of seven races will be the $800 Fort Henry, for 3 year olds and up, over a mile and 70 yards.

The scheduled battle between C. V. Whitney's Equipoise and George D. Widener's Jamestown, which has been brought back out of stud, has attracted comment. The two horses are slated to race in the Havre De Grace Cup Handicap, worth $10,000, for 3 year olds and up, over a mile and an eight. It will be run Sept. 30, the last day of the meet.

The other two large stake races, each for a purse of $10,000, are the Havre De Grace's Potomac, for 3 year olds, at a mile and a sixteenth, and the Eastern Shore, for juveniles, at three-quarters of a mile. The overnight purses will be $800.

Paul Dazzo and Sammy Levine, junior lightweights, will renew their feud Friday at Cicero stadium when they meet for eight rounds.

Chilean Soccer Team Defeats Sparta, 2 to 0

The Audux Italiano soccer team of Santiago, Chile, defeated Sparta, Chicago professional champion, 2 to 0, before 4,000 fans at Sparta stadium yesterday in a smartly played contest. Play was made difficult due to a strong wind.

Orr Shoots Wide of Goal.

Sparta missed a chance to score in this period when Joey Orr took a cross which eluded the Audux defense in center field, but shot wide in front of an open goal. Vidano, Ogilvie, Nudera, and Vicek were stars of Sparta's attack.

The Audux squad carried the offense to Sparta in the second period, keeping Goalie Baer at work to keep the score down. Frankie Vondracek, Sparta inside right, was removed following a kicking match with Willie Gornall, Audux right half. Sparta finished the game with ten men, since no substitutions are allowed when a player is sent off the field. The Chileans scored after Vondracek's banishment. Riveros sent the ball forward, Oscar Bolajna, center, kicked it across the field, and Ojeda dashed in to send it into the net.

Play Again Next Sunday.

Lineup of the Audux-Sparta match:

CHILE [2].		SPARTA [0].

SINGING WOOD'S $88,050 LEADS JUVENILE LIST

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A colt, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, now leads the two year old thoroughbred money winning race, monopolized since midseason by fillies, because of his victory in the rich Belmont Futurity Saturday.

Singing Wood's total winnings of $88,050 place him $50,000 ahead of Col. E. R. Bradley's filly, Bazaar, which won the Hopeful at Saratoga and has a total of $38,025. It is unlikely any other juvenile will pass Singing Wood's total this year.

Third in the list is Dixiana farm's Far Star, filly which won the Arlington Futurity. C. V. Whitney's High Glee, which finished fourth in the Belmont Futurity, edged into fourth place ahead of the Greentree stable's Black Buddy. High Glee, a filly, has won $25,775 and Black Buddy, a colt, has won $25,630.

DRIVER KILLED, 2 HURT IN ROBY SPEEDWAY RACE

Cunningham's death and Tollson's injury occurred when the former lost control of his machine on one of the curves. Gaines was hurt when he crashed into a wall after breaking a steering knuckle. The two injured men, both Chicagoans, were taken to St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond.

The race was won by Charles Wiggins of Indianapolis, Lawrence Wiggins of Indianapolis taking second place, and Homer Cloud of Cleveland third.

YAROSZ BOXES VINCE DUNDEE AGAIN TONIGHT

Newark, N. J., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The muddled middleweight championship situation is expected to be made clearer tomorrow night, when two of the foremost contenders—Vince Dundee, Belleville, N. J., veteran, and Ted Yarosz, Pittsburgh youngster—meet for the second time.

Yarosz defeated Dundee in Pittsburgh recently.

George Lott Beats Parker in Exhibition Match

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—George Lott, United States Davis cup team player, defeated Frankie Parker, national claycourts champion, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4, in an exhibition match today.

Dunlap Gains Third Goal in Golf Campaign

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 17.—(AP)—George T. Dunlap Jr., the New York boy who concentrated on developing his golf game because it was good for his health to be outdoors, has now achieved the third and the greatest of his three goals by becoming the new amateur champion of the United States.

For two years, and for old Princeton, too, Dunlap won the highest intercollegiate golfing honors. Last year he was selected for the American Walker cup team and responded by playing some of the most spectacular golf of the international series with England at Brookline. Yesterday, as the climax to a triumphal march through the field at match play, the 24 year old New Yorker whipped Max Marston of Philadelphia, 6 and 5, in the final round of the national tournament.

Hopes for British Title.

If he has any other special objective in mind it is to carry off the chief prize of British amateur golf, too, some day on a return visit to the old country. He came close to achieving the double victory this year, for he reached the semi-finals of the British championship at Hoylake after a great victory over the Canadian ace, Ross Somerville. It was Somerville who turned over possession of the American title trophy yesterday to Dunlap.

The new standard bearer is the youngest amateur king since Bobby Jones scored his first victory in 1924 at the age of 22. Like Jones, Dunlap is good natured and popular. He shot a heartbreaking 68 at Marston in the first round of the final, setting a new course record. George's 68 in the Walker cup matches last year still is talked about, but it was no better from a shot making standpoint than his decisive 68 yesterday.

Dunlap qualified by a hair's breadth in a playoff elimination Wednesday, but he outplayed every opponent in match competition by substantial margins. In succession he beat W. B. McCullough of Philadelphia, 6 and 5; Gus Moreland of Dallas, 4 and 3; Eddie Held of New York, 6 and 5; W. Lawson Little Jr. of San Francisco, 4 and 3, then Marston, 6 and 5.

Favorites Are Upset.

The 1933 tournament contributed some history to the golfing books, featured such upsets as Goodman's defeat by Chandler Egan and Somerville's setback by Lawson Little, besides developing some suggestions for an

GIANTS DEFEAT CARDINALS, 4-3; OTT HITS HOMER

Need Only 2 Victories to Clinch Pennant.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The New York Giants eliminated the last mathetical chance for the Chicago Cubs to overtake them in the National league pennant race by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 4 to 3, today.

MEL OTT.

The Giants also clipped off one of the three victories they need to clinch the flag, in event Pittsburgh continues its winning streak. Only two more victories are needed by New York in their eleven remaining games to assure their presence in the world series.

To Mel Ott, Giant right fielder, goes a large share of the honor for today's victory. His 22d homer of the season in the third inning scoring Terry was a decisive factor. Score:

Beccali Lowers Record for 1,500 Meter Run

MILAN, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Luigi Beccali, Olympic champion, bettered the world's record for the 1,500 meter run today as Italy's track and field forces defeated Great Britain in an international meet. Beccali was clocked in 3:49 flat as compared with Jules Ladoumegue's listed record of 3.49.2.

Nuesslein Beats Tilden in Berlin Pro Tourney

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Hans Nuesslein of Germany, defeated Bill Tilden, 1-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3, in the final round of the singles in a professional tennis tournament today. Tilden and Bruce Barnes won the doubles, defeating Nuesslein and Roman Kajuch, 7-5, 6-1, 6-2.

MOON MULLINS—RELIEVING THE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION

Senators' Rally in 9th Defeats Tigers, 4 to 3

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Washington maintained its pennant march today with a ninth inning rally to beat Detroit, 4 to 3.

A single by Myer with two out and the bases filled put over the tying and winning runs to beat Tom Bridges.

Schulte walked to open the ninth. Kerr advanced him with a sacrifice bunt. Bridges struck out Pinch Hitter Manush and then deliberately walked Pinch Hitter Bolton. With two strikes to his credit Bridges' inside ball flicked the arm of Rice, the third Senator pinch hitter in a row, and then Myers' single ended the game.

New York gained a half game by winning a double header from Cleveland, but the mathematical chances of Washington for the championship were not hurt appreciably, the Senators holding a 9½ game lead. Score:

YANKS WIN TWICE.

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Babe Ruth hit two home runs today and Russell Van Atta and Lefty Gomez pitched airtight ball to give the Yankees a double victory over the Cleveland Indians, 3 to 2 and 6 to 1.

Ruth hit a homer in each game, his 29th and 30th of the season, and in addition scored the winning run in the opener. Monte Pearson pitched three hit ball for Cleveland, but lost out in the eighth when Bill Knickerbocker's error on Ben Chapman's grounder allowed Ruth to score after the Babe had been passed.

Gomez struck out 13 Cleveland batters in the second game. Bill Dickey drove in three runs, two with a homer in the eighth. Scores:

PERRY AND VINES ADVANCE IN WEST COAST NET MEET

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Frederick Perry, national champion and English Davis cup star, made a successful first appearance in the defense of his Pacific southwest singles title today by defeating Richard Belote of South Pasadena, California intercollegiate doubles champion, 6-1, 6-1.

The favorites experienced little opposition. Harold Les of England breezed through Stanley Briggs of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-3; E. R. Avery of England won from Lawrence Myers of Santa Monica, 6-3, 6-4; Frank Wilde of England made short work of George Humiston of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-4, and John Van Ryn of Philadelphia eliminated Carl Busch of Long Beach, 6-1, 6-2.

Eikichi Ioth, Japanese junior champion, ran into difficulty before he defeated Boyd Georgi of Alhamba, 4-6, 9-7, 7-5. William Robertson of Minneapolis was ousted from competition by Cliff Johnson of Glendale, 6-2, 6-0.

Elizabeth Ryan of England and Alice Marble of San Francisco defeated Cecil Miner and Priscilla Merwin, Los Angeles, 6-0, 6-0, in the second round of the women's doubles.

Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, and Mrs. L. A. Harper of Oakland defeated Doris Burke and Opal Lesperance of Los Angeles, 6-0, 6-1.

Cubs Defeat Dodgers, 6-5, in Two Games

sixth, but in the seventh the Cubs laid down a barrage that put him out of action. Stephenson doubled to right with one out and scored the tying run on Demaree's single. Camilli walked and Ryan vanished to make room for Beck. The latter put a quick stop to the disturbance.

Jurges walked to open the eighth, moved around to third on a couple of outs, and registered the winning run on Billy Herman's single which sailed into right.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs fortified Tinning with a three run lead in the first inning. Koenig welcomed Carroll with a single to left and Billy Herman followed with a single to right. Koenig going to third when Frederick fumbled. A wild pitch let Koenig score and sent W. Herman to second. After Babe Herman had walked, Stephenson slapped a single into center to score W. Herman. The Babe went to third on the hit and registered on a wild pitch. Frey fumbled Demaree's grounder, but a double play saved Carroll from further annoyance for the time being.

Tinning and Jurges Go Wild.

Wildness on the part of Tinning, not to mention a similar defect on the part of Jurges, caused the surge in the Brooklyn fifth, when three scored. For a starter Tinning walked Wright and Flowers. Outen's single filled the bases. Wright and Flowers scored on a single produced by Pinch Hitter Hutcheson. Boyle bounced to Jurges, who stepped on second to force Hutcheson and threw wild to first trying for a double play. Jurges' bad aim let Outen score the third and last run of the inning.

The tie brought on by the Dodgers in the sixth began with a single by Wilson. Cuccinello also singled to left, but Hack had to wait to see whether the ball would be caught, and this gave Stevie a chance to force him at second, thus robbing Cuccinello of his hit. Wright then singled to center and Flowers doubled, Cuccinello scoring. Malone replaced Tinning and purposely walked Outen, filling the bases. A wild pitch let Wright score the tying run.

Malone Drives in Campbell.

After Malone's single in the wake of Campbell's double in the sixth had furnished the winning run, the big right hander didn't give the enemy any leeway until the ninth, when he suddenly tumbled into a real jam. Lopez batted for Leonard and singled with one out. A foul fly to Stephenson disposed of Boyle. Then Frey doubled to right, Lopez stopping at third. Frederick slammed a wicked liner to left, but Stephenson reached up over his head and flagged it to end the show.

Cubs to Start Herrmann or Henshaw Today

A pitcher whose name starts with H will pitch for the Cubs today, according to Manager Grimm. It will be either Leroy Herrmann or Roy Henshaw. The idea of this is to get a line on them right now instead of waiting until spring training. Van Lingle Mungo may be the Dodger starter.

North Side Police Win in 11th, 10-8

North Siders won the first game of the series for the baseball championship of the police department yesterday, beating the South Siders, 10 to 8, in 11 innings at Comiskey park.

The North Side team took an early lead, scoring 5 runs off Roy Gutcher in the first inning, in which Gutcher's wildness and errors by his teammates were combined with one hit.

Delaney pitched shut out ball for the North Side until the fifth inning, when he was touched for a pair of runs. He surrendered two more runs in the sixth. Going into the ninth the North Side was leading, 8 to 4. E. Mullaney doubled to clear the bases and another run soon tied the score.

Eddie Dennis, who pitched for the South Siders after the fourth inning, pitched effectively until the eleventh.

The second game will be played at Comiskey park next Sunday and the third the following Saturday at Wrigley field. The games are being played under the auspices of the Policemen's Benevolent association. Score:

NOW WE LEARN U. S. HAS ELEVEN KINDS OF MONEY

Inflation Plans Cause Interest in Currency.

Interest in the money questions aroused by the events of the last few months again calls attention to the different kinds of money which are in use in the United States. In ordinary times money is money, and as long as the average citizen knows that the "United States is back of it," he cares little whether it is a federal reserve note, a bank note, a silver certificate or a gold certificate. His chief concern is to get some.

When the prospect of inflation began to take definite form early this year, the public began to show more interest in the different kinds of money. The "money wise" began to whisper advice to their friends to get gold or gold certificates.

All Money On Parity.

But when the public had withdrawn considerably over a billion dollars in gold and gold certificates the government stepped in. President Roosevelt issued his manifesto forbidding the hoarding of gold under the authority of a forgotten war-time emergency measure.

It now appears that regardless of the degree of inflation, one type of money is likely to be as good as another. The person who refuses to surrender his gold and gold certificates may get a prison sentence or a heavy fine, as provided by the emergency law rushed through congress during the banking holiday. Even if he escapes this, he will undoubtedly find it difficult to get rid of the gold. A merchant will naturally be reluctant to accept money the possession of which has been forbidden by the government.

Nine Kinds of Money.

Exclusive of subsidiary silver and minor coin there are nine different kinds of money in use in this country. This includes gold coins and gold certificates.

There is approximately 5¾ billions of all moneys in actual circulation in the country or approximately $52.23 for each inhabitant. By far the most important type of money out are the federal reserve notes, of which there are approximately 3¼ billions, or more than half the total.

The different kinds of money in use and the approximate amount of each in actual circulation are:

Gold coin or bullion	$ 324,000,000
Gold certificates	280,000,000
Standard silver dollars	28,000,000
Silver certificates	359,000,000
Treasury notes of 1890	1,000,000
Subsidiary silver	252,109,000
Minor coin	112,000,000
United States notes	265,000,000
Federal reserve notes	3,167,000,000
Federal reserve bank notes	98,000,000
National bank notes	922,000,000
Total	$5,813,000,000

Reserve Notes Elastic.

Federal reserve notes are the most elastic circulating medium. These notes require a 40 per cent gold backing with the remaining 60 per cent in eligible commercial paper and government bonds. Until recently a 60 per cent backing of prime commercial paper was required for those notes, but congress authorized the substitution in part of government bonds.

The reserve system now holds 3 millions of gold against the 3 billion 477 millions of notes outstanding. Thus a further substantial expansion of this money is possible without resort to inflation legislation.

Until recently, the Federal reserve bank notes were an unimportant issue which was being retired. They have become the new "asset currency" under the emergency banking legislation. It has no gold backing, being secured entirely by government bonds and other securities.

Oats Crops Are Reported Smallest in Many Years

Oat production comes the nearest to being a failure that producers have known in years. The Iowa oat crop is only 118,617,000 bushels, a shortage of 107,000,000 bushels under the production of 1932, and compared with a total yield of 216,000,000 bushels for the five year average. Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio have also suffered heavy losses and in the northwestern states the crop is reduced more than 50 per cent. Detailed comparisons as given by the government, with last three ciphers omitted, follow:

	September, 1933.	August, 1933.	Final, 1932.
Ohio	26,052	26,720	45,344
Indiana	29,232	30,145	58,950

NEWTON BAKER URGES CREATION OF SINGLE U. S. BANKING SYSTEM

Cleveland, O., Sept. 16.—(AP)—Creation of a single system of banking for the United States under the guidance and control of the federal reserve board was advocated by Newton D. Baker in a speech tnight as a part of the commencement program of the American Institute of Banking.

The former secretary of war said the state banking system should be eliminated from the financial scheme in favor of the national banks in order to consolidate the banking strength of the country in a single structure.

The greatest danger in the present system of national and state chartered institutions, he said, is that of competition between them, which he said leads to lowering the safeguards.

This defect, Mr. Baker said, became particularly apparent and dangerous in time of financial strain.

STREET CAR MEN STUDY MEANS TO ATTRACT CAPITAL

Meet Here Today on Finance Problems.

Over 1,000 members of the American Transit association, consisting mainly of executives representing the more important electric railway and bus transportation companies of the United States and Canada, will meet in their annual convention at the Stevens hotel this morning and continue in session over Wednesday.

The meeting is described as one of the most important in recent years. Larger subjects to be considered are the effects of the NRA movement on the industry, refinancing and fare problems and the completion of a new car now under construction and said to be practically noiseless.

Finishing Up Code.

Final steps in bringing the industry, which employs more than 225,000 men, under an NRA code now are being taken in Washington, D. C. The code provides for acceptance of all provisions of the President's reëmployment plan in regard to minimum wages and generally fixes a 48 hour maximum week, although a 54 hour week is provided for in exceptional cases.

Grave refinancing problems confront many companies. In dire straits even prior to the beginning of the country-wide depression, the industry has found much difficulty in obtaining new money with which to finance extensions and betterments. Complete financial reorganization has been brought about on some of the larger properties and many others face the necessity of taking similar action.

Much interest attaches to the discussion of fares. A special committee which has been working for three years on the fare problem will make its final report at this meeting.

Test Noiseless Car.

More than $500,000 already have been spent on experiments with the new noiseless car. Work on it has been in progress in Brooklyn, New York, Ann Arbor, Mich., and Lafayette, Ind., laboratories for more than three years. Revolutionary changes had been made in the old type of vehicle. Elimination of practically all truck noises responsible for a major part of all sounds emanating from cars has been achieved.

CHINA CREATES COUNCIL TO SPEND U. S. COTTON LOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 18.—[Monday.]—Wang Ching-wei, president of the Chinese executive yuan and foreign minister, today announced the creation of a national economic council to have sole charge of distribution of the $50,000,000 wheat and cotton loan negotiated with the United States.

The council's activities will be directed by a standing committee composed of Wang Ching-wei, Finance Minister T. V. Soong and Sun Fo, head of the legislative yuan, assisted by leading bankers and economists and several American and European technical experts recommended by the league of nations.

Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese generalissimo, who was originally a member of the economic council, resigned to allay the Cantonese suspicion that the loan is likely to be used for military purposes.

CALL FOR 10,000 PICKETERS IN JERSEY STRIKE

Paterson, N. J., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Strike leaders tonight issued a call for 10,000 picketers to go out tomorrow and picket every silk mill in the city, this in answer to the manufacturers' announcement that the mills will reopen tomorrow morning for the return of workers to their looms.

Tomorrow is regarded in union circles as the crucial day in the strike, which began last week, when leaders called out all workers in protest against the NRA tentative silk code, made effective pending the establishment of a permanent code.

The AC Spark Plug company, of Flint, Mich., a division of the General Motors corporation, reports gains of 185 per cent in dollar sales volume and of 230 per cent in pay rolls during August over those of August, 1932. Sales last month equalled those of the preceding month. Employment approximated 4,000 workers, representing an increase of 70 per cent over employment in August, 1932. Present unfilled orders are substantially higher than those of the same time a year ago.

U.S. Chamber to Poll Views on Transit Regulation

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The United States Chamber of Commerce proposes to find out—by a canvass—what the rank and file of the nation's business men think about further equalizing competition among the three major carriers—rail, water, and highway. To determine this, the chamber announced today, it had instituted a poll, based primarily on the report of a representative committee which recently ended a study of the carrier problem.

Two Bankers Join Home Owners' Loan Corp. Staff

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—James Bruce of Baltimore and George M. Lindsay of New York were added to the staff of the Home Owners' Loan corporation today, the former as financial adviser and the latter as fiscal agent. The Baltimorean, son of former Senator William Cabell Bruce, is a former vice president of the Chase National bank. Lindsay has served as vice president and director of Blair corporation and in the same capacity with Bancamerica.

GRAIN TRADERS ARE CONVINCED INFLATION HERE

Expect Effect Will Be Marked.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The grain trade has apparently finally made up its mind inflation is no longer a theory but has become an actual fact, even though the government has not as yet started to issue currency as provided for among the numerous powers which congress delegated to President Roosevelt.

As the trade sees it, inflation talk is again the dominating influence in shaping the trend of the markets and other influences can be largely ignored. Extreme irregularity is expected to be witnessed, with probably rather violent fluctuations in prices at times. However, developments during the last week indicated the administration continued to have the desire to reëstablish agricultural products at a level that would give farmers the purchasing power enjoyed during the 1909-'14 period.

Express Bullish Views.

As Secretary of Agriculture Wallace recently estimated the farm buying power constituted 45 per cent of that of the country, many traders who have been expressing bullish views for some time regarding the market feel that nothing will be left undone to guarantee the success of the NRA program.

As the price of American grains has for a long time been above a world export parity, with abnormally short yields this season—apparently materially below the average annual consumption—the effect of inflation is expected to be extremely marked, without the low levels of prices in other countries having any material effect on the markets.

Supply Down Considerably.

With the possible exception of wheat, the estimated supply of all other grains for the current season in the United States is materially less than has been consumed for a number of years past. Leading Chicago statisticians unite in the belief that the government has underestimated the probable wheat disappearance this season, and it is pointed out that this situation may find its parallel in Europe and other countries, as consumption is to a large extent determined by the amount of grain available.

Regardless of the effect of inflation, there are many operators who feel that the grain markets as yet have scarcely felt the effect of the abnormally short crops harvested this season, and that prevailing prices or higher would be justified under even normal conditions. How high grains may go is regarded as any man's guess, and no figures are being mentioned in well informed quarters, as there is nothing by which the present situation can be gauged.

1797 in England.

With the possible exception of the civil war period, when cash wheat in Chicago was quoted as high as $3, it is necessary to go back to what happened in 1797 in England, when that country temporarily abandoned the gold standard, to get a comparison with the present situation. Between that date and 1814 there was one year when the price of wheat on a gold basis brought in excess of $3 per bushel, as the average. The price likewise dropped rapidly when the gold standard was restored, with an aftermath of demands for farm relief such as have prevailed in the United States since the world war.

The only actual result of the English farm relief measures, which occupied the attention of parliament for a number of years, was practically to eliminate England as an agricultural country, and the effects are still to be seen in its relatively small production of grain.

As those who have made a close study of the grain situation see it, routine news will probably have comparatively little effect on the markets. However, this view is qualified to some extent by a belief that in case of a short crop of wheat in Argentina and Australia this season the demand for the cash article might become so pronounced that the American markets would be forced to take cognizance of the world situation.

Prices of Wheat Gain.

Wheat prices advanced in a most violent manner during the last week, with net gains of 10¼ to 10⅝ cents. September finished Saturday at 91¾ cents, with December at 95¾ to 96 cents and May at 99⅝ to 99⅞ cents, the market being the highest since Aug. 15. Range of prices follows:

What Corn Did.

Corn can only be considered as influenced by the same factors as wheat, according to trade views, although the crop has not been harvested as yet, and killing frost at an unusually early date might force a drastic revision downward in the indicated yield. Net gains for the week were 5¼ to 5⅝ cents, with September quoted at 51⅛ cents on Saturday; December, 55⅝ to 55¾ cents, and May, 62⅛ to 62¼ cents. Range of prices follows:

Oats gained 2⅜ to 3½ cents for the week, with September closing at 38½ cents on Saturday, while the December was 41⅞ to 42 cents and May at 45¼ to 45⅝ cents.

Soviet Credit Topic of New Conferences

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Additional conferences of Reconstruction Finance corporation officials and representatives of the Amtorg Trading corporation are to be held in a week or so, so it was said today, to continue negotiations for a loan of approximately $75,000,000 to the soviet government. The money is to be spent in the United States by the soviet government through its agency the Amtorg Trading corporation, in the purchase of cotton, steel, copper, aluminum, machinery, and metals.

At the offices of the Amtorg corporation officials were reluctant to go into detail as to the conferences already held with Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, and the pending negotiations. "It is all a matter of obtaining the necessary credits," was the comment of the Amtorg official. "If the credits can be arranged and the negotiations successfully carried through, an announcement to that effect will be then made. At present we are not in position to add much beyond that."

Spent $7½ Billions.

Attention was directed to the fact that in the last five years purchases by the soviet government in other countries have amounted to more than $2,500,000,000. "Our requirements during the second five year plan will be greater than ever," this official said. This same official pointed out that soviet imports in the first nine months in 1930 from the United States were in excess of $116,000,000. In 1931 the imports dropped to 12 million dollars, and were less last year. He said that this business was given to other countries where better credit terms could be obtained.

This official quoted Peter A. Bogdanov, chairman of the Amtorg Trading corporation here, who recently said: "We are ready to do business in the United States, and, when acceptable terms are offered, are placing orders here. Under present conditions, however, the number of such cases is necessarily limited.

Can Get 3 Year Credit.

"It should provide food for thought to those interested in bringing about improved conditions in American industries that a number of firms are using their branches in England and Germany to take advantage of the long term credits guaranteed by European governments on orders placed by the soviet union. In other cases foreign manufacturers have bought up American patents to be in a position to produce equipment formerly sold by this country to soviet Russia."

It was explained that the soviet government is able to obtain three to four year credits in buying from other countries.

PICKUP ENABLES B. & O. TO REDEEM BONDS FOR CASH

Baltimore, Sept. 17.—(AP)—George M. Shriver, senior vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, today announced that "as result of improved business conditions" his railroad was in a position to pay the $5,000,000 Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling consolidated bonds that mature Oct. 1.

Last July the railroad announced the completion of arrangements to refinance the securities but this, Shriver stated today, has been found "unnecessary" and the amount will be paid in full upon presentation of the bonds at maturity.

Palmer & Co. Creditors to Receive 15 Pct. Dividend

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—Creditors of Palmer & Co., a former New York stock exchange firm that was petitioned into bankruptcy on Dec. 9, 1931, will receive an additional dividend of 15 per cent, it was announced today by Percival E. Jackson of counsel for the Plan Liquidating corporation. The dividend will bring payments to date of 50 per cent.

Americans to Replace Chinese on Grace Liners

San Pedro, Cal., Sept. 17.—The Grace Lines today announced that in the future the company's ships will be manned entirely by Americans. Chinese now dominate as room stewards, waiters and galley hands.

STEEL OUTPUT OFF SLIGHTLY DURING WEEK

Backlogs Are Being Drained, However.

Specifications against expiring third quarter contracts, though unaccompanied by commitments for the fourth quarter, were in sufficient volume to restrict the decline in steel production last week to one point, making the national average 41 per cent, according to the magazine Steel.

In fact, in some districts operations were advanced, and in some were unchanged. At Pittsburgh they were unchanged at 35 per cent; at Detroit, unchanged at 55; at Wheeling, unchanged at 75, and at Birmingham, steady at 50. Operations improved 11 points to 96 in New England, 4 points to 60 at Cleveland, 17 points to 83 at Lorain, and one point to 46 in the Youngstown district.

On the other hand the steel works average declined 5 points to 40 at Chicago, 1½ points to 35½ in eastern Pennsylvania, and 3 points to 45 at Buffalo.

Backlogs Being Drained.

"But the unbalanced market situation is rapidly draining backlogs away," declares Steel, "and unless there is a reversal in the next ten days the mills will enter the last quarter practically devoid of orders, with a consequent further break in activity. Sentiment weakened perceptibly last week.

"For this stalemate the confused situation arising from the new steel code is partly responsible. An expected clarification failed last week when important eastern mills withdrew their official fourth quarter quotations on bars, plates, and shapes, and further delay was encountered in filing new schedules on other products and in agreeing upon an allowance for trucking."

The base of the market structure is too narrow, says the review. While tin plate specifications for November are strong, the "seasonal blank in automotive requirements, due to changes in models," is impending. Reinforcements from railroads and federal building projects are still inadequate.

Autos Help Sheets and Bars.

Automotive releases have accelerated business in sheets and bars. As for railroad participation, the Pennsylvania has asked for bids, closing Sept. 28 and 29, on 12,000 tons of various products. Furthermore, the Chesapeake and Ohio is about to place 8,000 tons of fastenings. The New York Central has authorized 10,000 tons of rails and released 2,000 tons.

"Federal work looms increasingly in structurals," notes the review. Bids are in on 13,000 tons for the Grand Island bridges at Buffalo. However, actual structural steel awards last week, totaling 10,583 tons, were short of the weekly average for 1933.

Price Changes Irregular.

Price developments are irregular. A Pittsburgh mill has broken the deadlock in steel scrap by a purchase at $13, followed by one at $12.50. "Most melters are willing only to take in distress lots at distress prices," comments Steel.

SINCLAIR TO OPEN EXTENSIVE AD DRIVE TOMORROW

The Sinclair Refining company will launch tomorrow the most intensive newspaper advertising campaign the company has ever undertaken, announces A. H. Sus, manager of the central district. The campaign introduces the new Sinclair H-C gasoline to motorists, and includes promotional effort for Sinclair Opaline and Sinclair Pennsylvania motor oils.

Final details of the sales and advertising drive for the central section will be arranged at the sales meeting to be held today by 300 agents, salesmen, and special representatives from the Illinois, Wisconsin, northern Michigan, and Chicago areas. The Sinclair Refining company has also announced its decision to extend to other cities its tamperproof can method of selling motor oil.

New York, Sept. 17.—Alpha Distributors, Inc., has been formed by the former executives of the securities department of Henry L. Doherty & Co. to deal in securities of every kind. R. C. Russum is president of the organization and S. B. Irelan is first vice president and general manager. Offices will be located in New York and Chicago and other principal cities.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—Negotiations for the purchase by French interests of 3,000,000 bales of American cotton, if the aid of the United States government can be enlisted, will be started this week with the arrival on Wednesday on the S. S. Aquitania of B. Coles Neidecker, American head of the banking firm of Neidecker & Cie of Paris.

According to a statement issued today by the New York office of the bank, the credit arrangements to be discussed in the cotton deal will be based partly on the wheat formula developed by Mr. Neidecker when he represented a grain cartel in purchasing 50,000,000 bushels of wheat from the farm board two years ago.

"Arriving in New York, he will proceed immediately to Washington to complete the negotiations" according to the statement, "which are being undertaken at a time favorable to our new agricultural program. There are evidences that the governmental program to finance cotton exports will be achieved either by the formation of a bank under the Edge act, or the formation of a separate corporation."

Mr. Neidecker, after serving in the American aviation force during the world war, became a member of the United States relief commission to Poland. He founded the Travelers Bank of Paris in 1921, and Neidecker & Cie in 1926, and subsequently has been active in international credit operations.

Gold Shares Lead in Swift Upturn.

New York, Sept. 17.—Further weakening of the dollar on the foreign exchanges, coupled with the fresh crop of currency expansion predictions being put out by prophets of the new deal régime, have swung the speculative element once more to the constructive side of the stock market. The averages advanced nearly four points in last week's trading.

Saturday's abbreviated market was impressive to those looking for signs of the "next major advance" not so much for the sharp gains recorded—the average rose more than 2 points—as for the character of the buying that made its appearance. While the performances of some of the volatile issues, so called, were colorful, it was the old line leaders of the list, the time tried veterans like American Can, United States Steel, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse, and the like, upon which the buying of the week-end rally seemed to converge. This, brokers of Wall street agree, is often a sign that a resumption of the advance is at hand.

Gift to a carefree daughter

...from the one who wants her future to be secure

SHE IS NOT seriously worried about financial matters now. Yet some day you expect that some of your property will be hers. In its care, problems will arise that no one today can foresee.

Against these future changes in economic and business conditions, what effective safeguard can your Will provide?

There is a legacy you can leave which does not consist of property and security holdings. It is a responsibility you impose upon an experienced trustee. It assures a continuing care to your daughter's property... a care that will be alert to changing times.

The Northern Trust Company has provided this type of care for many years through the varying phases of the economic cycle.

In 1889 it began business by accepting in full the spirit of the trust obligation. It does so today. This institution's identity, and its concept of trusteeship, have remained unchanged for more than forty-four years.

You and your attorney are invited to consider The Northern Trust Company as executor and trustee of your estate.

HOME OWNERS' LOAN BONDS IN GOOD DEMAND

Touch 92¾ During Week; Interest Widespread.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Widespread interest in the market on the bonds of the new Home Owners' Loan corporation is reported by Chicago unlisted brokers. Active trading has been carried on in the bonds on a when issued basis for several days.

At the close of last week the bonds were quoted 89½ to 90½ as compared with a high quotation of 92¾ earlier in the week. The first transaction was made more than a week ago on the New York real estate board. For the first few days the market hovered near 85 bid to 90 asked. Early this week the price crawled up to 92¾ with a few sales reported at that figure. Later in the week the market weakened.

Inquiries Are Numerous.

Inquiries regarding the bonds are being received by Chicago dealers from all parts of the country. Individuals and firms which have pledged themselves to take the bonds in exchange for existing home mortgages have been anxious to get a line on the market, according to Sterling, Barron & Co.

The bonds are guaranteed as to interest only by the federal government and run for eighteen years. It is stated in the text on the face of the bonds that the right is reserved to call the bonds at par on any interest date. Bonds released in this manner will be drawn by lot and notice of such redemption must be published in each state sixty days before the date of redemption.

Brokers point out that this provision will have an important bearing on the market in the bonds. It is unlikely, they state, that these bonds will be able to get above par because they may be called at any time at this figure.

Try to Hold Them Near Par.

The government has indicated, however, that it will do all in its power to keep the bonds near par. It has made them eligible for loans at the RFC at 80 per cent; they are exempt from local taxes and federal taxes, except gift and surtaxes; they are acceptable at par as security for postal savings deposits and are eligible for collateral at the Federal Reserve banks for loans to member institutions.

With these safeguards brokers expect that the market will gradually stabilize between 85 and 95. The immediate market future of the bonds is uncertain because many of those accepting the bonds in exchange for mortgages want to convert them into cash at once. This will act as a depressing market factor for some time, it is believed.

John R. Thompson Co.

Investors' Guide: I am interested in J. R. Thompson stock. Will you please give me some information concerning it?—G. J.

Answer: John R. Thompson company operates about 110 cafeteria type restaurants. About 45 are in Chicago and 13 in New York. On July 25, 1933, it was announced that beer was being sold in 12 units, those in which competition made it necessary.

Curtailed public buying power and lower prices cut net sales in the first half of 1933 to $5,096,000 in comparison with $6,417,000 for the first six months of 1932. Loss was $292,000, against net income of $334,000, or $1.11 per share, for the corresponding 1932 period.

Sales in 1932 were $12,151,000, a drop of more than 15 per cent from sales of $14,360,000 for 1931. Net income was $288,000, or 96 cents per share. This was after nonrecurring loss of $299,000. Net income for 1931 was $904,000, or $3.01 per share, against $1,127,000 for 1930. Net in 1929 was $1,295,000.

The company finished 1932 with current assets, including cash assets of $1,843,000, of $2,038,000 and current liabilities of $1,157,000. There was no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 300,000 shares of $25 par stock, on which dividends of 25 cents a quarter are being paid. The dividend meeting scheduled for Sept. 9, however, was postponed to Sept. 19.

On Sept. 1 the company's current sales were said to be somewhat better than those in previous quarters, but under those of the same time of 1932. Charles A. McCulloch and Herman Waldeck recently resigned as directors. Interests headed by John R. Thompson Jr., are now in charge of the company.

The stock is speculative.

Market Street Railway.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me information on Market Street Railway 7s, due 1940?—Mrs. B. L. C.

Answer: Market Street Railway company operates traction properties in San Francisco on a straight 5 cent fare. It operates some local bus lines. Some competition is experienced from a municipally owned line operating about 62 miles of track.

It is an operating company controlled by Standard Gas and Electric company and managed by Byllesby Engineering and Management Company of Chicago.

Reflecting the experience of traction companies in general revenues have shown a downward trend for years. The company barely covered fixed charges in 1932. In 1931 charges were earned 1.20 times, against 1.26 times in 1930, 1.40 times in 1929 and 1.16 times in 1928.

Unfavorable earnings trend, as well as lack of satisfactory margin of coverage, and unfavorable current position cause the $7,156,000 first mortgage 7s, due 1940, to be considered speculative.

UNCERTAINTY RULES IN LISTED BOND TRADING

Foreign Issues Benefited by Slip of Dollar.

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The bond market had its better moments during the last week, but it finished on a note of uncertainty with price trends generally obscured by irregularities.

After Monday trading volume picked up noticeably, although activity was centered principally in secondary issues which, as usual, were inclined to follow stocks rather closely. Although there were a number of advances among the specialties, net changes, as a whole, were small and unimportant.

United States government securities, after maintaining a relatively firm tone for several weeks on the apparent assumption that the treasury's borrowing would continue at an abnormally low rate of interest, turned a little soft as the week ended.

Inflation Talk Factor.

The easier tone in this section was attributed partly to fresh rumors of currency inflation, accompanied by the sharp decline of the American dollar in foreign exchange markets, and uncertainties as to the government's future fiscal policy.

Apparently reflecting the same influences, prime corporate investment issues were none too buoyant. The majority of these were barely steady most of the time. Public utility loans were under some pressure as doubts began to appear as to whether, under the administration's recovery program, coupled with higher taxes and lower rates, earnings could be held around their recent levels.

Coincident with the further slump of the dollar, bonds of some of the countries still on the gold standard moved up several points to new high levels for the last year or more.

Dollar Loans Advance.

The best of these advances were recorded by dollar loans of Dutch East Indies, France, and Switzerland. Renewed purchases were of such maturities at prices ranging from $1,400 to more than $1,450 per $1,000 par value bond was interpreted as a "capital flight." In other words, dollars, it is believed, are being transferred into gold currencies by the simple means of buying the bonds here then selling them abroad.

Under the existing governmental restrictions, dollars cannot be changed into foreign currencies except for commercial or other so-called legitimate purposes. The majority of the foreign gold bonds carry coupons ranging from 5½ to 7½ per cent.

PARIS BOURSE TO LIST FOREIGN STOCKS AGAIN

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Posting of quotations on foreign stocks, prohibited since the Oustric bank scandal of 1930, will be permitted on the Paris bourse under a decree approved at a cabinet session.

Bourse circles expect several American stocks, including British and American tobaccos, to be introduced. Issues other than state and municipal must be approved by a committee of brokers and bankers.

The action was interpreted in bourse circles as an attempt to stimulate a lagging market.

The Oustric bank was placed in judicial liquidation Nov. 7, 1930. The bank's outstanding stock and its affiliations were estimated at a nominal value of 100,000,000 francs [then about $4,000,000].

Officials of the bank were later charged with mishandling of funds. The ensuing scandal eventually was a principal factor in the fall of Premier Tardieu's government on Dec. 4, 1930.

Sales of 27 Chains Rise 5.7% Above August, 1932

Sales of the first 27 chain store organizations reporting for August advanced 5.7 per cent over a year ago. Speciality and department store systems had the largest gains.

PROVISIONS HIGHER

Inflation talk had considerable influence on hog products during the last week, and there was also some buying of lard said to have been based on prospects of a liberal export business with Russia in case the latter country secures a large loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Lard gained 47½ to 50 cents and bellies 24 to 47½ cents for the week. Prices follow:

PRODUCTION OFF IN WEEK ENDED ON SEPTEMBER 9

Auto Output Reduced 7.9 Per Cent.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Productive activity showed a further slackening during the week ended Sept. 9, according to the weekly survey of domestic business conditions made public today by the department of commerce.

Automobile output, affected by schedule reductions and the holiday, was reduced by 7.9 per cent. Steel ingot production continued to decline and the current rate of operations is back to the level prevailing in the latter part of May.

Freight carloadings for the latest week reported reached the highest point so far this year with percentage increases of 5.5 and 19 per cent over the preceding week and the corresponding week in 1932. Bituminous coal production increased 2.8 per cent, reaching a new high for the year.

Electric Output Higher.

Electric current output was slightly higher. Crude petroleum production declined, but was still at a high rate. Lumber output was the lowest since the first week of July. Cotton receipts continued to increase and amounted to 259,000 bales for the latest week reported.

Wholesale prices again increased. Fisher's Index advanced fractionally to approximately 71 per cent of the 1926 average, with nonagricultural prices increasing and agricultural prices remaining unchanged.

Spot cotton at New York declined. Grain prices were weak and lower. The iron and steel composite price was unchanged, following the month-end increase.

Loan Accounts Expand.

Member banks of the reserve system reported a slight expansion in their loan accounts. Their investments were lightened by $50,000,000 as a result of the drop in their holdings of United States government securities. Increases occurred in federal reserve bank holdings of government securities, total reserve bank credit, and in member bank reserve balances. Bills discounted decreased by $8,000,000.

The amount of money in circulation advanced over the preceding week, due probably to holiday requirements, but the total was lower than a year ago. Stock prices, after advancing for the two preceding weeks, declined. Bond prices also were lower. Bank debits increased and were higher than a year ago. Commercial failures again dropped to a new low, and the week's total of 255 compares with 420 in the same week of 1932.

BUYING FLURRY STIRS RETAILERS OF CLEVELAND

Cleveland, O., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—This city's shopping districts beamed with a broad smile upon the big board in the public square last week as a teeming throng of buyers clogged downtown traffic and sidewalks as proof of what NRA has done.

Retail merchants, who generally can diagnose the direct cause of unexpected buying flurries, were stumped at first.

But the Blue Eagle on the square gave him one wink and pointed his thunderbolt at the honor roll of names on the huge board; names of employers who have given employment to thousands of jobless and enabled them to increase the purchasing power of the city's buyers.

MIDDLE WEST UNIT CUTS PFD. RATE IN HALF

Directors of the West Texas Utilities company have declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the $6 cumulative preferred stock payable Oct. 1, 1933, to stock of record Sept. 15. This payment represents a reduction of 50 per cent from the normal rate.

It was stated that this action was taken due to the necessity for making additional provision for depreciation and an increase in federal and other taxes. The company is a unit in the Middle West Utilities system.

GERMANY CAN'T BORROW AGAIN, BRITISHER SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 16.—Germany will not be able to raise money again in Britain, France, or the United States "during our lifetime," declared Sir Arthur Samuel, member of parliament and former financial secretary of the treasury, speaking at Cambridge today.

He asserted unjustifiable debts were the principal cause of the partial collapse of the world economic structure, and defaults on those debts were among the main reasons for Britain's unemployment figures.

Inflation Fever Sends Curb Securities Higher

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A new inflationary fever inspired the resumption of bullish activity on the curb market last week. Early in the period the list broke out of its narrow rut with a substantial rally. Accumulation of equities continued with further resumption of the advance at midweek. Advances were later shaded by substantial realizing.

Cudahy, Corn Products to Meet on Dividends

Dividend meetings are scheduled for this week by the following companies, among others: Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Corn Products Refining, Cudahy Packing, Howe Sound, R. H. Macy, U. S. Smelting, Refining and Mining, and Westinghouse Air Brake.

Index Shows Recession in August Manufacturing

Recession in manufacturing activity in late summer was reflected in the analist index of business activity for August. The index dropped to 84.0 thus cancelling 17 per cent of the unprecedented rise from a March level of 58.5 to 89.4 in July.

N. Y. Exchange to Delist Drug, Inc., Capital Stock

The $10 par value capital stock of Drug, Inc., recently dissolved, will be removed from the New York Stock exchange list Sept. 25.

BANKERS' TRUST TO CLOSE PARIS OFFICE SEPT. 30

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—Directors of the Bankers' Trust company have voted to discontinue operation of the bank's office in Paris as of Sept. 30, 1933, according to an announcement made today by S. Sloan Colt, president of the bank. Morgan et Cie., who acted as one of the correspondents of the bank in Paris, have been asked to render service to clients of the bank's office.

The Paris office of the bank had been maintained for thirteen years. Mr. Colt did not explain the reason for the closing of the office, but it is understood that the decline in foreign banking business generally dictated the step. The bank's office in London will be continue.

TRADE SCHOOLS.

RIGHT NOW!

Moler's Private Lesson Course in BEAUTY CULTURE is so original it has no competition—no imitators—nothing just as good!

It will continue after the NRA code of shorter hours and guaranteed salaries is accepted.

But the Half Rate Offer will be eliminated because of the minimum tuition. All codes must be accepted by Oct 1st at the latest and will probably be accepted before—so if you can't start right now it is safer to make your reservation.

Let Moler's World Fair diploma and Century Certificate be the means of obtaining the better job or your own shop.

Day or evening classes. Investigate at once!

BANKING SERVICE

IF YOU'RE TIRED OF THE HAND TO MOUTH EXISTENCE of a fluctuating "up and down" income, investigate a sensational new BANKING SERVICE that can sweep you into a new mental attitude over night.

To qualify, you must have good character and be able to furnish good references.

Selling experience desirable but not vitally important because if you have ability to make money, we will thru our systematic training, show you how to apply that ability to the most phenomenally successful sales work possible in Chicago at the present time.

BUT—you must be willing and able to work.

For information, address A X 79, Tribune.

SOLUTION TO MIDNIGHT CHASE

The professor said that the speedometer of the car in which he was riding registered 72 miles an hour while chasing the kidnapers across the newly plowed field for 300 yards. Either the engines of both cars would have stopped in a plowed field or the cars would have turned over if going at the speed mentioned.
